CHESTER SAYS COOK STAYED NEAR LAND

Declares Explorer's Notes on Midnight Sun Show 564 Miles Was His Nearest to Pole.

POLAR DASH SOUTH, HE SAYS

Cites Notes to Prove This, Too, and Adds That Cook Told Him McKinley Pictures Were Not Genuine.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—Rear Admiral Colby M. Chester, retired, former Superintendent of the Naval Observatory, to-day explained in detail his reasons for the charge he advanced in a lecture last night that Dr. Cook had never got nearer the north pole than 564 miles. Admiral Chester was a member of the subcommittee of experts that pronounced in favor of Commander Peary's claims, and he is also a member of the committee appointed to investigate the claims of any other person professing to have reached the pole.

In the course of the lecture last night, which was delivered before the University Club, the Admiral, who declared that he was at first inclined to believe that Dr. Cook had reached the pole, referred to Dr. Cook as a deliberate faker. The Admiral repeated that epithet with every sign of conviction when questioned this evening.

"I used as the basis of my deductions," said the Admiral, "the data used by Dr. Cook in his copyrighted stories of his polar expedition printed in newspapers, and carefully studied these observations.

"I base my argument that Dr. Cook did not reach the north pole upon the disagreement between his observations and the known declination of the sun as shown by the Nautical Almanac on the dates referred in his narrative. Where Dr. Cook states that on April 7 he first saw the midnight sun, in latitude 86 degrees 28 minutes, a distance of 225 miles from the pole, in reality on that date, according to the Nautical Almanac, the midnight sun was visible as far south as 82 degrees, a distance of 564 miles from the pole.

Dr. Cook's Midnight Sun.

"In his narrative Dr. Cook, after assuming that on April 7, 1908, he was as far north as 86 degrees 28 minutes, bases his claim of reaching the pole on an average daily journey of some fourteen miles a day for fourteen days. As a matter of fact he would have had to go forty miles a day in order to cover the distance from his real location, according to the Nautical Almanac to the pole.

"Following Dr. Cook's first statement concerning his journey, Prof. J. N. Stockwell of Cleveland showed that if his supposed latitude were correct Dr. Cook ought to have seen the midnight sun above the horizon on April 1. Dr. Cook's own account fixed this date at April 7. In trying to account for this discrepancy Dr. Cook stated that he did not say that the sun was on the horizon at the time specified, and that there were many days in which the sun was obscured by cloud. The inference drawn from the denial was that on any of the preceding seven days the midnight sun might have been seen above the horizon if the weather had been clear.

"But in his later and fuller narrative, Dr. Cook specifically stated that 'on April 3 the barometer remained steady; the weather became settled and clear; at noon now there was a dazzling light, while the sun at midnight sank but for a few minutes, leaving the frosted blue bathed in noonday splendor.' Of the weather between these two dates he wrote, 'There was at no time a perfectly clear horizon, but the weather was good enough to make frequent nautical observations.' If frequent nautical observations could be made between April 3 and April 7, it is pretty certain that the sun was not altogether obscured in the middle of all the nights, and it is certain that it was slowly rising from total obscuration on the early date to clear daylight on the seventh of April."

Says Cook Was Headed South.

Not only does Admiral Chester maintain that on April 3 Dr. Cook was far south of the position he gives himself in his narrative, but that on the four subsequent days and presumably on all subsequent days Dr. Cook was headed south away from the pole, which according to his own accounts was at least 225 miles away. Admiral Chester bases this deduction on Dr. Cook's statement that on April 3 the sun sank just below the horizon, and that four days later, on April 7, the sun showed a short distance above the horizon. According to Admiral Chester, if Dr. Cook were traveling northward during those four days his change in location combined with the steadily increasing declination of the sun would in four days have caused a far greater change in the sun's position relative to the horizon than that accounted for by Dr. Cook.

"If it really took four days of Dr. Cook's journey," said the Admiral, "for the sun to change its midnight position from just below the horizon to just above it, the only explanation possible is that Dr. Cook's movements were taking him away from the midnight sun, in other words, to the south. The point I wish to make is that the sun during these four days was getting above the horizon at an appreciable rate each day. If Dr. Cook were going to the north this rate would have been increased still further. But such an increase would require far less than four days for the change mentioned.

"I therefore state that Dr. Cook never got beyond 82 degrees north, just beyond Cape Thomas Hubbard, and that he started south immediately after that date. My conclusion is that Dr. Cook never got closer than 564 miles to the north pole."

Admiral Chester was unwilling to give out a signed statement in regard to his charges against Dr. Cook, saying that he had just returned to Washington and had not time to put in his statement all the figures he desired. He will make such a statement during this week.

AUTO PLUNGE DROWNS FOUR.

Dashes Into Chicago River with Occupants, One of Them a Woman.

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—An automobile in which were several persons plunged into the Chicago River to-night at Jackson Boulevard, and the occupants of the machine—one of them a woman—were drowned. No bodies have been recovered.

A witness to the accident reported to the police that the bridge at Jackson Boulevard had been opened for a steamer to pass, and that the automobile, which was approaching the bridge at a rapid rate, struck the abutment, turned over, and fell into the river with all its four occupants. A moment later he saw a man and woman struggling in the water, the woman clinging to the man. She screamed for help, and a bridge tender threw out life preservers, but both victims sank.

Firemen and police reached the scene soon after the accident and began to drag for the bodies.

HIT BY SPEEDING AUTO.

Police Search for Machine That Ran Down William Reardon.

The Brooklyn police are hunting for a clue to the identity of an automobile driver who late on Saturday night ran down and probably fatally injured William Reardon of 744 Myrtle Avenue, that borough. After bowling Reardon over, the motorist put on more speed and escaped.

The police learned of the affair only last night, when Reardon, who is 23 years old and a laborer, was removed from his home to the Cumberland Street Hospital. He is suffering from severe injuries of the head, a fractured rib, and a broken wrist, and is also injured internally. It is feared that he will die.

Reardon was attempting to cross Livingston Street, at Nevins Street, when he was struck by a big car traveling west at high speed. He was hurled about twenty feet, and when he was able to get up the automobile had disappeared. Soon after midnight he appeared at his home, a considerable distance from the scene of the accident, and fell in a faint. He was unable to tell how he managed to get home. It is thought, however, that he dragged himself home. A neighboring physician was called in and Reardon's injuries attended to. At that time he declined to go to a hospital, but last night his condition became such that the doctor insisted upon his removal to the Cumberland Street Hospital. Ambulance Surgeon Yeaton took him there.

Reardon was unable to give any description of the machine which ran him down other than that it was a "big car" with "several people" in it. He did not see the license number.

Livingston Street has been the scene of many such automobile accidents. About a year ago a man and a woman who were crossing this thoroughfare together were run down by a machine, the man being killed and the woman so injured that she became insane, and is now in an asylum. The man who drove this machine escaped with his car.

J. H. HOADLEY CAUGHT SPEEDING

E. G. Snow, Jr.'s, Chauffeur Also Among 8 Autoists Arrested in Bronx.

The Bronx police, having in mind the recent killing of little Jennie Bernstein in Harlem by a speeding chauffeur, were on the lookout for speeders yesterday, and arrested ten—eight in autos and two on motor cycles. All gave bail for appearance in the Morrisania Court to-day.

John Robertson of 301 St. Nicholas Avenue, employed as a chauffeur by Elbridge Gerry Snow, Jr., of 101 Riverside Drive, was, according to the police, running a machine in which were Mr. Snow and friends, at twenty-five miles an hour in Broadway when he was arrested at 153d Street by Bicycle Policeman Remington. Mr. Snow gave bail in the Kingsbridge Station.

Joseph H. Hoadley, the engineer and promoter of 18 East Eighty-second Street, was running his own machine at twenty-five miles an hour, according to Bicycle Policeman Zeh, who arrested him at New Rochelle Road and the Hunt's Island Inn. Hoadley gave bail in the Westchester Station.

Other prisoners were William J. Wilkinson a printer, of 207 West 110th Street; William Gordon, aged 16, a student, of 1,881 Madison Avenue, and A. W. Knoebel, Ferdinand Garnier of 250 West Thirty-fourth Street, a chauffeur for Max Strauss, a broker at 27 Broadway; William J. McCrondnen of 49 East Thirty-third Street, chauffeur for Edward Dixon of 64 East Thirty-fourth Street, and Arthur C. Woods, a builder of 510 East Eleventh Street.

Grover Busse, a carpenter of 454 West 164th Street, and his brother, William Busse, an engineer, were arrested at Spuyten Duyvil Parkway and Riverside Avenue, speeding their motor cycles at twenty-eight miles an hour, according to the police. William gave $200 cash bail for himself and brother in the Kingsbridge station.

AUTO KILLS H. L. ANDERSON.

He Was a Business Man of Atlanta Known Through the South.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 7.—Harvey L. Anderson, President of the Anderson Hardware Company and one of the most widely known business men in the South, was struck and instantly killed by an automobile here last night.

The driver of the car is unknown, as he escaped before the arrival of the police.

MORE PAY FOR COKE WORKERS

Advance Expected to Bring in 10,000 Men Needed.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 7.—An increase of between 15 and 16 per cent. in wages for the year 1910 for the 30,000 workers of the H. C. Frick Coke Company, the fuel end of the United States Steel Corporation, is to be announced here shortly. The increase will be sixteen cents on the present labor cost price of $1.04 a ton in cokemaking. Only 25,000 men are employed at present by the Frick people, but it is hoped that the raise in wages will fill the other 5,000 positions, which have been vacant for two years. The need of a full quota of men in the coke region is apparent now, as the concern cannot make all the coke needed to fill orders of the Steel Corporation's mills and blast furnaces.

The high price of coke for the coming year has made this raise possible; the scarcity of men makes it imperative. At least 5,000 men will be affected by the raise by Jan. 1. As the independent concerns making coke will be forced also to grant the advance in wages, another 20,000 men will be benefited.

At least 10,000 men are needed in the coke region by the Frick company and the independents combined. Operators blame Western industrial concerns for robbing them of this number of men by meeting coke workers on their return to America and inveigling them further West.

OPERATE ON SPINE OF MIDDY ATHLETE

Surgeons Think Wilson, Hurt in Football Game, Will Recover Use of His Limbs.

PATIENT TALKS RATIONALLY

Although Paralyzed Below the Neck, He Could Speak—Pickering Also Operated on—Likely to Die.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 7.—After a most delicate operation upon Midshipman Earl D. Wilson of the Naval Academy, whose neck was badly injured in a football game against Villanova College on Oct. 16 last, it was announced that the operation had been successful, and that Wilson's chances of ultimate recovery had been greatly increased.

After once abandoning the operation as practically hopeless, the surgeons at the Naval Hospital, where Wilson has been since he was injured, held another consultation this morning and determined to perform it. Wilson, who has retained his mental faculties and has been in a cheerful mood all along, was anxious for the operation, although he did not realize the full seriousness of his condition.

The operation was performed by Surgeons S. F. Stokes, J. H. Iden, E. F. Woods, and Assistant Surgeon G. F. Cottle, all of the navy. Dr. Walton Hopkins of Annapolis was present. After the operation this statement was issued:

> The operation was successful in every way. Parts of the laminae of the sixth, fifth, fourth, and third cervical vertebrae were removed, and pressure from bone fragments relieved.
>
> The casing of the spinal cord was opened, and a careful inspection made. It was found that the cord had been dangerously compressed beneath the fourth vertebrae, due to the dislocation of that vertebra. All indications were carefully met, and the patient left the table in excellent condition, with his chances decidedly improved.
>
> The outcome depends on the extent of the original damage to the spinal cord.

It was found that above and below the point of pressure the cord was perfectly normal. Experiments by the surgeons showed that while the injured part of the cord was smaller and much compressed there were some pulsations and signs of life there.

It is believed that all the pressure on the spinal cord has been removed, and that the paralysis will gradually diminish as the condition of the spinal cord improves and it resumes its natural functions.

There is now a most definite hope that Wilson will recover. His recovery is likely to be complete, and, though his spinal cord will not be so well protected as formerly, there will be no special danger if care is exercised, and there will be no necessity of any artificial support for the head or neck. The operation began at about 2 o'clock this afternoon and lasted over two hours. The patient left the operating table in excellent condition, and began to recover from the effects of the anaesthetic.

Later in the evening it was stated that the effects had entirely worn off, and that Wilson was talking rationally. This fact alone is a tremendous advance, as the surgeons were very anxious as to whether he could survive the administration of the anaesthetic. Since the accident, which occurred over three weeks ago, Wilson had been totally paralyzed below the neck, but his general condition has been remarkable. His mind has been clear, and he has had full possession of his vocal powers.

The favorable result of the operation was heard with great delight by the midshipmen. Wilson is undoubtedly the best all around athlete in the Academy, being a member of the football, baseball, basket ball, and gymnasium teams. He is very popular, and intense interest has been felt in his case, not only among the midshipmen and those in the naval service, but throughout the country.

PICKERING LIKELY TO DIE.

Casenovia Schoolboy Injured in Football Game Undergoes Operation.

UTICA, N. Y., Nov. 7.—Joseph Pickering, the seventeen-year-old member of the Casenovia Seminary football team, whose spine was fractured in a game with the Colgate Academy eleven at Hamilton yesterday, was operated upon by Dr. J. H. Glass at Faxton Hospital in Utica this morning. The operation disclosed the fact that both sides of the arch of the seventh cervicular vertebrae had been broken and the spinal cord lacerated. The compressing bone was removed, and following the operation the surgeon said that the lad had a fair chance to recover.

At midnight Pickering was said to be in a very critical condition, but it was expected at the hospital that he would live through the night. He has an unusually rugged constitution, which has thus far acted greatly in his favor.

BALLINGER DEFENDS ACTION.

Revocation of Order Withdrawing 1,500,000 Acres from Entry Was Promotive, He Says.

Special to The New York Times

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—Secretary Ballinger of the Department of the Interior defended to-night his revocation of the Garfield order, which withdrew 1,500,000 acres of Government lands from settlement. He said Secretary Garfield in his place would have done the same.

"My cancellation," said he, "of the Garfield withdrawal of 1,500,000 acres and the substitution therefor of a withdrawal order withholding from settlement, location, or entry 300,000 acres was wholly promotive, not subversive, of the conservation policy. It was the next logical step in the prosecution of the policy of conserving the water power on the Federal domain, and one which Secretary Garfield must have taken had he remained in office.

"The first order was a blanket withdrawal, issued to meet an emergency, and without taking time to ascertain just where the power sites were located. Intelligent prosecution of the policy demanded that as soon as possible thereafter these sites be located and the lands not needed to protect them be restored to entry."

ROCKEFELLER'S STRUGGLES.

He Tells His Sunday School Class He's Been at It Sixty Years.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 7.—"It's a blessed thing to struggle," John D. Rockefeller told the pupils of the Euclid Avenue Baptist Sunday School this morning at the close of the lesson.

"I've been struggling for sixty years," said Mr. Rockefeller. "My first struggle was when I learned to swim, and I've been at it ever since. It is a good thing for one to have to fight his way through life. Every day I read about people who are struggling for this or that aim in life and I feel that it is a blessed thing to struggle."

Mr. Rockefeller had brought with him four little books—the records of his early Sunday school classes in the Euclid Avenue Baptist Church. One was for the year 1856, the others for the years 1857, 1859, and 1860. In looking about the audience Mr. Rockefeller picked out two men who were members of his Sunday School class in 1856. They are John H. Quay, now an employe of the Standard Oil Company, and William Radcliffe.

According to his friends, Mr. Rockefeller has not made up his mind definitely when he will leave Cleveland for his Winter home in the Pocantico Hills. The date of departure depends largely upon the health of Mrs. Rockefeller, who has been ill with a severe cold for the past month or six weeks.

STATEN ISLAND CHURCH FIRE.

Trinity Methodist-Episcopal at West New Brighton Destroyed.

Residents of West New Brighton, S. I., flocked to Richmond Terrace and Dongan Street yesterday afternoon to watch the spectacle presented by Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church, as flames which started on the first floor of the two-and-a-half-story structure of brick, ate their way through the roof, climbed the twenty-five-foot tower above, and finally sent it crashing into the building. A score of firemen, who had dragged a line of hose into the burning structure were almost crushed by the shower of brick. Before the blaze was put out the church had been destroyed, and the $10,000 organ damaged, probably beyond repair.

How the fire started is not known. Edward Pero, passing the building at 2:30 o'clock, some time after the congregation had left after the morning service, saw smoke issuing through the crack between the front door and the jamb. He notified the Rev. William E. Palmer, the pastor, who lives next door, and he turned in an alarm. Acting Fire Chief McDonald sent a second and then a third soon after his arrival on the scene.

The church burned quickly, and despite the efforts of the firemen was soon a mass of flames. There was somewhat of a wind blowing, and sparks and embers were carried to the parsonage and other adjoining houses, setting these on fire. These fires were put out quickly by the firemen. Soon after the tower toppled into the building, the east wall crashed down, carrying away the rear porch of the parsonage, against which it fell.

Dr. Palmer said that the damage would be between $30,000 and $40,000, according to the amount of injury to the organ. The church was built in 1853, and was the largest Methodist Episcopal Church on the island.

WRECK ON PENNSYLVANIA.

Two Freight Trains Piled Up on Main Line Near Pittsburg.

PITTSBURG, Penn., Nov. 7.—Traffic on the main line of the Pennsylvania Railroad will be blocked until to-morrow, it is said, on account of a freight wreck that occurred to-night at Jeannette, Penn., twenty-seven miles east of here. No one was injured, and through limited passenger trains are being detoured.

A car in the middle of a fast merchandise freight train left the track, causing a mass of wreckage to be piled in a cut on the road and tearing up about a half mile of track. Another freight crashed into the débris, adding to the blockade.

BROOKLYN GIRL TAKES GAS.

Emily Miller, Who Attempts Suicide in Philadelphia, in Critical Condition.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 7.—Emily Miller, of Brooklyn, an attractive girl, was found unconscious from gas this morning in apartments at 1502 Arch Street, which she had occupied since Friday. She was taken to the Hahnemann Hospital. Her heart was beating faintly, and the physicians succeeded in prolonging her life. Her condition, however, is still critical.

While the young woman gave her correct name and her address, 41 Sidney Place, Brooklyn, she registered her surname as Burg instead of Miller.

At the home of the Millers in Brooklyn it was said last night that all the family had gone to Philadelphia.

NORTH DAKOTA TRIED AGAIN.

On 24-Hour Run She Shows Small Consumption of Fuel.

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 7.—Throughout the twenty-four hours' of her test at twelve knots speed, which was finished early to-day, the new battleship North Dakota maintained an economical consumption of coal and water, the average being well below the guaranteed mean amount. The consumption tests of the world's greatest battleship thus far have been in keeping with the remarkable speed shown in her special mile trials.

Up to the present stage, she is said to have eclipsed the fine showing of her sister ship, the Delaware. Her turbine engines are declared to have developed a greater top speed and have generated power for a low speed at less expense for coal and oil supplies than did the reciprocating engines of the Delaware.

After steaming out of Portsmouth harbor early yesterday morning, the North Dakota rounded the Isle of Shoals and then took a course around Cape Ann to a point just off Boston Light. For the remainder of the twenty-four hours she remained on this course. After anchoring about five miles east of Boston Light this morning to clean fires and oil machinery, she again steamed out to sea just before 10 A. M., on another twenty-four hours' test, at 19 knots.

John Souden, 16 years old, of Quincy, died at Portsmouth Naval Hospital last night, as the result of injuries received when a boiler tube on the North Dakota split open on Friday.

WARRINER SHORTAGE AT LEAST $500,000

Big Four Treasurer Said to Have Given $4,000 a Week to a Woman's Maid.

DIVIDED WITH CHICAGOAN

Detectives Still Seek Mrs. Stewart, Who Is Expected to Throw Light on the Case.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 7.—The shortage in the accounts of Charles L. Warriner, Treasurer of the local office of the Big Four Railroad, will amount to $500,000, according to the statement made to-day by an official of the company.

He said he knew from the manner in which Warriner had been stealing during the last six months that Warriner's shortages would surely reach that amount. Warriner was not seen to-day by any of his neighbors. His family told all who called that they would prefer not to have visitors.

It was learned to-night from a most reliable source that the maid of a woman here made weekly trips to the Big Four offices There she is said to have seen warriner and to have come away every time with large sums of money.

She told a confidential friend of hers who lives in Cincinnati that she usually got from $4,000 to $6,000 a trip, and that it had to be "split up" between Chicago and Cincinnati. This splitting up process is said to have been the division of the money secured by the blackmailers from Warriner.

Detectives are still seeking Mrs. Stewart, who disappeared from her home here after the arrest of Warriner. They expect Mrs. Stewart to tell them a great deal about the relations of Warriner and Edward S. Cooke of Chicago, who admits that he is the man accused by Warriner of blackmailing him. They are also seeking Martha Polk, who was secretary of Mrs. Stewart.

Miss Polk is said to have lived at 3,038 State Street, Chicago, where her mother was a seamstress. She is said by friends of Mrs. Stewart to have left for Chicago on Thursday night, though it might have been Friday morning. She is declared to have been acting queerly and to have been nervous when anybody ever went into the rooms where she and Mrs. Stewart lived.

Mrs. Stewart is said by a seamstress who knows here, and who used to work for her, to have been in her rooms on Thursday. On that day the seamstress went down town and saw the little Stewart girl at the window of the flat in the Sun building, called to her and went up to the rooms. Then she was told, through the door, that Mrs. Stewart was sorry that she couldn't come in then, but that Mrs. Stewart wasn't letting anybody in. This seamstress says she was sure it was Mrs. Stewart's voice, and that it could have been nobody else's.

Martha Polk had a very high standing with Mrs. Stewart, even though she was colored. She often told friends who asked her why she stayed with Mrs. Stewart, that the pay was good, that she had very little real work to do, and that for the most part, she thought it just as well to stay there where she got good money.

The girl talked much about "trouble," say the neighbors, but Mrs. Stewart used to appear in a jaunty frame of mind after meeting with men she called "my lawyers," and say that she did not care whether it rained or snowed.

FREMSTAD ELUDES DEPUTIES.

Sued for Breach of Contract, She Hurries Out of Chicago.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—Those desirous of eluding Sheriffs and process servers can learn much from Mme. Olive Fremstad, dramatic soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York, who appeared in concert to-day at the Auditorium.

Before the audience had ceased applauding the last of her Scandinavian songs she had dashed down stairs, hurried to the front entrance, and burst through a surprised crowd, leaped into a waiting taxicab with her husband, and started for the Lake Shore Railroad station at Sixty-third Street. Fifteen minutes later she was on her way to New York.

She had learned that Deputy Sheriffs were looking for her to serve writs ordering her appearance in court to answer to a claim of Mrs. Clara Brown Shepard of Milwaukee, who asserts that the singer promised to appear in Milwaukee last Thursday and failed to do so, thereby causing loss to the promoters of the Milwaukee concert.

Mme. Fremstad was taking no chances with the law, which allows no serving of papers on Sunday. She arrived at the Auditorium Hotel in the morning with her husband, Edward T. Sutphen, signed the register with her full name, Olive Fremstad-Sutphen, and hastily retreated to her rooms, where she remained until time for the concert.

Max Rabinoff, manager of the concert, denied that the singer knew anything of the papers until after she had boarded the train.

ESCAPE FROM GUARDHOUSE.

Four Soldiers Sentenced to Federal Prison Saw Bars—Sentry Halts Others

Special to The New York Times.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Nov. 7.—A wholesale jail delivery was narrowly averted to-day at Madison Barracks, Sackett's Harbor, where a part of the Twenty-fourth Regiment is stationed. Four soldiers, three of whom were about to be transferred to Fort Leavenworth to serve terms of from two to five years, crawled through sawed bars of the guardhouse, and made a successful dash for liberty.

Twenty-three others in the guardhouse were preparing to follow when the sentry appeared with cocked rifle and threatened to shoot the first man who advanced toward the window. At the same time he called for aid, which soon came.

One of the men who escaped was in leg irons. When the sentry passed at 6 o'clock all was well. A quarter of an hour later he made another round and found a cut-out space in the bars a foot square. The cut-out space had been made partly by sawing and partly by the strength of the negro soldier, who pushed outward. Bettinger, the negro was sentenced to five years' imprisonment. Lee and Rochtaschel, who also escaped, were to serve two years at Fort Leavenworth. Ayers, the second negro who escaped, was being tried for forgery, burglary, and desertion.

The entire countryside has been aroused.

THE LORRAINE IN COLLISION.

Little Damaged, but Passengers Are Transferred to the Gascogne.

HAVRE, France, Nov. 7.—The French Line steamer Lorraine was in collision last night with the steamer St. Barthelemy off Cape la Hague. Although only a few bow plates were started, the Lorraine returned to port as a precaution.

The passengers and cargo were transferred to the Gascogne, which will sail on Wednesday.

The St. Barthelemy's stem was crushed in, and she also put in for repairs.

FOUR GIRLS DIE OF TYPHOID.

Victims in an Epidemic Which Closed an Alabama Female College.

ATHENS, Ala., Nov. 7.—W. T. Sanders, Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Athens Female College, announced to-day that four young women died on Friday of typhoid fever.

The college recently suspended its sessions because of a typhoid epidemic.

TWO DIE FROM PELLAGRA.

Only Cases in a North Carolina County Prove Fatal.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Nov. 7.—Pellagra claimed two victims in Rowan County last night, Mrs. Julius A. Peeler, a widow, 57 years old, and a negro woman living beyond the city limits of Salisbury. Mrs. Peeler had been ill three months with the disease. The name of the other victim was not learned.

These are the only cases of the disease reported in that county.

REFUSES TO BE GOVERNOR.

New Mexican Would Rather Be an Editor Than Succeed Curry.

ALBUQUERQUE, New Mexico, Nov. 7.—William Robinson, editor of The Roswell Register Tribune, to-day announced that he would decline the Governorship of New Mexico recently offered him. The resignation of Gov. George Curry is effective next February.

Mr. Robinson said he would rather stay in the newspaper business than hold any office.

NUNS PUT OUT A FIRE

And Keep Their 400 Little Charges at Their Studies Meanwhile.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 7.—Twelve nuns at St. Vincent's Orphan Asylum, organizing a bucket brigade, put out a fire in the top of the building to-night and quelled an incipient panic which might have been of more danger than the fire.

The boys in the asylum, which houses 400 little ones, were the first to learn that there was danger. The Sisters, passing buckets of water up the stairs and pouring it on the blaze, sent the biggest boys to oversee the little ones at their studies. Those who attempted to rush out were ordered back, and when help arrived from outside the children, part of them still unconscious of the peril, were at their books, and the nuns, almost dropping from fatigue, held the fire under control.

STEEL CAR MEN TO STRIKE.

Leaders Say Every Man Must Quit When Agreement Expires.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 7.—Schoenville and Wood's Run, the Pressed Steel Car Company towns, are again in a fever of excitement, after sixty days of peace following the bloody strike of last Summer. Another strike, bigger and more complicated than the last one, and involving the Wood's Run plant as well as the Schoenville works, is imminent.

Thousands of workmen, wrought to the highest pitch of excitement, paraded through Schoenville and Wood's Run today, shouting for a new strike. The foreign workers leading the movement declare that on Wednesday, when the sixty-day agreement is up, every one in the plant must stop work.

There are now three factions in the big works, all bitterly antagonistic. Fights are of such frequency that the mill police are kept busy quelling disorder. The committeemen who conducted the former strike are loudly branded as traitors and pliant tools of the officials. They have left the district, fearing for their lives.

$10,000,000 FOR POOR MAN.

Hotel Employe Notified He Is Heir to Big Estate.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 7.—Edward A. Trevillyan, who is employed at a small hotel here; has fallen heir to an estate of about $10,000,000 through the death of an uncle in London on Aug. 16. Notice to this effect was received by him to-day in a telegram from New York signed J. G. Marshall.

Trevillyan, who is 50 years old, would make no comment to-night on his good fortune. The proprietor of the hotel where he has been working says Trevillyan had told him of the possibility of his coming into a rich inheritance, and had also stated that many attempts had been made to have him sign over his rights, but that he had always refused, although at times he was penniless.

The only J. G. Marshall in the City Directory is James G. Marshall, a banker at 49 Broadway, who lived until recently at 280 West End Avenue. At that address it was said last night that Mr. Marshall had moved, and that his present address was not known.

WIFE SUES RODMAN ROBESON.

Young Boston Matron Asserts He Threatened to Kill Her.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 7.—It became known to-day that Mrs. Helen Dickinson Robeson, a bride of a few months, has brought a suit against her husband, Rodman Robeson, a Harvard man and a member of a good family. The papers were filed in the East Cambridge court. The bride has attached her husband's property for $10,000. In her allegations she declares that her husband threatened to kill her and otherwise treated her cruelly.

They were married in Philadelphia last August. That fact did not become generally known to Robeson's friends until some time later. Mrs. Robeson came from Chicago.

Robeson formerly lived with his father, the late Andrew Robeson, on Walnut Street, Brookline. Later he lived in Pittsburg. A. Robeson Sargent, who married Miss Marie De Acosta in New York yesterday; Mrs. Bowditch Potter of New York, Mrs. Guy Lowell, and the Misses Thayer, daughters of the late Mrs. S. Van R. Thayer, are his cousins.

The mother of the young man, after a protracted absence in Europe, recently returned. The young man brought his bride to Boston in September. They lived quietly. Then came the appeal to the courts. The young wife sent for her mother, and it is understood that she is with her daughter in Boston at present.

MRS. STETSON DENIES MAGNETIZING FOES

Also Reader Strickler's Diary, and Including the "Fourth Dimension" Theory.

STILL LOYAL TO MRS. EDDY

The Magnetized Are All Doing Well, Apparently—Church Roster Missing Ahead of Next Meeting.

Mrs. Augusta E. Stetson of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, who has been accused by Virgil O. Strickler, First Reader, of attempting "mental assassination of her enemies and of preaching the false doctrine of a dual existence," in one state of which a Christian Scientist could do things for which the real Scientist was not responsible, and which the Scientist could deny under oath afterward, retaliated last night by issuing a statement in which she denied the statements attributed to her in Mr. Strickler's diary and cited in support of his charges. She also hit back at Mr. Strickler by accusing him of being unable to grasp a delicate metaphysical point of view which enabled her to see a difference between "mental malpractice" and "mental self-defense."

Mrs. Stetson seeks in her statement to justify her "absent treatment" of Directors of the Mother Church and of Mrs. Laura Lathrop and her son, John C. Lathrop, by saying that whenever she felt herself attacked "either ignorantly or maliciously" by a person she would simply fill her thoughts with the qualities of God, Love, and Truth, as she expresses it. She denies mental malpractice.

Mrs. Stetson's statement was not given out by herself in person, but through a representative. She could not be reached by the reporters, who wanted to ask her whether it was issued from the "fourth dimension" or "absolute," in which, according to Mr. Strickler, a Stetson practitioner can make any statement without being really responsible for it, or from the merely human plane. Questions on this point addressed to Mrs. Stetson's representative were met with a direction to read the last paragraph of her statement. This says:

"True Christian Scientists admitting but one mind, striving to have no other mind but the mind of Christ, to have one God, and to love their neighbors as themselves, can only bless all their thoughts rest upon."

Mental Anguish Like St. Peter's.

Following quickly on the heels of Mrs. Stetson's statement came one from Mrs. Kate Y. Remer, one of the admonished practitioners, whose testimony in Boston was strongly against the teachings of Mrs. Stetson. Mrs. Remer, who testified before the Mother Church Directors that Mrs. Stetson frequently gave "absent treatments"—described by the opposition as attempts at mental assassination—to various Directors of the Mother Church, and that Mrs. Stetson had taught her students to believe that she would some day be the only real teacher of Christian Science, says in this statement that the Boston Directors would not allow her to state that Mrs. Stetson's motives were always good. She also gave what purported to be the substance of her testimony regarding Mrs. Stetson's teachings as given before the Committee of Inquiry in this city, testimony which, according to First Reader Strickler, was entirely at variance with her testimony before the Mother Church Directors.

Mrs. Remer's present statement explains her Boston testimony by the declaration that, like Peter, she was under great mental stress while testifying before the Mother Church inquisitors. Her present statement is a defense of Mrs. Stetson. She also falls back on what she terms the difficulty of making people understand the metaphysical difference between mental malpractice and mental defense. Mrs. Remer is one of the admonished.

In her defense of Mrs. Stetson she says she never saw her deposed leader show malice or ill-will or resentment to any one.

Mrs. Remer also failed to tell the reporters whether she was speaking from a mortal point of view or fro mthe spiritual, "absolute," or "fourth dimension."

Headlines With the Statement.

Reporters who responded to Mrs. Stetson's invitation to receive an interview in regard to the charges and counter-charges in the First Church were received at her home at 7 West Ninety-sixth Street by a young woman in blue in a spacious reception room. Here and there about the room were vases of freshly cut white flowers, mostly lilies and chrysanthemums. On a centre table was a picture of Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy, with Mrs. Stetson's own photograph alongside it.

Mrs. Stetson's photograph was in a handsome gilt frame. Mrs. Eddy's picture was not in a frame. It was set behind a thick piece of beveled glass.

The expected interview came down stairs in the form of a signed typewritten statement with the message that Mrs. Stetson could not be seen. The bearer declined to take messages to Mrs. Stetson. With the statement came the headlines which the newspapers were to use with it if they printed the statement. These are the headlines:

MRS. STETSON'S ANSWER.
AVOWS HER LOYALTY TO MRS. EDDY AND TO THE MOTHER CHURCH.
EMPHATICALLY DENIES MR. STRICKLER'S INTERPRETATION OF HER TEACHINGS.
Still Loyal, Mrs. Stetson Says.

Here is the statement:

"I wish to state most emphatically that I do not defy the Mother Church, nor the constituted authorities of the Mother Church (the Christian Science Board of Directors;) neither do my followers, who are loyal Christian Scientists—loyal to God, loyal to their beloved leader, Mrs. Eddy, and to the teachings of Christian Science as found in 'Science and Health, With Key to the Scriptures,' by Mary Baker Eddy, the discoverer and founder of Christian Science.

"Upon examination of the witnesses who had appeared in Boston before the Board of Directors, and whom our Trustees were told to investigate 'without fear or favor,' these witnesses showed a clear understanding of Christian Science and true Christian Science practice in justice to these practitioners, after a thorough and impartial examination, I am witnesses, 'without fear or favor,' the Committee of Inquiry, appointed by the Board of Trustees of First Church of Christ Scientist of New York City, rendered the verdict of 'not guilty.' In doing this they were acting within their own jurisdiction and not in any spirit of defiance of the Directors of the Mother Church.

"Christian Scientists to-day are confronting the so-called claims of hypnotism, mesmerism, occultism, witchcraft and the combined forces of so-called evil, which Christian Scientists prove to be powerless when met with the right understanding of Truth.

"I was a member of the Board of Trustees that had to pass upon my teachings and practice of Christian Science. I voluntarily relinquished the right of being present during this inquiry. I never requested or desired the persons conducting the inquiry to stand for me against the authorities of the Mother Church. On the contrary, I said to them when I appeared before them, that I depend alone upon God and my beloved Leader, Mary Baker Eddy, and they should simply suspend judgment until they had heard all of the evidence.

"During this inquiry I notified the Directors of the Mother Church that I would comply strictly with their orders, and I advised the New York Committee of Inquiry that I had done this. I have fully complied with the orders of the Directors of the Mother Church. During this period there were repeated publications of false reports to the effect that I was resisting the constituted authorities of the Mother Church; also that I was influencing others to do so, particularly the authorities of First Church of Christ, Scientist, New York City. Therefore I gave out a public announcement that these reports were false. Furthermore, that I was never more loyal to my beloved leader, Mrs. Eddy, or to Christian Science, and that no student of mine would ever separate himself from Christian Science with my approval.

"Emphatic Denial" to Strickler.

"In answer to the statements in Mr. Strickler's diary I can only say I never knew its contents and the statements contained therein are absolutely so involved and filled with misrepresentations and reversal of truth as to be incomprehensible. The only answer is an emphatic denial. I will briefly review what happened at the time and place cited by him on July 31, 1909.

"On my return from Boston we had the practitioners' meeting as usual. First the reading of the Bible lesson, at the conclusion of which, as is our custom, we discussed the problems pertaining to our Christian Science work. At this time I intimated to the practitioners the possibility of their being called upon by the Board of Directors of the Mother Church to explain what they understood by malpractice.

"At the same time I in no way either told or intimated to them that I had been in Boston, or that I expected to go. We then discussed at length how to handled malpractice, also the difference between that and the true practice of self-protection or defense against malicious animal magnetism (evil thought and their effects on the human body); furthermore, what is implied by 'personal control.'

"I found all but three or four clear in their understandings. Among those who were confused was Mr. Strickler, and I was surprised to find that he seemingly could not grasp the metaphysical point that there exists a difference between mental malpractice and self-defense, and questioned the use of names in self-protection.

Self-Defense from a Spirit Fortress.

"I will give as an illustration what I understand the difference to be between mental malpractice and 'indispensable defense' (Science and Health, Pp. 451 and 452,) or self-protection.

"If I felt sure that I was being attacked, either ignorantly or maliciously, by any person, I should fill my thought with the qualities of God, Truth, and Love, which alone renders one invincible to the entrance of evil in any form—fear, doubt, envy, malice, jealousy, revenge, and whatever proceeds from the carnal mind. From this fortress of defense I should speak to the person, addressing him by name, and declare God's omnipotence and ever presence, and that there is no other power or presence. In other words, should come to him reflecting Truth and Love, and should declare that he is God's image and likeness, a spiritual being, perfect and immortal.

"I should then speak to the error which might be operating through the human mind, for which he has been an avenue. I should endeavor to see him as our Leader writes on Page 476 of 'Science and Health,' 'Jesus beheld in Science the perfect man who appeared to Him where sinning mortal man appears to mortals.'

"Then I should declare that malicious animal magnetism in all its phases and forms was powerless to work through his human personality, using him as an avenue to injure me or any one, or to hinder the progress of Christian Science.

"This could only bless the corporeal man, and is 'doing unto others what we would be willing to have others do unto us.' It would heal the sick by casting out the evil thoughts which produce mental and physical disease. It is the superiority of spiritual power over material sense, and is not malpractice.

What She Calls Malpractice.

"Mental malpractice is the influence of one so-called mortal mind over another, and may be either innocent, ignorant, or malicious. Innocent malpractice: A mother is often an innocent malpractioner upon her child. With her own thought filled with the fear of disease or accident, apprehensive of danger for her little one, she produces the impressions on the child's mind to be afterward manifested on the body in the form of disease.

"Ignorant mental malpractice is constantly in operation among those who are ignorant of the power of thought and exercise their human wills to obtain that which they desire. Malicious mental malpractice is any thought entertained or expressed with intent to govern or injure another.

"True Christian Scientists admitting but one mind, striving to have no other mind but the Mind of Christ, to have one God, and to love their neighbor as themselves, can only bless all their thoughts rest upon." AUGUSTA E. STETSON.

Mrs. Remer's Mental Anguish.

The reporters had just left Mrs. Stetson's house when another woman ran after them to say that another statement was to be issued by Mrs. Kate Y. Remer, of 41 West Nintieth Street, whose testimony in Boston had been given out by Mr. Strickler on Saturday. Mrs. Remer also was not to be seen. Her statement is as a Christian Scientist, not from the "absolute" and was headed "Judge works, not words." It said in part:

"The question involved in determining the difference between mental malpractice and mental defense therefrom is a metaphysical one, difficult alike to understand and to make clear to any one not thoroughly conversant with Christian Science. Therefore, I shall make no effort to explain this point here, or to show how my own conduct was influenced by my not properly making self-defense as justified in Christian Science.

"A partial explanation of the difference between my testimony at the Boston investigation and at the New York inquiry can be found by reading understandingly the account of Peter's denial in an hour of great mental anguish, of one who had taught him truly about God.

"In part, upon my words at Boston, Mrs. Stetson's teachings have been judged, and so have I. Without making any accusation of those who rendered those judgments upon the evidence submitted to them, I may say that I endeavored to put into my evidence at Boston the fact that Mrs. Stetson's motive was always good, never malicious or evil in any way. This was not permitted. The New York Committee of Inquiry permitted me to fully testify as to motive and works, as well as to words.

Now Supports Mrs. Stetson.

"I have never seen Mrs. Stetson show malice, ill-will, or resentment to any one, although I have been closely connected with her in her work for fourteen years. On the contrary, I have never personally known any one who has manifested more than has Mrs. Stetson that divine love enjoined by Jesus, Who said to His followers: 'Blessed are ye when men shall revile you, and persecute you, and shall say all manner of evil against you falsely, for My sake.' It is not difficult to comprehend how persons with an imperfect understanding of the spiritual truths of Mrs. Eddy's teachings might misconstrue words and misjudge their author, when the motive benind them and 'signs following' are not considered."

Little else was talked of among Christian Scientists yesterday than the statements said by First Reader Strickler to have been made by Mrs. Steton that with a perfectly clear conscience she could deny any act committed by her, simply by falling back on what she termed the fourth spiritual dimension, or the "absolute." This was quite a new light on Christian Science.

Mrs. Laura Lathrop and her son, John C. Lathrop, it was learned yesterday, have, however, been aware of Mrs. Stetson's attitude for a long time. They are also prepared to say that they knew about the "absent treatments" that Mrs. Stetson was giving them. Mrs. Lathrop, who is virtually the head of Second Church (Scientist) in this city, broke away from Mrs. Stetson many years ago, and established that church. She and her son are in the confidence of Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy, and both have lived in the Eddy household at Concord.

Mrs. Lathrop is supposed to be the "bond woman" referred to by Mrs. Stetson. Mr. Strickler in his diary quotes Mrs. Stetson as saying:

"You are the bondwoman and your son is the son of the bondwoman. I am the free woman, and the bondwoman and her son must go out before the free woman."

One of those high in authority in the First Church said yesterday that Mrs. Stetson, in referring to the bondwoman, had reference to Hagar, who after giving birth to a son by Abraham, was sent away by Sarah, the real wife. Mrs. Stetson, said this official, always contended that Mrs. Lathrop and her son stood between her and Mrs. Eddy.

Magnetized. All Doing Well.

"Have you or your mother felt any ill effects from malicious animal magnetism or any other sort of 'mental assassination' directed against you by Mrs. Stetson?" Mr. Lathrop was asked last night.

"I don't look like it, do I?" responded Mr. Lathrop, smiling.

Mr. Lathrop said that he and his mother did not wish to be dragged into the First Church controversy, but that he would say this:

"Mrs. Eddy has always taught in Science and Health' that mental malpractice can never harm, and therefore should never be feared by the honest person who has a correct understanding of Christian Science."

Church Roster Missing.

Interest in the First Church congregation now centres around First Reader Strickler, who was the subject of an attack by the committee of inquiry at the congregational meeting of last Thursday, and whom the Trustees are now expected to try to oust because of his antagonism to Mrs. Stetson.

Mr. Strickler announced from the pulpit of the First Church at both services yesterday that another congregational meeting would be held on the afternoon of Nov. 15, at 3 o'clock, to act on that part of the committee's report censuring him. Mr. Strickler did not express it that way, however. He said the meeting would be held to "take up the matter of the meeting held on Nov. 4."

Just after this announcement was made, news came out that the church roster containing the names of all in the congregation has been missing from the church reading rooms for two weeks. Because of this Mr. Strickler and his adherents are unable to notify every member of the congregation to attend the meeting.

The charge was made yesterday by Charles K. Lipman, a member of First Church, that at the last congregational meeting the Stetsonites imported many of their leader's students from out of town, who were known to be favorable to Mrs. Stetson, and that the meeting was "packed" with her friends.

Mr. Lipman said, also, that children and non-members were allowed in at the meeting. He said, too, that such ushers as were unfavorably inclined to Mrs. Stetson were informed by the Trustees that they need not act, and that the cordon of strong-armed ushers at the door of the church had been picked especially for the occasion from among the ardent Stetsonites.

"This performance of last Thursday has been very disgusting to a large part of the congregation," said Mr. Lipman.

Many Greet Mr. Strickler.

A meeting of the anti-Stetsonites will be held in a few days to adopt resolutions requesting the First Church trustees to "play fair," as one of Mrs. Stetson's opponents expressed it yesterday. One of the leading practitioners in the First Church, who was also a former student of Mrs. Stetson, said that the former head of the First Church addressed one of her students as follows, not long ago:

"I am your teacher. You cannot get at your leader except through your teacher."

This practitioner also said that Mrs. Stetson represented to her students that she was the "life link"; that she stood as a medium between her students and God.

Outside of the call for the congregational meeting by Mr. Strickler there was no reference in the two services in First Church yesterday to the troubled state of affairs there. After the morning service members of the church lingered in the aisles, discussing the situation. In the small waiting room near the Ninety-sixth Street entrance Mr. Strickler received the many men and women who wished to shake hands with him and pledge their support.

The prevailing opinion among those who oppose Mrs. Stetson and her teaching is that she will be excommunicated by the Mother Church in the next few days.

That Convenient "Absolute."

In refutation of Mrs. Stetson's assertion that she can deny acts committed by her as a human being by falling back on the fourth spiritual dimension, or the "absolute," one of the First Church officials who is opposed to her referred yesterday to this statement in Mrs. Eddy's book, "Science and Health, with Key to the Scriptures":

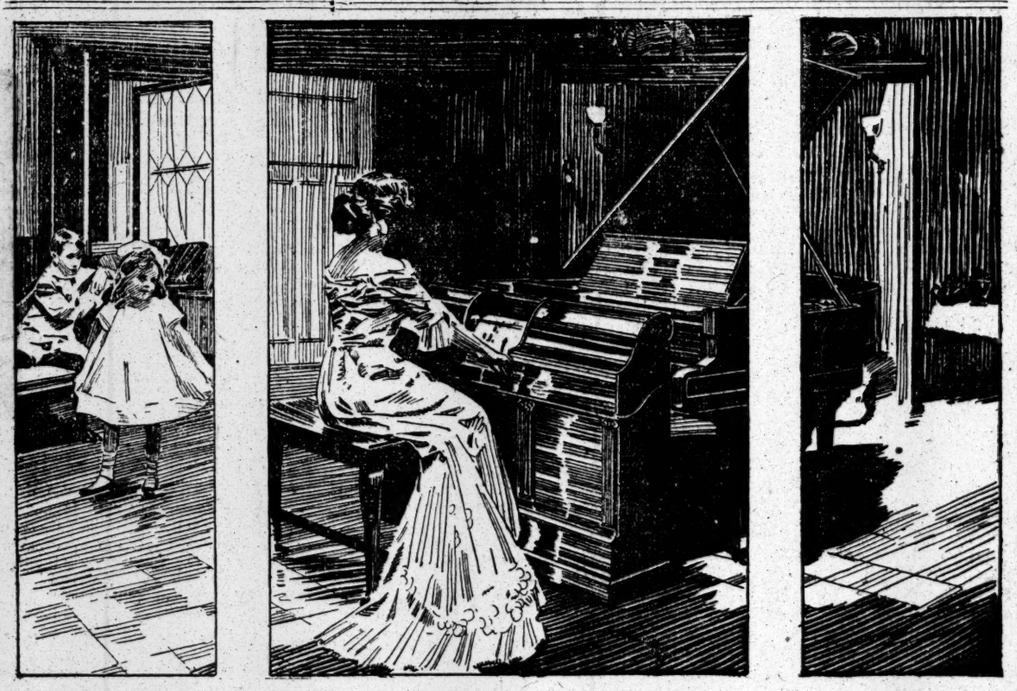
"A sinner is afraid to cast the first stone. He may say as a subterfuge that evil is unreal, but to know it he must demonstrate his statement. To assume that there are no claims of evil and yet to indulge them is a moral offense. Evil which obtains in the bodily senses, but which the heart condemns, has no foundation; but if evil is uncondemned it is undenied and nutured. Under such circumstances to say that there is no evil is only an evil itself."

ALL WELL IN BOSTON CHURCH.

No Ill Effects of Any Stetson "Absent Treatment" Seen There.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 7.—Those Christian Science leaders who could be seen to-night declined to commit themselves regarding the perjury allegations and the suggestive treatment to destroy foes brought out in the hearings on the Stetson case. Neither Mr. McLellan, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Mother Church; Judge Smith, the First Reader, nor Alfred Farlow will admit having been injuriously affected by the absent treatment alleged to have been given them by Mrs. Stetson; indeed, they severally informed THE TIMES correspondent that they are to-night in their usual mental and physical health.



The Simpler Way to Music

In every home there is a need for Music. Refining, soothing, inspiring music is almost as essential to healthy, happy growth and development in both young and old as sunshine itself.

The way to music used to be a toilsome one. Today music has become the easiest of the arts, thanks to the PIANOLA.

When you buy a PIANOLA, you buy the ability and the privileges of the musician. The technique it has taken him so long to acquire, is yours, at once. All that he sums up in the one word "expression", you can command as quickly as you wish.

In expression the distinction between the PIANOLA and other Piano-players is most manifest. Whether it be in bringing out the melody of a composition and causing it to sing above the accompanying notes—in shading the accompaniment—in an artistic use of the sustaining pedal—or in separating phrase from phrase, in an intelligent interpretation, the performer on the PIANOLA is supplied means for artistic playing found on no other instrument of its kind.

IT is wise to distinguish carefully between the PIANOLA and PIANOLA Piano and the many attempted imitations of these famous instruments. The THEMODIST, the METROSTYLE, the Graduated Accompaniment, the Sustaining Pedal Device, etc., are exclusive with the PIANOLA and PIANOLA Piano. The names of these vital features have been imitated; the devices themselves, however, are fully protected by patents.

PIANOLAS cost $250 to $450. PIANOLA Pianos cost $550 to $1150.
Both 65 and 88 Note Scales. Moderate Monthly Payments.

NEEDN'T STRIP SOIL FROM ASHOKAN SITE

Pure Water Experts Say Quality of Supply in Reservoir Will Not Be Affected.

MEANS $5,000,000 SAVING

Advise Cutting and Burning of Vegetation Before Flooding and Exposing Water at Outlet to Light and Air.

Special to The New York Times.

KINGSTON, N. Y., Nov. 7.—Allen Hazen and George W. Fuller, the specialists on purification of water, who have been retained by the New York Board of Water Supply as consulting engineers, have been investigating local conditions at the Ashokan Reservoir in company with Chief Engineer J. Waldo Smith in order to advise in regard to the details of the plans for the bacteriological treatment of the water which will be supplied to the City of New York after the Ashokan Reservoir and Catskill Aqueduct are completed.

The problem originally submitted was to determine whether the surface soil and vegetation on the bottom and sides of the Ashokan Reservoir should be entirely stripped down to the clay and gravel, as was done in the larger reservoirs of the Metropolitan Water District of Massachusetts, or whether some other treatment to obviate deterioration during storage was preferable.

It was estimated that stripping the soil from the Ashokan Reservoir in the manner done in Massachusetts would cost $5,000,000, and the Board of Water Supply desired to have the best expert advice as to whether the probable results would justify the expense.

After a careful study Messrs. Hazen and Fuller concluded that stripping the Ashokan reservoir would not prevent tastes and odors in the water to a sufficient extent to warrant the large necessary expenditure, but that aeration, at a small fraction of the cost of stripping, would result in better water, and that perfectly satisfactory water can be obtained by both aeration and filtration, whether the reservoir is stripped or not. They have recommended that all trees and bushes over the entire area be cut close to the ground and burned shortly before the area is flooded; that around the shore of the reservoir all stumps and roots be taken out which might be unsightly in case of low water, and that at the outlet of the reservoid a large fountain be built where all the water drawn out would be thoroughly exposed to light and air. These recommendations will be carried out.

The treatment of the West Hurley swamps received careful attention from the experts to-day. Previous examinations and experiments have convinced the engineers that the material in the swamps will have very little influence on the quality of the water in the reservoir, except the fresh vegetation, which will be removed by the ordinary clearing and burning. The interesting question, however, has been raised as to whether the surface crust of roots on the swamps, being loosely attached to the underlying soft material, might not rise after the reservoir was filled, and appear as a floating island.

Experimental work in the Burnt Swamp to determine the best method of treating the surface to prevent any possibility of floating has been carried on for the past few months. An examination of the work there to-day satisfied the experts that proper ditching and draining of the surface would permit enough burning to break up thoroughly and destroy the covering and prevent any floating.

TO MAKE PLEDGE COMPULSORY

American Judge Would Have First Alcoholic Offenders Take It.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—Alcohol and alcoholism are two of the real and substantial enemies of the moral, artistic, and commercial progress of the human race, according to the report of the United States delegates to the twelfth International Congress on Alcoholism, made public by the State Department to-day. The delegates were appointed by Secretary Knox as one of his first official acts. The congress was held last July in London, and twenty-five Governments were represented, the delegates of each concurring in the general finding that alcohol not only was unnecessary to human life and comfort, but was inimical to both.

Three departments of the United States Government were represented by delegates, the State, Navy, and Treasury. Twelve representatives went abroad, and all of them unanimously signed the report made public to-day, the finding of which is to condemn the drinking habit as dangerous to public health and morals and subversive of national, moral, commercial, and military greatness.

Stereopticon pictures, the report says, were shown at the congress, of municipal posters that are being issued by the City Councils of about 100 British boroughs. The posters deal in a popular way with the deleterious effects of alcohol on the human system, and are posted by order of the regular officials of towns in which the sale of intoxicants is licensed.

Following the example of Great Britain, the city and district officials of both France and Australia likewise have adopted the "public warning" method of advising the people against indulgence. The report deplores the fact that the same method has not yet found a foothold in the United States, although such a plan has been noted in certain cities, where posters condemning the use of alcohol have been issued by authority of the Mayors.

The Chief Justice of England, Lord Alverstone, announced that in his belief 90 per cent. of the crimes passing under his observation were due to drink. Judge W. F. Pollard of St. Louis, Mo., of the Second District Police Court in that city, declared that of the cases passed upon by him fully 85 per cent. of those convicted could charge their degradation to the use of alcohol. Lieut. Col. McHardy of Edinburgh, Scotland, coincided with Judge Pollard as to the percentage of crimes occurring in the former Scotch capital.

Judge Pollard was supported by twenty-three countries in his proposal that sentence be suspended in the case of every first offender who was charged with drunkenness. This involved the signing of a pledge to abstain for one year by the delinquents. If the probationers failed to live up to their pledges, they could be arrested and summarily sentenced.

FELLED BY A BLACKJACK.

Found Lying Unconscious at Bridge End After Being Robbed.

Frank Kainer, a truck driver of 109 South Sixth Street, Williamsburg, was almost killed by footpads early yesterday morning near the Washington equestrian statue on the Brooklyn plaza of the Williamsburg Bridge. He was robbed of all his money and left lying insensible.

Kainer attended a ball Saturday night, and was on his way home when he heard stealthy footsteps, and as he turned half a dozen men were close at his heels. He heard one say, "Give it to him, quick!"

On the instant he was struck several blows on the head by a blackjack, and he lost consciousness. Two men came across him and carried him to the station of Hook and Ladder Company 54, in South Third Street, a block away. An ambulance came there from the Eastern District Hospital, and Drs. Moskowitz and Leibovici worked over Kainer for nearly an hour before they restored him to his senses. He was unable to give any description of his assailants.

NO QUARREL WITH LOWELL.

Pickering Doesn't Know Why Flagstaff Cut Off Harvard Observatory.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 7.—Prof. Percival Lowell, head of the Lowell Observatory at Flagstaff, Ariz., and brother of Harvard's President, has stated that in future he will have nothing to do with the Harvard Observatory, and any announcement of his researches will be made from his station at Flagstaff. He also asserts that the Centrale Stelle of Kiel, Germany, has agreed that all news of a planetary nature shall be filed at his Arizona observatory, to be used as a central distributing depot. This action was due, it was said, to the way in which Prof. Lowell's former discoveries were allowed to die a natural death after being sent here.

Prof. E. C. Pickering, head of the Harvard Observatory, says, as far as he knows, he has no quarrel with his brother scientist.

"For a quarter of a century," said Prof. Pickering, "the Harvard Observatory has been reconized as the centre in this country of information on all things astronomical, so much so that the Smithsonian Institution of Washington selected our plant as the means of supplying the entire country with such information. If Dr. Lowell sees fit to make such a statement as the one which I have read he is at liberty to do so, but it does not follow that all astronomers will use his observatory as he has planned. Prof. Lowell recently visited us and acted as if he were perfectly satisfied with our method of distribution. There are many, of course, who do not accept his views about Mars, but I have never belittled his work."

Prof. Pickering added that nothing had come to him from Kiel to signify that the authorities there desire a change or cared to form a new alliance.

President Lowell declared he knew nothing about the matter and was not concerned in it.

MORE WIRES IN THE WEST.

C. H. Mackay Tells of Telegraphic Extension Its Prosperity Demands.

Clarence H. Mackay finished an 8,000-mile inspection tour of the Postal Telegraph lines on Saturday. Discussing yesterday conditions in the Far West, he was enthusiastic.

"The people out there," he said, "are not watching the horizon for a return of prosperity. They think it has already arrived, and so it has, if my judgment is worth anything. The telegraph is certainly as good a barometer of business as can be found. In the last twelve months our business in the West has increased remarkably, and we shall lose no time in meeting the requirements.

"We began some time ago the construction of a new transcontinental line direct from San Francisco, via Reno and Salt Lake. It was a serious undertaking because of the difficulty of obtaining a private right of way and imbedding poles in solid rock across the Sierras for practically forty miles, the altitude at the summit being over 7,000 feet. This has now been accomplished, and I had the pleasure of receiving in Reno the first direct message over this line from San Francisco.

"On my way home I received word of the quashing by the Nevada courts of injunction suits, instigated by our competitors, to prevent our building eastward, so that now the way is clear to Salt Lake, and the work will be pushed forward with all possible speed. Simultaneously additional wires will be strung between Seattle and San Francisco, and also from San Francisco to Denver on our southern route, via the Santa Fe.

"Eastern people who don't go West have no comprehension of its growth and development. San Francisco is a marvel of American courage and faith, and Seattle of American energy and skill. It is already one of the most attractive cities that we have, with its broad streets, spendidly paved, fine buildings, and parks, and nobody can see it without realizing that it is destined at no distant day to be one of the greatest in America.

"All the way through the Middle West, too, signs were equally gratifying. I was told in Montana and North Dakota the farmers have learned the lesson of modern industrial development through savings achieved by co-operation and are forming great farming companies, which already show remarkable results and profits."

"The beneficial character of such agricultural progress from every point of view cannot be overestimated. It fetches the bone and sinew of the land into touch and harmony with the co-operative spirit which has evolved our great manufacturing concerns and put the United States so far ahead of all other countries that her commercial supremacy is now and will probably continue to be unquestioned."

miral Chester submitted a map which he prepared some time ago showing the exact position of the midnight sun in the arctic regions from March until April 21, 1908, the period in which Dr. Cook professes to have made his dash to the pole.

Admiral Chester then said that after comparing Cook's signed statement with the map and tables which he had compiled by the aid of the Nautical Almanac and other reliable publications he found that many of the reckonings and data given by Cook were inaccurate.

"Dr. Cook's own statements," said Admiral Chester, "under his signature prove conclusively that the statements by the two Eskimos who accompanied him on his journey were correct. These Eskimos said that Dr. Cook's party was at no time more than two sleeps from land."

Admiral Chester added that he was convinced that Cook's assertion that he had found a large area of land in the Far North and at the latitude given by Cook was incorrect. That he was certain that at the point given by Cook as land there is nothing but the ice of the Polar Sea. The Admiral also questioned Cook's statement about his return trip, in which Dr. Cook said that he was forced to make a wide detour to find food.

He said that had Dr. Cook traveled southeast he should have found a cache which he left before his dash for the pole. If there was any land in the place in which Dr. Cook says he found it he surely would have found game on it, for all of the islands in the Arctic Sea contain game, according to polar explorers.

Discredits McKinley Climb Also.

Admiral Chester also stated in emphatic terms that he did not believe that Dr. Cook ever reached the summit of Mount McKinley, saying that at the time Dr. Cook lectured before the National Geographic Society, Dr. Cook himself admitted to him and several other persons that the two photographs taken apparently at the top of Mount McKinley and at the niche in the side of the mountain wall in which Dr. Cook claims to have slept were not pictures of these places. Admiral Chester said that Dr. Cook admitted that he left his camera behind him before he reached these points in his journey to the summit of the mountain.

"Dr. Cook made this admission just after he had comleted his lecture and had received the congratulations of many scientists. At the time his explanations seemed plausible, but recently Dr. Cook has declared that he made the pictures in the positions which they seemed to represent. These statements on his part helped to bring about my disbelief of Cook. At first I was inclined to believe that he reached the pole, as I believed that he had reached the top of Mount McKinley."

It had been expected that Admiral Chester would discuss the Peary records in his lecture last night. He said, however, that for obvious reasons he would not discuss the Peary records at this time.

The course of the National Geographic Society on the refusal of the University of Copenhagen to allow American scientists to attend the examination of the Cook data will be decided at a meeting of the Board of Managers to-morrow morning.

TO WIN SOLID SOUTH DROP NEGRO--CULLOM

Illinois Senator Declares Removal of Black Vote Would Make It Republican.

NATURALLY PROTECTIONIST

Not for Disfranchisement of Negro in North—Only in South, Where He Is Distrusted as Legislator.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—Senator Cullom of Illinois to-day declared that but for the fear of negro domination the Southern States would go Republican almost solidly. He did not go so far as to advocate disfranchisement, and he specifically stated that disfranchisement is undesired and unneeded by the whites in his own State, where the negro vote is large an intelligent. But in the Southern States, where the negro is distrusted as a legislator, he said his definite removal from politics would at once bring the solid South into line with the rest of the country.

"Take a State like Alabama, for instance. There is a community which possesses vast coal, iron, and other industries demanding a protective tariff. With her rank States like Tennessee, Texas, and others. They all want to be protected industrially, and the people are ready to join us were it not for the negro.

"How can you blame communities like South Carolina and Mississippi, for instance, for voting the Democratic ticket when in some sections the proportion of colored population is ten blacks to one white? It is in communities like these that the white people are afraid.

"Now, mind you," Mr. Cullom went on, "I do not necessarily mean that I favor the total disfranchisement of the negro. In Illinois, for instance, we have a negro vote, just as Ohio, Indiana, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and New York have. But up in these communities negro suffrage is a different proposition. There appears to be a distinction somewhere between the two sections in this respect, and the Northern colored man uses his ballot with wisdom and fairness. We are satisfied with him, but it is not strange, of course, that the South is not.

"And if it were not for this colored ballot in the South, Mason & Dixon's line would be wiped out of existence as far as politics is concerned. The Democratic Party, or what is left of it, would then be in a sorry plight, if indeed there would remain any Democratic Party to be in any sort of plight."

Senator Cullom went on to say that a State like Alabama was naturally protective as to the tariff and Republican in politics. In Mississippi and South Carolina, where in many sections the negroes outnumber the whites ten to one, he admitted it might be too much to expect any change in local sentiment for a long time to come. Maryland, he said, would soon be a regular Republican State instead of remaining in the doubtful column, and other States, he intimated, would yield to the President's influence and break away from the solid South in spite of the present status of the negro.

TWO KIDNAPPERS CAUGHT.

Identified by Stolen Child and Her Mother, Who Paid Blackmail.

After a chase of more than two and a half years, two alleged kidnappers described as Antonio Treferio, a salesman, who refused his address, but said he lived around Chrystie and Rivington Streets, and Giovanni Gangi, a laborer, giving his address as 176 Chrystie Street, were arraigned before Magistrate Kernochan in the Jefferson Market Court yesterday morning and held in $10,000 bail each for trial.

On March 17, 1907, as 5-year-old Rosie Gordano of 55 Spring Street was leaving school at noon at Lafayette and Spring Streets, she was approached by three men, who asked her if she would like to have a doll, and then took her with them. In court yesterday the child said she was held a prisoner for eight days.

Six days after Rosie was stolen, Mrs. Rose Gordano and her husband, Pietro, who is a well-to-do baker and grocer, commenced to receive threatening letters demanding $5,000. If the money was not fothcoming, the letters said, Rosie would be cut up in small pieces and sent to her parents through the mail.

Lieut. Petrosino was at this time the head of the Italian squad, and every effort was made to get some trace of the child without avail. On the eighth day, Mrs. Gordano said, Gangi called on her and demanded $5,000. She became frightened and gave him $800. The same day Rosie was picked up in the street near her home by the police and returned to her parents.

Among the records left by Lieut. Petrosino at Police Headquarters when he went to Italy, was a list of men he suspected of the kidnapping. On it were the names of Trefonio and Gangi.

Detective Felix was passing at the Bowery and Stanton Street Saturday afternoon when he saw Treferio and placed him under arrest. From him the detective learned Gangi's whereabouts.

Mrs. Gordano positively identified Gangi as the man who received the $800 from her, and Rosie identified him as one of the three men who took her away on the promise of buying her a doll.

Both men in court said they had been out of the city for a couple of years, and denied that they had anything to do with the kidnapping of the child. The detectives said they had followed the two men to Chicago, Buffalo, St. Louis, and other cities, and had finally lost track of them.

CUSTOM PROBE STORY A MYTH

Congressmen Here Say They Know of No Plans for an Investigation.

The report in Washington as to the possibility of a Congressional investigation into the New York Custom House found little confirmation among this city's Congressmen yesterday. Congressmen Herbert Parsons, William S. Bennet, and Francis Burton Harrison were out of town, but Congressman J. Van Vechten Olcott at his home, 31 West Seventy-second Street, said he would certainly not initiate any such investigation.

"I heard something about the possibility of a Congressional investigation into the New York Custom House while I was in Washington recently," said the Congressman, "but it was more as a piece of published gossip than anything else. Such an investigation will certainly not originate with me. As a matter of fact, Collector Loeb's overturning of the Custom House is so new that I don't know where I stand on it. Mr. Loeb is unquestionably trying to conduct the Custom House as a business organization. If he really has unearthed fraud this would seem to justify his vigorous policy. He is acting on the advice of Wickham Smith, the specially appointed representative of the Attorney General, and Mr. Smith is unquestionably a very able lawyer. Personally I am not yet in sufficient touch with the facts either to criticise or approve Collector Loeb's policy at present."

Congressman William M. Calder of Brooklyn said emphatically that he hadn't heard anything about any Congressional investigation of the Custom House, and if there was one he would most certainly support Collector Loeb very strongly. No politician or merchant had approached him about it, he said.

Congressman Richard Young said he had been under the impression that Collector Loeb's work was "pre-eminently satisfactory."

Collector Loeb did not seem to take the rumor of an investigation seriously. Secretary C. R. Heike of the American Sugar Refining Company refused to discuss another rumor to the effect that the Sugar Trust, which is under the charge of having benefited to the extent of several millions by collusion with bribed customs inspectors, was after Loeb's "scalp."

HAPHAZARD!

Half the secret of dressing well is in choosing one's wardrobe with taste. To buy clothes at haphazard, a suit here, an overcoat there, a hat somewhere else, just as they strike the fancy, may result in a medley.

Men with more clothes than they can use, often lack a single outfit for business wear that is in good form.

The first aid to intelligent buying is intelligent salesmanship and a well selected stock. We provide that aid.

24-HOUR FLIERS START FOR ST. LOUIS

New Fast Trains Over the Pennsylvania and N. Y. Central Will Cut Previous Time 5 Hours.

BOTH ARE TRAINS DE LUXE

Central's Train Off at 2:45 P. M. and the Pennsylvania's at 6:25 P. M.—Pennsylvania Plans Second Train to Start on Central's Time.

The first through trains ever scheduled to make the run from New York to St. Louis in twenty-four hours left yesterday, one from the Grand Central Station over the New York Central lines at 2:45 o'clock; the other over the Pennsylvania road at 6:25 P. M. The Central's train is a duplicate of the Twentieth Century Limited; the Pennsylvania's is a duplicate of its eighteen-hour Chicago flier. The Central's train is due to arrive in St. Louis at 1:45 P. M. to-day, which, allowing for the difference in time, would be exactly twenty-four hours. Four hours after the departure of the Southwestern Limited, as the new Central train between here and St. Louis will be known, the other twenty-four-hour flier, the "Twenty-four-hour St. Louis," started on its first trip to the Western city from the Pennsylvania terminal in Jersey City. The Central's train has a journey of 1,175 miles to perform, the Pennsylvania train's trip is 1,060 miles.

The Southwestern Limited started on time to the second. J. F. Fairlamb, the General Passenger Agent, and several other officials of the New York Central lines, saw it draw out. Ex-Gov. David R. Francis of Missouri was one of the passengers on the train. A 2,200-horse power electric locomotive, in charge of Frank Adams, drew the train out of the Grand Central and hauled it to High Bridge, where steam locomotive No. 3,565, with Engineer Melville Livingstone, one of the Twentieth Century engineers, at the throttle, took the train for the run to Albany, where the first three-minute stop to change locomotives took place.

When the "twenty-four-hour St. Louis" pulled out of the Pennsylvania terminal it was made up of Pullman vestibule cars. Its route to St. Louis was by way of Philadelphia, Harrisbrg, Pittsburg, Columbus, Indianapolis, and Terre Haute. This train is due in St. Louis at 5:25 this afternoon, making its time between New York and that city exactly one full day. Both trains have all the "Limited" features—observation cars, electric lights, barber's shops, bath rooms, stenographers, &c.

The Pennsylvania, it was said yesterday, will in the near future put on a second twenty-four-hour St. Louis train, which will leave Jersey City at the same time the New York Central train leaves the Grand Central Station, arriving in St. Louis at the same time as the Central train. The exact date of the establishment of this new service by the Pennsylvania was not disclosed, but it is said it will be within a very short time.

The Pennsylvania's new east-bound flier from St. Louis is to be known as the "Twenty-four-hour New Yorker," and leaves St. Louis at 6 P. M., central time, and is due at the Pennsylvania ferry station at Desbrosses and Cortlandt Streets at 6:58 P. M., and the West Twenty-third Street ferry at 7 P. M., the following day. The corresponding train by the New York Central leaves St. Louis at 8:45 A. M., and is due at the Grand Central Station in New York at 9:45 A. M. the following morning.

Not only will these improved services greatly expedite the business interests of the cities affected by the schedule, but it will also mean an immense improvement in the mail service. On Saturday it was announced in Washington that important changes that will benefit not only St. Louis and New York, but all of the important intermediate points will be inaugurated by the Post Office Department at once.

The New York Central also inaugurated two other fast services yesterday, one a new train known as the "Cleveland Limited," and the other a new twenty-two-hour train from Chicago to New York. The Cleveland Limited will leave New York at 8 P. M., reaching Cleveland at 7:45 A. M., affording passengers the opportunity to dine in New York and breakfast in Cleveland. This train carries the usual "Limited" equipment, and reduces the existing fastest running time between New York and Cleveland by two hours.

The twenty-two-hour train, with all limited train facilities, between Chicago and New York, leaves Chicago at 10:15 A. M., reaching New York at 9:12 A. M. the following day, making direct connection at Chicago with limited trains from the West, and giving travelers a continuous passage in limited trains from the Pacific to the Atlantic seaboard.

There are now seventeen trains daily, each way, between New York and Chicago over the Pennsylvania and New York Central lines.

RELIGIOUS QUESTION AGAIN STIRS FRANCE

Struggle Precipitated by Catholic Ban on Public Schools Is Becoming Acute.

TO FIGURE IN ELECTION

Teachers' Association Will Test in Court Right of Church to Interfere with Instruction of Children.

PARIS, Nov. 7.—The situation resulting from the French Episcopate's declaration of war against the public schools and the effort to mobilize the Catholic voters for the coming general election is rapidly entering an acute stage. The utterances of ecclesiastical authorities and both the secular and clerical press indicate that the fight to bring Catholic children back to the confessional schools will be bitter.

Mgr. Gely and other Bishops have publicly forbidden Catholic parents under penalty of refusal of the sacraments to send their children to public schools if Catholic schools are available, and parents everywhere are urged to refuse to allow their children to use the interdicted textbooks, under similar penalties.

Considerable demoralization of the schools has been caused already. M. Doumergue, Minister of Public Instruction, has ordered an investigation of the situation, which probably will determine the Government's ultimate attitude. It is understood that preliminary reports say that the humbler priests in the communes have voluntarily approached the teachers and informed them that they do not sympathize with the attitude of their superiors.

The decision of the Teachers' Association, comprising 100,000 members, to test in the courts the Church's right to interfere with the public schools will be followed by damage suits instituted by the authors of the interdicted textbooks. Mgr. Dabourg, Archbishop of Rennes, in a statement just issued, declares that Catholic voters must rally to the protection of the Church.

"It is immaterial," he says, "whether they are Royalist, Imperialist, or Republican, we only insist that they be Catholic above everything."

The catechism is being revised for the purpose of teaching that it is a religious duty to vote for the candidate who is pledged to defend Church interests.

FRIARS ATTACKED IN LEGHORN.

Lecture on Miracles Followed by Anti-Clerical Outbreak.

LEGHORN, Italy, Nov. 7.—Father Gemelli, known as the monk preacher, who was recently challenged by the Socialist Deputy Pedrecca to deliver in public sermons proving the miracles at Lourdes, gave a lecture to-day on the subject in the cathedral. A great crowd gathered, and the Catholics applauded, while the anti-Catholics shouted "Viva Ferrer!"

The Catholics then intoned a hymn, and a tumult followed. The police intervened, and made several arrests and protected the friars from anti-clerical attacks.

TO PLAN CANADIAN NAVY.

Parliament Will Meet Thursday and Take Up Question.

OTTAWA, Nov. 7.—The Canadian Parliament opens next Thursday, and the session will probably continue for six months. The chief item of business on the government programme will be the bill under which the new Canadian navy is to be constituted. It will provide for a board of naval experts for the construction and management of the fleet.

There will be a good deal of tariff discussion, though legislation in this direction is not looked for beyond the bill to confirm the Franco-Canadian treaty. The possibility of the maximum rates of the Payne tariff being imposed upon Canada, if France receives more favorable tariff terms from Canada than does the United States will cause some serious talk, and a few members on both sides will press the government to retaliate by putting the same surtax into operation against the United States that Canada has put on articles from Germany.

The Canadian banking act and the insurace act will both be stiffened in the direction of greater security. Provision may be made for the construction of a government railway to Hudson Bay, and the opening of a commercial route to Europe by way of Hudson Straits.

NAVY PLANNED FOR TURKEY.

Ministry Will Ask Parliament to Sanction Expenditure of $100,000,000.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—The Turkish Ministry will urge on Parliament, soon after it reconvenes, on Nov. 15, the adoption of a naval programme providing for the expenditure within the next seven years of $100,000,000.

This programme, it is learned here, provides for the construction of seven battleships of the North Dakota type, together with a number of destroyers and one hospital ship.

For the next fiscal year an appropriation of $12,000,000, to begin the construction of two of the proposed warships, will be asked. In order to carry out this building programme, it probably will be necessary to negotiate loans in addition to the one closed this Fall.

The proposal of the Ministry is said to be in keeping with the general attitude of the people. Contributions to a public fund for the construction of battleships are said to be pouring in by the thousands.

RIOT AT A RACE TRACK.

Vienna Mob, Threatening to Lynch Judges, Dispersed with Swords.

VIENNA, Nov. 7.—A false start, leading to the disqualification of two horses in a trotting race to-day in the Prater, a park on the outskirts of the city, and the victory of an outsider, caused a riot and an attack on the judges.

Cries of "Lynch them!" was the signal for many thousands of the spectators to attack the judges' stand. They smashed all the windows and reduced many of the stands to matchwood. The judges made their escape, and a large body of police with drawn swords succeeded in restoring order.

Many persons were injured and about fifty were arrested.

KING MANUEL BEGINS TRIP.

LISBON, Nov. 7.—King Manuel left here to-day for Madrid, on his way to France and England.

The Duke of Oporto will act as regent during the King's absence.

China Has Twelve Warships.

VICTORIA, B. C., Nov. 7.—According to information by the steamer Empress of Japan, the recent investigation of the Chinese Navy disclosed that it contained twelve large warships and sixteen torpedo boats of fighting capacity, besides sixteen vessels suitable for coast defence.

KAISER'S ART EXPERT COMING.

Justi, New Director of Berlin National Gallery, to See Our Pictures.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Nov. 7.—Prof. Ludwig Justi, the brilliant young artist whom the Kaiser yesterday appointed Director of the Berlin National Gallery, leaves for America to-morrow to make an inspection of the art treasures owned on your side of the water.

"One object of my hurrying up my visit to the United States," said Herr Justi to the correspondent of THE NEW YORK TIMES to-night, "is to look at the loan exhibition of old masters from private collections in New York, especially the Rembrandts. My time is limited and I can only stay a fortnight. I hope American collectors will have the great kindness also to let me see any of their treasures which are not shown at the exhibition."

Justi's advancement to the Directorship of the National Gallery at the age of 33 represents the most meteoric career any German artist has ever had. At 25 years old the Kaiser's appointee was a professor in the University of Berlin. Three years later he was Director of Municipal Art at the museum in Frankfort. Then he became Secretary of the Royal Academy in Berlin. It is from this post that he has just been promoted.

ROOSEVELT NOT HEARD FROM.

Investigation Fails to Show Source of False Reports of Illness.

MOMBASA, British East Africa, Nov. 7.—The Government, which has been investigating the rumors concerning the illness of ex-President Roosevelt, while not successful in getting into direct communication with Col. Roosevelt and his party, has at least learned enough to satisfy the officials that there is no truth in these rumors. The latest dispatch received to-night from officials in the interior says:

Nothing known here of the rumors. Eldama Ravine reports all well Oct. 30. The Roosevelt party is now on a long safari.

A safari is an expeditionary journey.

ROME, Nov. 7.—John W. Garrett, Secretary of the American Embassy, received another dispatch to-day from Messrs. Newland and Tarlton of Nairobi, friends of Col. Roosevelt, who are following up their investigation as to the origin of the report of Mr. Roosevelt's illness. The dispatch was as follows:

I have ascertained that no uncoded telegrams have been dispatched from this protectorate that could be responsible for the Roosevelt rumor, which is obviously untrue. Col. Roosevelt is away from a railway. We are trying to communicate with him. He will wire direct.

NEWLAND and TARLTON.

Mrs. Roosevelt, who has been greatly wrought up by the reports of her husband's illness, remained in her apartments throughout the day, but Miss Ethel Roosevelt and Miss Carew took a short drive, accompanied by Commander Andrew T. Long, the American Naval Attache.

AMERICAN WORKS SOLD.

Etchings and Paintings Bought by Art Association in Venice.

VENICE, Nov. 7.—The international art exhibition, which has been in progress here for some time, closed to-day. There was a sale of foreign works, including a series of six etchings called "America at Work" and a series of four etchings, "New New York," by Joseph Pennell, and a painting in oil, "Naples in Blossom," by William A. Coffin of Jennerstown, Penn.

These were purchased for the gallery of the International Art Association here.

TELLS POPE OF PHILIPPINES.

Papal Delegate Agius Has Conference with Pontiff and Merry del Val.

ROME, Nov. 7.—Mgr. Ambrose Agius, Papal Delegate to the Philippines, had a long conference to-day with the Pope and Cardinal Merry Del Val, Papal Secretary, with reference to the situation in those islands.

Mgr. Agius described in detail the progress of the archipelago under American rule.

RUSSIA FEARS UPRISINGS.

Mobilizes Strong Garrisons at Several Points in Far East.

VICTORIA, B. C., Nov. 7.—Advices by the steamer Empress of Japan from Vladivostok say that strong garrisons are being mobilized by Russia at Blagovestchensk, Nikolak Usurisk, and Manchuria stations, composed mostly of forces ready for rapid movement.

The mobilization is said to be due to fear of uprisings in Southern Usurisk.

TURNS TABLES ON THIEVES.

Saloonkeeper, with Ready Revolver Captures Holdup Men.

While John Reilly, a saloonkeeper, of 742 Eleventh Avenue, was closing up his saloon on Saturday night, three men ran in and grabbed him by the throat and demanded $40.

Reilly, who is only a little man, had presence of mind enough to reach around to his hip pocket, and before the robbers knew what was happening, one of them found the cold end of a revolver scratching his temple. Realizing that Reilly had the drop on them, the three men threw up their hands and waited sullenly until, in answer to Reilly's shouts, Patrolman McNierney of the West Forty-seventh Street Station arrived and arrested them.

When arraigned before Magistrate Krotel in the West Side Court yesterday, charged with attempted robbery, the men gave their names and addresses as Stephen Clancy, 432 West Fifty-sixth Street; Bernard Hopkins, 922 Ninth Avenue, and Patrick Lynch, 514 West Forty-ninth Street. All three waived examination and were held in $2,500 bail each for trial.

SEABOARD FILES MORTGAGES.

Compelled to Pay $8,220 Taxes in Virginia on $150,000,000 Securities.

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 7.—The Seaboard Air Line Railway has recorded in the office of the Norfolk County Court two mortgages aggregating $150,000,000. The State taxes on them are $8,220.

One of these mortgages is for $25,000,000 5 per cent. forty-year adjustment gold bonds, with the Fidelity Trust Company of Baltimore and Van Lear Black as Trustees. The other mortgage is for $125,000,000 refunding bonds, payable fifty years hence, and bearing interest at the rate of 4 per cent., with the New York Trust Company and Mortimer N. Buckner as Trustees.

The mortgages will have to be recorded 300 times. Alabama is the only other State, besides Virginia, in which the company owns property covered by the mortgage which charges a State tax.

GIRL HOLDS MAN FOR POLICE.

Accusing Him of Stealing Her Pocketbook, She Shakes Him Like a Rat.

Lester Doctor of 17 East 118th Street was charged at the West 125th Street Station last night by Katherine Fogler of 107 West 110th Street, with aiding two men to steal her pocketbook at the entrance to Central Park at Seventh Avenue and 110th Street.

Miss Fogler says as she was walking past the Park entrance the prisoner tried to flirt with her. She kept walking on and dropped her pocketbook with $25 in it. The young man stopped and picked it up. Then, according to Miss Fogler, he passed it to two men, who ran away. Miss Fogler clutched Doctor by the throat and shook him like a rat until Bicycle Policeman O'Keefe arrested him.

At the police station Doctor declared that when the woman dropped her pocketbook two men who were entire strangers to him snatched it up and ran away.

THE SAVOIE BROKE PROPELLER SHAFT

French Liner Crippled at Sea Made Good Time to This Port Under One Engine.

PROPELLER LOST IN A GALE

Shaft Broke Supposedly from a Flaw, Just Outside the Tube—Tore Roof from Her Pier in Docking.

The French Line steamship Savoie, it came out when she arrived yesterday from Havre, nearly thirty hours late, lost not a blade but the whole of her starboard propeller and part of the tail-shaft in Tuesday's heavy sea. She continued under her port engine alone, making fourteen knots an hour.

The Savoie sailed from Havre on Oct. 30. She brought 370 cabin and as many more steerage passengers. Under ordinary conditions she would have arrived here Saturday morning. Because of the accident it was 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon before she came alongside of her pier. The Savoie was about 1,500 knots out from Havre on Tuesday about 6:45 P. M., when suddenly there came a slight grinding sound, and immediately her starboard engine began to race. The racing of the engine automatically shut off steam, and in a few seconds the jarring of the vessel stopped.

The passengers, many of whom were at dinner at the time, did not know that there had been an accident, though all had felt the vibration of the vessel as the starboard shaft raced. They were soon informed that an accident had crippled the liner and she would be late in getting to New York. They at once proceeded to organize entertainments to while away the extra hours they would have to stay on board.

The accident was not caused by the propeller striking some obstruction in the water. Capt. Tourrette is of the opinion that there was some flaw in the shaft, which, developed under the shaking up the vessel suffered in the sea, which was running high, and the shaft gave way, dropping the propeller into the sea.

An investigation made by the chief engineer and his assistants showed that the starboard tail shaft had broken off outside the shaft tubing, which projects from the stern of the vessel to within a few feet of the propeller. The shaft broke close to the end of this tube, and the propeller and a few feet of the shaft were lost.

The Savoie was scheduled to sail from here on Thursday. Already about 35 first, 65 second, and 400 steerage passengers had been booked to depart on her. She will take no passengers, though she will carry cargo. Of those who had bought tickets for her, the second cabin and steerage passengers will sail for Marseilles on Saturday on the French liner Floride. The first-class passengers will be forwarded on other vessels.

As the Savoie came alongside her pier she did several hundred dollars' worth of damage to the iron roof. Because of the condition of the tide it was necessary for the steamer to go up the river and turn around and enter her slip from the north. As the great hull of the liner turned alongside the end of the pier she was so close in that her bow caught the overhang of the pier roof and for a space of about fifteen feet crumpled it up.

"LOST AD" DISCLOSES THEFT.

Minister Recovered His Watch, but Chain and Ring Are Still Missing.

Through a "lost" advertisement published in THE TIMES the theft of a gold watch and chain, belonging to a minister, from a room at the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church, Seventy-third Street and Madison Avenue, on July 22 last, became known. The Rev. James G. Bailey, assistant pastor of the Lafayette Avenue Presbyterian Church in Brooklyn, was the owner of the watch and fixings.

In THE TIMES advertisement the Rev. Mr. Bailey states that a double stranded watch chain, with a wedding ring used as a charm, was lost, but inquiry at his home, 4 South Oxford Street, Brooklyn, developed that the watch had been stolen. The minister explained to a reporter that he conducted a Summer school last July at the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church, and that on the day mentioned in the advertisement a thief sneaked into the church and removed the timepiece from his coat, which was hanging on a chair in a room adjoining his class.

Detectives recovered the watch a few days later in a pawnshop on Forty-second Street, but the chain and charm have not been found. The ring was the wedding ring of the Rev. Mr. Bailey's mother.

LOST HIS FOOT SKATING.

"Hooked On" to Auto and Was Thrown Under Trolley Car Wheels.

Eleven-year-old Michael Izzo, who lives with his parents at 167 West End Avenue, never has owned a pair of skates, but somewhere he managed to borrow one for his left foot, and thus equipped he managed to propel himself all the way to Harlem yesterday afternoon. About 1:30 o'clock he started for home.

The youngster was wearied with his long push, and seeing a limousine auto gliding south along Broadway, he caught the mudguard, fixed his right foot safely on the back axle, and prepared to roll along in comfort on his left. At 120th Street the car swerved to one side because of a pressure of traffic ahead.

Izzo slid across the asphalt and fell directly in front of a Broadway trolley car. Motorman Joseph Ferris applied the brake, but before the car stopped one of the wheels of the forward truck had crushed the youngster's left foot.

The chauffeur of the car to which Izzo had been clinging put the boy in the car and took him to St. Luke's Hospital. There it was said last night that his left foot would have to be amputated.

THE POLICEMAN'S CHAUFFEUR

Had to Pay Fine Like Any One Else in Magistrate Corrigan's Court.

Though he protested that he always had great respect for the law because he was intimately connected with one of its guardians, Lawrence H. Chaims of 78 Seventh Avenue was fined $5 for reckless driving in the Night Court last night.

Patrolman Moore of the West 125th Street Police Station told Magistrate Corrigan that Chaims had turned into Eighth Avenue from 125th Street at a high rate of speed and in a reckless manner.

"I had just taken by employer, Lieut. Robert McNaught of the Harbor Squad, home," protested Chaims, "and I was in a hurry to get back downtown—"

"Who did you say your employer was?" asked Magistrate Corrigan.

"Lieut. Robert McNaught of the Harbor Squad," said Chaims. "But I was not exceeding the speed—"

"Five dollars," said the Magistrate.

NICARAGUAN EXILES SEND APPEAL TO TAFT

Cable Him from Panama Asking Him to Ignore Zelaya's Requests for Aid.

REBEL VICTORY CONFIRMED

Estrada Followers Marching on Capital—Government Buys Steamer to Make Blockade Effective.

PANAMA, Nov. 7.—Prominent members of the Nicarguan colony here sent a cable message to President Taft to-day asking him "in the name of humanity and civilization" to pay no attention to requests of Zelaya either for aid or for non-interference, and that "if the United States cannot intervene in Central America, it should at least let the fate of Nicaragua be decided on the battlefield."

The petition is made "in the name of hundreds of Nicaraguans banished from their country and hundreds lying in the prisons of Managua."

President Zelaya's enemies declare that he is isolated and that his representatives in foreign affairs are all foreigners, as he is unable to get natives to serve him.

Special to The New York Times.

MOBILE, Nov. 7. — News from Bluefields and other Nicaraguan ports confirms the report of a victory over the Government forces at Bocas de San Carlos by Gen. Emiliano Chamorro on Oct. 28.

It is also asserted that Gen. Jersan Saenz has made a successful attack on Chinandega, which is on the Pacific Coast side of Nicaragua. Gen. Saenz has a large number of men and is marching on the Nicaraguan capital. His force consists of political exiles from Costa Rica, Salvador, and other countries.

Attempts will be made by President Zelaya to make the blockade of the Atlantic ports of Nicaragua effective, in order to meet the attitude of the State Department at Washington, which is that the ports will be considered open until Zelaya can maintain an effective blockade. According to information received here Zelaya, through his agent, Consul General Altschul, has purchased here a small steamer which is being equipped with several guns and turned into a coast guard. This is to be used for the patrol of the coast.

FELIX ADLER ON WOMAN SUFFRAGE

Doubts Ethical Benefit of Ballot for Men and Wonders How It Would Benefit Women.

VOTERS FOLLOW LEADER

It Might Be Well, However, He Says, to Give Women the Ballot to Restrain Their Excessive Influence.

Prof. Felix Adler spoke on woman suffrage in Carnegie Hall yesterday morning. He said in beginning his address that he had nothing to say that he did not wish the women interested in equal franchises to hear As a matter of fact, he had sent invitations to many prominent woman suffragists to be present, and they were out in large numbers. The entire force of the National and State woman suffrage headquarters attended in a body. Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont occupied a front seat with Mrs. Ida Husted Harper and Mrs. Anna Garlin Spencer of the Ethical Culture Society. Many woman suffragists belonging to local and other organizations were present, sitting in different parts of the hall. It was an unusually large meeting, apparently every seat in the house, up to the top gallery, being filled.

Prof. Adler spoke with feeling. He spoke highly of women. He believed in their influence, he said, and the personal expression of their opinions. He expressed doubt as to the ethical benefits of the ballot for men, and in view of that how women could be benefited by it. Would not the increased number of votes, by their very bulk, make evil more possible in a bad machine? he asked.

"I should like to disclaim, as I have done in announcing the subject, of speaking with authority upon a matter so complex and upon which there are so many differing opinions from men and women worthy of respect," said Prof. Adler. "It is a question of great ethical importance, which is my reason for putting it before you." He spoke of the reaction upon woman herself in giving her the ballot, and continued:

"The majority of women are indifferent to the franchise. If they had not been indifferent it would long ago have been theirs. The majority of the men are undoubtedly the same. The women interested are now asking men to join with the women in overcoming the indifference. Such a request came to me, which is my reason for making a public statement.

"I believe things are not what they seem. The ballot in the hands of men is not doing what it should, and I would not like to have the evil we now suffer increased by millions of voters unprepared to exercise suffrage. Things are not what they seem. We might say that if votes for men do not work as they should, why, men should cease to vote. As a matter of fact, many men have. A very bad Government is better than none, but that is no reason for making it worse.

"I can't help wondering that there should be this naive confidence in the value of the vote, independent of how it is worked. The great majority of the Republicans and Democrats follow their leader to the polls as the children followed the Pied Piper. There is an element of sport in our politics. We are interested to know how it will come out, like a game of ball. The masses work in a groove. I wonder if the women would work in the same way?

"Conditions are such now that educated and enlightened men have as little influence as women. I don't think educated and enlightened people could do much in the engine room, but they can do good work at the helm. Women exercise a great deal of influence now. One reason that it might be well to give them the vote would be that it would restrain their excessive influence. (Laughter.)

WHY WOMEN ARE UNHAPPY.

Because Home Making Isn't Taught in College, Says Alumnae Board.

At the annual reception and luncheon of the New York Branch of the Association of Collegiate Alumnae at the Hotel Prince George on Saturday it was pointed out as a fault of the higher education of women and the possible unhappiness of some college women's marriages that too little attention was paid in colleges to the study of the science of homemaking.

For two years, it was stated, the local branch has been studying the curriculum of colleges for women, in order to suggest changes which shall bring the college woman into better adjustment with her environment. The subjects in which there has been found to be inadequate instruction are personal hygiene, public health and sanitation, a study of the development and growth of the child, the family, history of art as applied to the home, status of women in industry, and political science.

The branch will turn this year to the study of New York City in order to ascertain what it already possesses and what it requires in matters of administration, philanthropy, and education; and to make a survey of the agencies at work in the field.

To this end a clearing house for educational and sociological interests among college women has just been established, known as the Bureau of Social Service. This bureau will endeavor to co-operate with the philanthropical societies and institutions working for the betterment of conditions in the city in any way in which the services of college women as an organized body can be found of value.

Jersey Forest Fires Cause Heavy Loss

It is estimated that some $50,000 damage was caused by the firest fires that raged near Branchville, N. J., for two days. The fires were extinguished after a hard fight by the fire wardens. The fire covered a territory of 400 acres of young timber reservation, consisting mainly of chestnut, oak, and hickory.

D. O. Mills Rests Comfortably.

D. O. Mills, father of Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, who is ill of gout at his home, 634 Fifth Avenue, was said last night to be quite comfortable. It was said that Mr. Mills was subject to frequent attacks of gout, which were not serious beyond the inconvenience which they caused him.

RAISE $5,000 FOR IRELAND.

Irish League Hears T. P. O'Connor Plead for Parliamentary Party.

The New York Municipal Council of the United Irish League gave a reception to T. P. O'Connor, M. P.; Capt. Edward O'Meagher Condon, and John O'Callaghan, National Secretary of the United Irish League, at the Lyric Theatre last night. The meeting was principally for the purpose of raising money to help Ireland in the coming general election. Large sums, it was said, have already been collected in Boston, Chicago, Columbus, and Philadelphia.

Mr. O'Connor stirred up his audience with a stirring recital of Ireland's ancient wrongs and brightened his speech with many amusing stories told in a broad Irish accent. Small baskets were then passed around and about $5,000 was taken in.

In his address Mr. O'Connor stated that landlordism had been almost wiped out of Ireland and that the inhabitants, except on the west coast, were in a better condition than at any time in the history of the country.

"In ten or fifteen years," he asserted amid cheers, "the very name of landlordism will be like some hideous nightmare and half a million men will be free. In a few years Ireland will have a Parliament of its own and its own capital."

CHAPELS FOR HOTELS SOON.

Necessary Because of the Greater Popularity of Hotel Weddings.

Owing to the increasing popularity of hotel weddings, some of the big New York hotels are considering the advisability of erecting small chapels to meet the demand. It is said that several of the Fifth Avenue Hotels will announce before long that chapels may be had for weddings the same as ballrooms are let for social events.

The nearest approach to a chapel in any hotel is at the Waldorf-Astoria, which, with newly acquired fittings specially for wedding ceremonies, will turn a room like the Astor Gallery into a chapel. Fifty weddings are booked already at the Waldorf-Astoria, for this season, and the fad is on the increase.

Weddings are also being booked upon a large scale at the Plaza, the St. Regis, and the Gotham, where arrangements are now being effected to turn any sort of a room into a chapel.

Many of the chapel fittings at the Waldorf will be used for the first time on Nov. 17, at the wedding of Miss Madeline Teresa Kuser and Bentley H. Pope. All the decorations will be ecclesiastical, the seats will be arranged in pew fashion, and there will be an altar. Even the lights will be regulated to shed a dim, churchlike glow, and hidden chimes will peal until a few moments before the ceremony.

The wedding of Miss Claire Cohu to Howard E. Green on Nov. 18 at the Plaza will be conducted on the lines of a chapel ceremony, as far as the decorations are concerned.

FUGITIVE HORSE THIEF BACK.

Harry Seckett, Caught in Toronto, Brought to Brooklyn.

Harry Seckett, who is also known to the police of Brooklyn as Seckerett, accused of being a member of a notorious gang of horse thieves, which operated in East New York and Brownsville last Spring, arrived at the Brooklyn Police Headquarters from Toronto, Canada, yesterday, a prisoner in the custody of Detectives Reynolds and Drum. He jumped his bail late in September, and until last Thursday, when he was arrested in Toronto, was a fugitive from justice.

Seckett was arrested on Sept. 25 in Hoboken, N. J., charged with stealing a horse and wagon said to be valued at $825, and owned by Antonio Pepe of 36 Junius Street, Brooklyn. He was loading a freight car with horses when arrested. One of the animals was identified by Pepe as his property. Following the arrest the police were able to restore six other horses to their owners.

When arraigned in the Adams Street Court, Brooklyn, the next day, Seckett pleaded not guilty. He was released in $3,000 bail, and a date set for his examination. He was missing when his case was called again. Through a letter sent by him to a friend in Brooklyn the police learned that he was in Toronto. The police in that city were notified and he was arrested on Thursday and held for the arrival of the two Brooklyn detectives.

The prisoner was locked up in the Adams Street Station last night, and will be arraigned in the Adams Street Court to-day.

MANY DEATHS FROM DUST.

Persons Exposed to It Show a High Percentage of Consumption.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—That approximately 25 per cent. of the deaths of persons whose occupations expose them to municipal or street dust and to general organic dust are due to tuberculosis is the fact disclosed in a bulletin prepared at the Bureau of Labor by Frederick L. Hoffman. Though the statistics studied by Mr. Hoffman indicate that municipal and general organic dusts are less serious in their effect than metallic or mineral dust, the consequences to health and life, he says, are sufficiently serious to demand most careful attention to the whole problem of dust prevention and removal.

Among occupations exposed to municipal dust those showing the highest mortality were drivers and teamsters, among whom 25.9 per cent. of deaths were from tuberculosis. Among occupations exposed to general organic dust button-makers showed the highest mortality, 37.8 per cent. of deaths in this occupation being from consumption.

HOLE IN HIS FOREHEAD.

Baby's Photograph and $6 In a Drowned Man's Pocket.

The body of an unidentified man, with what may be a bullet hole in his forehead, was found yesterday morning in the North River off West Fiftieth Street and taken to the Morgue, where an autopsy will be made to-day. The man was about five feet ten inches in height, well built, and had red hair and a reddish mustache. He wore a blue waistcoat, dark trousers, black striped shirt, white underclothes, black socks, and laced shoes. In his pockets were $6 and a photograph of a baby.

Metropolitan Starts Transfer Crusade.

The Metropolitan Street Railway Company announced yesterday that to-day it will begin a crusade against the illegal use of transfers. A special corps of detectives and lawyers has been engaged. The company asserts that each case will be prosecuted to the limit.

ANARCHISTS RECALL CHICAGO HANGING

Emma Goldman Planning a Memorial Meeting for Nov. 11, the Execution Anniversary.

LIKENS THEM TO FERRER

Episcopal Pastor Among the Speakers at Goldman Meeting in Harlem—Ready Sale for Her Pamphlets.

Emma Goldman and her subordinate Anarchists, with the assistance of "Doc" Ben Reitman, former "King of the Hoboes," gathered some 200 men and women at 15 cents a head into an assembly room at 107 West 116th Street and talked to them about the execution of Ferrer, the Spanish Anarchist.

She also took up a collection for the 5,000 prisoners in Montjuich Prison, sold a great many pamphlets, and gave notice of a meeting to be held at 206 East Broadway on Nov. 11 to pay honor to the five Chicago Anarchists who were hanged in November twenty-two years ago. The hanging of these Anarchists and the execution of Ferrer, said Miss Goldman, were deeds of the same kind, except that Spain was a despotism out and out, while America "pretended to be a free country."

Elliott White, an Episcopal clergyman from Worcester, Mass., took the stage after Miss Goldman and told how he had recently extended the use of his wife's lawn to Miss Goldman in that city so that she might deliver a lecture. The Worcester police had forbidden her to speak in a hall. Mr. White told how much he loved free speech.

The method of conducting last night's meeting shows how Miss Goldman, Alexander Berkman, "Doc" Reitman and perhaps one or two others get part of the money they live on. By 7:30 o'clock "Doc" Reitman was standing at the street door of the building at 107 West 116th Street, making sure that few of those who stopped to read the rudely scribbled signs telling of the lecture should get by. Presently the assembly room, rented upstairs, was filled to more than its capacity. Then he went up to sell "literature."

"Miss Goldman will be here in a minute," he explained. He and a little boy sold a crudely printed two-page pamphlet telling about Ferrer's life and trial for 5 cents.

"Now, if you came here to-night to hear Miss Goldman speak about anarchy," he said, smiling, "you will be disappointed. Her lecture to-night is educational. Very mild. If you want to know what her opinions are against the Church and State, they are in this pamphlet. Five cents a copy. It is entitled, 'What I Believe.' Only 5 cents."

He sold a number of these, and then appeared with another package, saying:

"Now, ladies and gentlemen, I suppose you came to hear about Anarchy. Well, you can understand better if you will read one of these pamphlets by Prince Peter Kropotkin. It is called 'Anarchist Morality.' Ferrer himself translated many of these pamphlets into Spanish. You ought to have one of these. They are only five cents."

"Many people are asking whether Ferrer was a Socialist or an Anarchist," he said a few minutes later, returning to the front with a new lot of pamphlets. "The Socialists claim him, but he wasn't of them. You ought to know just what is the difference between Socialism and Anarchy. This pamphlet, entitled 'Anarchy versus Socialism,' tells all those things. It is only five cents."

He sold a number of these, and then, prefacing each little trip through the audience with alluring speech, sold pamphlets on patriotism by Emma Goldman, others on woman suffrage by the same author, and attempted to sell some large books telling about the execution of the five Chicago Anarchists. He then held aloft a package of flaming red, thin pamphlets, and said:

"These magazines are called The Firebrand. They are written by a Texan who has just appeared after six years of silence. Ladies and gentlemen, this is 'hot stuff.' Miss Goldman's writings are masterpieces of literature, of course; they are tame beside The Firebrand. These magazines are 10 cents."

"Doc" Ben Reitman made ten or twelve trips through the audience and ended his labors with a pocketful of coin. He was manifestly pleased.

Miss Goldman gave her version of Francisco Ferrer's life and told about how he came to begin teaching and establishing his schools in Spain. She took occasion now and then to flame out against the Government, the churches, the newspapers, and the schools of this country. She said she and some other American Anarchists would translate some of the text books used by Ferrer for use in the same sort of schools in the United States.

PRIEST PLEADS PRIVILEGE.

So Answers Libel Suit Based on One of His Sermons.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Nov. 7.—A sermon alleged to have been preached by the Rev. J. D. McCormick, rector of the Church of the Immaculate Conception at Tuckahoe, is the basis for a suit for $25,000 damages for slander which has been brought against the priest by Mrs. Acker Collins, owner of a hotel at Waverley, Tuckahoe. The action will come up for trial before the Supreme Court at White Plains next month.

The complaint says:

That on or about the 28th day of March, 1909, at Tuckahoe, in the Church of the Immaculate Conception, the defendant in the presence and hearing of a large number of persons maliciously and with intent to cause it to be believed asserted that the plaintiff kept a noisy and undesirable hotel and violated the laws of the State of New York.

In the two answers filed at the office of the County Clerk at White Plains the defendant denies the allegations in general. In the amended answer the defendant asserts that as a priest it was his duty to deliver sermons, discourses, and admonitions and advice to the members of the church. He says: "Any words uttered by the defendant at such a church were privileged and used without malice toward the plaintiff."

LEADING ITALIANS AT DINNER.

Baron Des Planches Among Those Who Greeted Ximenes and Carlo.

Commendatore Ettore Ximenes, the sculptor, and Chevalier Carlo Barsotti, the Italian publisher, were entertained at dinner at the Hotel Knickerbocker by well-known local Italians last night for their part in the erection in Battery Park of a permanent memorial to Verrazzano, the Italian navigator. It is asserted that Verrazzano was the first man to enter the harbor of what is now New York, and, according to many, he was the first white man to look upon the waters of the Hudson River.

Baron Mayor Des Planches, the Italian Ambassador to the United States; Health Commissioner Darlington, and Antonio Zucca were among those who made speeches.

Gold medals were presented to Messrs. Ximenes and Barsotti.

POISONER ACCUSES WOMAN.

Declares That She Made Him Commit Murder for Money.

TOPEKA, Kan., Nov. 7.—Following a confession that he murdered Mrs. Mary Short of Topeka in the hope of gaining possession of her property, Fred Fanning to-day implicated Mrs. Minnie English in the crime, and she was arrested as an accomplice.

Fanning said that he put poison in Mrs. Short's coffee after Mrs. English had threatened to kill him if he did not kill Mrs. Short, and had told him how much poison to use. He said he gave her $1,400 of Mrs. Short's money. Fanning had planned to go into the restaurant business with Mrs. English.

DROWNED MAN IDENTIFIED.

Barber's Despair of Employment Made Him Drown Himself.

The body of the man found on the Manhattan shore of the North River on Saturday afternoon off 187th Street was identified yesterday as Adolph Stern, a barber, of 241 East Walnut Street, Louisville, Ky., through papers found in the pockets. A dispatch received from Louisville said that Stern left that city three months ago, with his wife, to seek employment.

A woman, who refused to give her name, called at the Harlem Morgue yesterday about 6 P. M., and made inquiries about the body. After receiving a full description, she declined to look at the body, but said that she would call to-day with a friend to view the body at the City Morgue, where it was to be taken.

Mrs. Bessie Stern, the widow, was found last night by a TIMES reporter in the apartment of Mrs. Raymes, 115 East Ninetieth Street, where she had been living with her husband for the last ten days. For some unexplained reason neither the police nor the Coroner's office had notified Mrs. Stern that her husband had drowned himself on Saturday afternoon, although that address was found in his pockets. When she heard the news Mrs. Stern became hysterical.

"We came here from Louisville ten days ago," said she. "My husband went out every day to look for work. The last time I saw him was on Saturday morning. He seemed very depressed then, but I had no idea that he intended to take his life.

"When he did not come home last night I went to look for him, and asked the police if they had heard of any one resembling my poor husband getting into trouble. They said that they had not heard of him. I have some kinfolk in this city, and will go and see them the first thing in the morning before I go to the Morgue to claim the body. He had a brother, Edward Stern, with whom we stayed in Louisville. I will telegraph him when we get some money."

Tradition was cast aside completely at the private exhibition for the Directors and officers yesterday preliminary to the opening of the annual Horse Show in Madison Square Garden to-day, and a spectacle was presented that touched the keynote of novelty for the show under the management of the reorganized National Horse Show Association of America. The great hall and arena wore an entirely new dress, in such contrast with the old garb of the horse show ring that it was hardly recognizable as Madison Square Garden, light and color replacing the sombre orange and black of the shows that went before and making a transformation in harmony with the new ideas and improvements that have come in with the new management. The glimpse of what the show promises for the week that the horse will claim fashionable and popular attention was a dress rehearsal for the officials of the association and newspaper men, late in the afternoon, following an informal luncheon. The great building, in holiday dress, was in readiness to the last detail for the public opening to-day, and, under a canopy of flowers, green foliage and an azure dome, a display of the picked horses of the show was held for guests, which, as another deviaton from custom, included many women spectators. Meanwhile, the last preparations for occupancy were completed, and the horse fair moved into the stable quarters in the Garden and buildings close to the scene of action in steady procession.

Long strings of blanketed horses, in Indian file, as racing horses move, were marched in, and strings of vehicles of different sorts made the Fourth Avenue end of the building their haven. Nearly all of the stalls were filled early in the afternoon, and the exhibitors not quartering their horses in the Garden took possession of near-by stables.

In the show ring some of the best features of the exhibition that will fill the week were rehearsed. The ring was about the only part of the hall's interior to hold its old aspect, but even there improvement had been made, and the lighter colored fencing, a firm foundation under the tanbark cushion of the arena, and new equipment for the ring officials, modeled on the fittings of the International Horse Show of Olympia, London, gave the inclosure a new aspect. Saddle horses and hunters were the first to occupy the ring, and the exhibition of jumping made it clear that a higher quality of jumpers than ever competed at the New York Horse Show will contest for the blue ribbons to be distributed through the week. Stiff obstacles—one an imitation stone wall that looked solid enough to be real and another a brush hedge backed by stout timbers—replaced the old knockdown jumps and tried the confidence of the horses that took them. There was universal admiration for the fencing skill of the hunters, the horses ridden by Lieuts. Heatherington and Montifiore of the visiting British army officers and exhibitors showing to especial advantage.

Others in the ring beside Lieuts. Heatherington and Montifiore were Lieut. P. G. Yorke of the Royal Horse Artillery, England, and Lieut. Wilfred D. Sifton, Corps of Guides, Ottawa, Canada, who had the mount of a superb fencer which is to exhibit during the week. Also in the saddle were T. English of the Genesee Valley Hunt, Dr. Shirley Carter, and Julian Morris of Virginia. George Watson, Jr., Arthur White, T. Hamilton, and P. J. Hart of the Richmond County Hunt Club. The harness horses were shown as a rule by grooms, but the exhibit included the stars of the great show strings.

Among the onlookers and Directors were Alfred G. and Reginald C. Vanderbilt, Judge W. H. Moore, Frederick T. Davies, Joseph W. Harriman, Arthur G. Leonard of Chicago, W. Goodby Loew, H. K. Bloodgood, R. P. McGrann, and James T. Hyde.

In the evening the visiting English officers, Major Beresford, Lieuts. Yorke, Montifiore, Walwyn, and Heatherington, were the guests at dinner of Frederick T. Davies at the Union Club.

The hunters in the ring in the afternoon included the importations, Lieut. Montifiore's Taffy, Lieut. Walwyn's Topthorne, Lieut. Yorke's Biddy, Lieut. Heatherington's Unity, Julia Morris's Keswick, E. H. Weatherbee's Taconite, and Lieut. Sifton's bay gelding, The Sportsman.

A cablegram arrived in the afternoon to the Directors of the National Horse Show Association from Lord Lonsdale, Chairman of the International Horse Show Association at London. The cable read:

With happiest recollections and great pleasure experienced at presence of American horsemen at Olympia this year, not only myself but all those connected with the International Horse Show, send you our sincere congratulations, and wish you every possible success.

Admiration was vouchsafed from all who saw the rehearsal at the marvelous change effected in the aspect of the building by the new scheme of decoration. In light blue and white flowers and electric lights, arches of greenery and old-fashioned lanterns of green glass, the scene suggested a garden in the full bloom of Summer.

The entire roof is draped perfectly flat, with sky blue background entirely covering the iron work above, excepting the trusses, which have been treated with green branches, autumn leaves and flowers, peach blossoms being prominent, with strings of electric lights in the festoons. The front of the upper and lower balconies, as well as of the arena boxes, have been faced with lattice work decorated with leaves and flowers and thousands of miniature electric lights. The lower boxes have all been paneled and finished in plain white, in front.

Through the centre of the ceiling are six huge white metal chandeliers, supported by heavy white chains and studded with electric lights, which are shaded by glass in soft colors, relieved by leaves, palms and colors. There is also a circle of bell-shaped candelabra suspended from the ceiling and decorated with foliage, from white columns decorated with rose leaves and flowers. The old-time pillars have been turned into columns of greenery, the metal covered from sight in casings of birch bark. From brackets on each post there hangs an old-fashioned lantern in green glass and bright with electric lights designed as candles.

Accessory features entirely new in the scheme of decoration of the restaurant and annex, which has been changed by arches and a pent house into the semblance of the yard of a coaching inn; and the club annex for members, which is in the concert hall. This is a bower of green foliage and quite delightful in aspect.

Larchmont Y. C. Celebrates Opening of Season with Dinner.

The opening shoot and dinner of the Larchmont Yacht Club were held under the most favorable weather circumstances and attracted a large attendance of marksmen. The honors of opening day fell to the Rev. Dr. Richard Cobden, while the week-end shoot was divided between R. L. Spotts, Kenneth Hooker, and Stuart Scott.

The dinner for the shooters' opening and club members was attended by nearly 100 members, and among the guests was Commodore Richards of the Atlantic Yacht Club and Sheriff-elect Henry Scharp of Westchester. The opening of the shooting season was a gala and busy affair for the club, and promises to be one of the chief attractions for the coming season. The scores for the week-end follow:

Goals—Hastings, Isaacs. Time of halves—Forty-five minutes.

In an inter-State league game between the Brooklyn Hibernians and the Reliance F. C., played at Washington Oval in Brooklyn yesterday, the Hibernians emerged winners by the score of 3 goals to 0.

At Dunwoodie the eleven of the champion Hollywood Inn Football Club defeated the Astoria Independents in an amateur league match by the score of 7 goals to 0, and at Van Cortlandt Park Clan MacKenzie and Columbia Oval each scored 3 goals in a tie match. Another game at Van Cortlandt Park was won by Bronx United from the Brooklyns by the score of 3 goals to 1.

Mohawk Eleven Downs the Army.

The football eleven of the Mohawk Athletic Club yesterday scored a victory over the United States Army combination from Fort Totten by a score of 11 to 3 at the protectory grounds, Westchester. The Mohawk players scored both of their touchdowns in the first half, and in the second period Waters dropped a goal from the field for the army team.

Detroit Defeats Havana.

HAVANA, Nov. 7.—The Detroit baseball team to-day defeated the Havana team by a score of 5 to 3.

New York Racing Ends To-day.

Horse racing for the season in New York under The Jockey Club rule will end with the programme to be run at the Queens County Jockey Club's Aqueduct track this afternoon. Because of the change in racing plans, which eliminated the meeting to have been held at Yonkers, the season has been curtailed suddenly, and the horsemen who have made metropolitan racing through the year will be forced to a hurried dispersal. The effect of the sudden close on the owners of the poorer class horses is apparent in the programme for the wind-up, with the biggest fields of the year, 105 entries being named for the six races to be run this afternoon. The movement of stables that will seek Winter racing already has begun, but the turfmen interested are those of the smaller establishments, as most of the big stables will go into Winter quarters on the Long Island tracks, according to custom.

YALE IS POINTED FOR HARVARD GAME

Princeton May Change Her Coaching System by Next Season.

PUNTING AT WEST POINT

Why Crack Players Fumble Fly Balls on the Army's Grounds—Harvard's Fine Team.

The Dartmouth-Princeton game has come and gone. With its advent had come much fear to Princeton hearts. With its departure, it is apparently safe to say, has gone much of whatever confidence in the Tiger eleven still reposed in loyal Princeton adherents.

From sturdy belief all during the season that shortly—they did not know just when, but shortly—the Orange and Black eleven would find itself, the feeling has now changed to fear. How can Siegling's team do to Yale, with the stalwart Blue defense that never crumbles and seldom gives between it and the coveted goal line, what it could not do to the so-called minor Dartmouth aggregation?

It is no breach of confidence to say that a change in the coaching system is more than likely for the football season which starts next September. Princeton—and this has been affirmed repeatedly this year—has the material of sterling individual worth. The drift of the talk in Princeton now seems to be along the lines inaugurated by Yale, that of making the Captain of one year head coach the next, thus founding a real school of football, easily adjustable to the vagaries of the game as the rules are changed. That is the principal result of the Dartmouth game, and if Princeton profits in this way by its ignominious tie of Saturday the 6—6 score will rankle less and prove perhaps, what it is now hard for Princeton men to believe it, a mighty blessing in disguise.

The Harvard-Cornell game ended with exactly the score almost unanimously predicted for it. It is being said now that the amount of fumbling which fell to the Crimson's lot is making the Harvard coaches sit up, but that is doubtless an exaggeration, just as is the statement that the Harvard attack Saturdy was not what it should have been. Harvard had the game copper riveted almost before it began. There were any number of Yale men watching every Crimson move. Why, then, show more than was necessary to give the team its necessary practice and hold Cornell safe all through?

The fumbling which is charged to O'Flaherty, it is said, was only what could have been expected after the way he muffed punts the previous Saturday at West Point. Now, in the first place, the punts of Dean, the Army full back, were exceedingly hard to handle, being of the low, hard, twisting variety. But there is another cause for unfinished handling of punts on the Army field. There is an unknown something there which makes the surest catchers of kicks on other fields look like the veriest novices when they appear on the cadet gridiron. It will surely be remembered that even "Tad" Jones, that coolest and most accurate of punt catchers, fumbled so badly in the Yale-Army game of 1907 that the coaches were compelled to take him out. And only last year "Eddie" Dillon of Princeton, one of the best judges and most deliberate handlers of kicks, found the atmospheric or structural conditions at the Point too much for him.

The Army field is almost barren of any background that lends perspective. It is not such an inclosure, bounded by steep-rising row upon row of seats, as graces almost every collegiate field, and outlined against which the distance, flight, and speed of kicks may be judged. Again, there is almost always a boiling mirage on the Hudson River, which a man facing north must look into. It is perhaps due to these conditions that men like Jones and Dillon fumbled punts that on any other field would have been pie for them. O'Flaherty, to be sure, has never been heralded as a good handler of kicks. But for a Harvard 'Varsity man to muff five out of seven kicks means something more than mere ineptness.

Yale beat Brown so easily that it may not be the good thing for the Blue that is now so confidently prophesied. Yale is the only big team in the country which has not been scored on this season, although Dartmouth's line is still clean of opponents' touchdowns. The New Haven coaches were undoubtedly hoping for a better Brown defense than the Providence team put up, and they expected something rather different in the way of a Brown attack. But the game is safely past, and now the big, fast Blue team will be pointed specially for the Harvard game.

In years gone by Yale has prepared for the Tiger and defeated him after a bitter struggle that was very enervating. Then the Harvard game a week later found the Blue eleven a trifle stale, very languid, and, on the whole, making a comparatively poor showing. Inasmuch as Harvard never had a better team than she has this year, Yale's ambition is certainly worthy of a big eleven. Incidentally, that spirit ought to make the Yale-Harvard game a truly Titanic struggle which will go down in football history as the greatest of all gridiron combats.

Pennsylvania fell into bad ways and a slump until "Danny" Hutchinson got back into the game, and then Lafayette's erstwhile advantage came to nought. The cup of victory was snatched rudely from Easton lips, and there was substituted for it that well-nigh bitterest of all pills, a tie game after herculean efforts that had promised the long-awaited victory. There never is so bitter a slip between assured and hoped-for victory as that which comes at the last moment and dashes high-raised hopes inertly to the ground. But Lafayette came a whole lot closer to the goal of her ambitions than Pennsylvania likes to think, and the Red and Blue coaches will now pound harder than ever preparing for the Michigan game of next Saturday.

Harvard Players in Good Shape.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 7.—Harvard came through Saturday's game without a mark. Minot's work was head and heels over his fellows, and he frequently made his interference appear slow by the ease with which he went through the opposition. The giant as a line plunger and an all-around player is in the same class with Coy, but lacks the remarkable leg of the Yale Captain, although he is no mean punter himself. One disappointment in the play from the spectators' standpoint was the woeful exhibition of both quarters, O'Flaherty and Baker, in the kicking line. O'Flaherty missed two chances for field goals by booting the ball against his forwards. Baker, when called on to punt, invariably drove the ball at the opposition about two feet above the ground. Whether this was by intent or chance was only to be inferred. None of his kicks sent that way was blocked. Then, too, the Cornell quarter vied with his crimson brother O'Flaherty in fumbling and misjudging punts, which slowed up the work of both elevens considerably. To-morrow the practice will be of the usual Monday variety, very light. The remainder of the week will find a more strenuous schedule on, with Coach Haughton, fresh from the Yale-Brown game at the helm, full of the Eli's strong and weak points. The line as it entered the contest Saturday is the expected selection against Yale, McKay probably being the only new man in it, relieving his substitute Hooper. L. D. Smith may give way to G. Brown at end, but this is doubtful.

The new score board was the subject of favorable comment, and when representatives of both elevens familiar with the men have it in hand its usefulness will be better demonstrated. The board as of old gives the lengths of gain and the downs, but in addition tells who takes the ball and in some cases by whom stopped. The players are numbered on the boards, and its bulletins are flashed by that method.

Yale Loses Good Player.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 7.—Yale's victory over Brown cost her one of her best players. "Dummy" Logan, right end and acting Captain most of the season, was to-day found to have wrenched his knee so severely that he will be unable to play against Princeton and probably against Harvard. As this is his senior year he has probably played his last game of football. Harry Vaughan, who was tried out in his place yesterday, will succeed him, and Brooks and Naedele will be used as substitute ends. Kilpatrick and Vaughan will start the Princeton game at end.

Yale and Harvard have practically come to an agreement about their officials for the annual game. There has been a hitch for weeks, but Percy Haughton, Harvard's head coach, came here to see Yale play Brown, and had a conference with Head Coach Howard Jones of Yale. After Haughton reports to the Harvard officials to-morrow the list will be announced. Yale football men decline to discuss the matter, but there is talk that Harvard stood out for W. S. Langford, Trinity, referee; William H. Edwards, Princeton, umpire; E. K. Hall, Dartmouth, field judge, and J. H. Hackett, West Point, head linesman. Yale men wanted Mike Thompson of Georgetown as referee.

Several Yale players will be sent into the country a couple of days to get on edge for the Princeton game. There will be only two days of scrimmaging this week, Tuesday and Wednesday. Practically no regulars will be in the line-up to-morrow.

Cornell Satisfied with Harvard Game.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, Nov. 7.—The Cornell football team was late in getting back to Ithaca to-day from Cambridge, where it played Harvard Saturday, a wreck near Worcester tying up the special cars for three hours. Consequently the student demonstration planned to hearten the eleven after the Harvard defeat was spoiled, the students waiting in vain at the upper station while the team came in at the lower station. The men were in good condition, and there were no serious injuries. Full Back Simson, who was taken out of the game because he was kicked in the head, suffered no serious consequences, while the others had minor bruises. The coaches and players were satisfied with the showing they made against Harvard, counting the Crimson eleven as the strongest on the field to-day. The coaches announced that the Cornell team had improved, and that the policy of steady development would continue. Cornell basing her all on the Pennsylvania game on Thanksgiving Day. Nevertheless, the coaches this week will drill the men in formations designed to meet the open play of the Chicago team, which plays here next Saturday.

KILLED BY A SURFACE CAR.

Hospital Attendant Ground Under the Wheels at a Street Crossing.

William Turner, 60 years old, a hospital attendant on Randall's Island, was knocked down and instantly killed by a First Avenue surface car yesterday afternon at the Seventy-second Street crossing. The accident was witnessed by many women and children, who screamed when they saw the unfortunate old man disappear under the front wheels of the car.

George Thompson, the motorman, of 340 East Ninety-sixth Street, who was arrested by Policeman Shreyer and taken to the East Sixty-seventh Street police station, refused to make any statement. He was charged with homicide.

Pasengers on the car were so upset by the accident that they declined to go any farther on the car.

THE INSURGENTS' CAMPAIGN.

When Mr. TAFT cast in his lot with CANNON and ALDRICH there were many in his party, very anxious for the President's success as a party leader, who felt that he had made a serious mistake in tactics, that, in the language of Lord SALISBURY, he had "backed the wrong horse." Undoubtedly he believed that he was acting in the interest of party harmony and efficiency. But his friends pointed out that he was offending men who could and would fight and siding with men who could not afford to fight if fighting were forced upon them. The insurgents were bound to resist; the standpatters, had the President sustained the insurgents in a real reduction of the tariff, would not have ventured to defeat all revision.

Events since the adjournment of Congress bear out this view. When the President started his long series of speeches with a needless indorsement of Senator ALDRICH, and followed it up with a rebuke to the insurgents, the latter very naturally regarded his course as a challenge. They have accepted it. On Saturday evening, in Chicago, at the very hour that Senator ALDRICH was speaking on the Finance Commission's plan to the Commercial Club, Senator CUMMINS of Iowa was defining the attitude and policy of the insurgents before the Marquette Club. And in no uncertain words. "Let it be understood once for all," he declared, "that we accept the challenge and are ready for the fight. Our struggle will not be to exclude any one from the Republican Party, but upon the principle involved. We ask no quarter and shall give none."

What is the "principle involved"? It is plainly stated by Senator CUMMINS:

> There are millions of Republicans who believe that tariff duties should not substantially exceed the difference between the cost of producing things here and elsewhere with a fair profit added. I believe they constitute a large majority of the party; but if they do not, they will in the near future. They will never quit the fight until they win the victory, and I warn the men who are so vociferous in their decrees of expulsion that they had better conserve their strength for self-defense. They will need all they have, and more.

This is not merely a declaration of principle. It is a programme of action. It is based on facts. The doctrine is that "which won the confidence and secured the support of the voters in the last National campaign." If Mr. CANNON, or, for that matter, Mr. TAFT, thinks that those who stand by that doctrine can safely be read out of the party, he will have eliminated a majority of the Republicans in every Northern State from the Ohio to the Rocky Mountains." It is very convenient to assume, as the President does practically assume, that the majority in Congress, under the leadership and manipulation of CANNON and ALDRICH, represent the majority of the Republican voters. But on this point the insurgents join issue. They propose not to be content with any secondary decision, but to carry the case directly to the party.

One obvious consequence of this policy must be that the new tariff—which Messrs. CANNON and ALDRICH pretend and the President hopes is a settlement—will be discussed from now until next year's Congressional elections in a very thorough fashion. The discussion will be popular and specific, not general and academic. It will be carried on within the Republican Party by men who, in their various States, know the party intimately and themselves are known. We call them insurgents because the term has come into general use and is handy. But in their own section they are by no means to be described by that term. They are regulars. They are in control. They have the body of the party behind them. And they are not only leaders but representative men, who stand for the sentiment and opinion of their party. Whether they can swing the National organization as against the powerful protected interests remains to be seen. But that, plainly, is what they have set out to do.

A NEW INSTITUTION.

The New Theatre was revealed last Saturday to a large number of representative men and women of this community as a splendid new institution in which New York must take great pride, and for the establishment of which New Yorkers should be grateful. One of the most perfect playhouses in the world—there is certainly none handsomer, more commodious, or more comfortable—has been built by a few citizens and turned over to the people for their aesthetic entertainment. The spoken drama has never before been so beautifully housed. As a gift to the people the New Theatre must first of all be considered.

Its management at the outset must be largely experimental. In the dedicatory speeches, in the addresses of Gov. HUGHES and Senator ROOT, it was considered only as a home for the spoken drama. Its use for opera was not touched upon. The betterment of the drama was the uppermost thought of the Founders in giving New York its new institution. Obviously it is a playhouse which ranks in dignity and permanent usefulness with the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the American Museum of Natural History, and the Public Library. Architecturally it meets the highest expectations. The beauty and appropriateness of its decorations are not matters of opinion. The equipment of its stage is perfect. Its managerial policies will be settled by experience, but the temple of the drama is finished and will stand.

A MESSAGE FROM GERMANY.

If one should try to sift from the "war talk" as to the designs of Germany the definite points on which it is based, the chief of them would be the aggressive utterances of the Pan-German organs; the desire of the German Government for colonial expansion, especially in South America; the ambition to crush the rival trade of Great Britain not only by industrial competition, but by rapid increase in naval power.

On Saturday evening the German Ambassador, Count BERNSTORFF, speaking in Philadelphia, made a specific, and we must suppose an authorized, declaration covering all these points. He described the Pan-Germanists as having "no importance at all," without "the slightest influence upon the Government," and by it regarded as "a very undesirable element of German journalism because they stir up ill-feeling against Germany by putting forth questions and aims that are quite beyond the scope of practical politics." The Ambassador very emphatically declared that the Germans have resigned themselves to the fact "that there is no more possibility of acquiring colonies suitable for emigration," and especially that "there is not the slightest intention on our [their] part to get a territorial foothold in the Western Hemisphere." He reinforced this statement by the philosophic reflection that colonies nowadays show "a growing spirit of independence which must some day lead from self-government to political independence." When that happened the mother countries would have no special advantage.

He explained that foreign trade was a pressing need of Germany since she had to buy much of her food and must pay for it in the products of her industries. But she had no wish to impoverish other nations. On the contrary, the richer they were the better customers they made; Germany itself was Great Britain's best customer, because Germany was prosperous. As foreign trade grew a navy was needed to protect it. This and this alone was the purpose and motive of the energetic increase of German naval force. On this point Count BERNSTORFF's explanation of German policy is not so reassuring as on the others. German trade on the ocean is perfectly safe so long as peace prevails, and even in case of war would practically be safe against any other power than Great Britain. We believe that there is no danger of a war with Great Britain, or one in which that Power is involved, unless it be provoked by Germany. If both nations stopped naval construction to-morrow, leaving Great Britain the stronger, it would be incredible madness on the part of that Power to engage in war unless forced so to do. The risks, in view of her enormous merchant marine, her "far-flung" colonies, her helpless dependence on imported food and the relative weakness of her land forces, would incalculably outweigh any possible gain unless her national existence were menaced.

POLITICAL SIDELIGHTS.

When travelers are interviewed abroad they are accustomed to unburden themselves of novel and illuminating views which they conceal within their bosoms when at home. Mr. BANNARD at Milwaukee, for example, discusses Tammany rather differently from commentators here. We are occupying ourselves with Tammany's weakness whenever the community chooses to unite against it. Not in more than one political generation has it been weaker than it showed itself in the past campaign, and it won the Mayoralty only because anti-Tammany voters preferred voting against each other to defeating Tammany. Against this exhibition of political fatuity is contrasted the discipline of the Tammany cohorts. The customary explanation of this is that Tammany's politics is based on sordidness and self-interest of the most enlightened sort, according to Tammany's lights. We are accustomed to think of Tammany's voters as being such because they are ignorant and venal. But Mr. BANNARD takes other views. It would be useless, he thinks, to seek to embarrass Tammany by ballot changes or election laws:

> The average citizen of the east side can scratch his ballot or pass a naturalization examination better than the average resident of Fifth Avenue. The citizens there are alert and intelligent, and these lectures and night schools and civic centres have made them so in a great measure.
> I do not believe that the citizens of New York have the power to deliver any lasting blow to Tammany—it is a modern feudal institution, and its work is going on all the year.

Therefore, it would seem, the "silk-stocking" districts must learn and play the game if they are to succeed, and they must keep eternally at it. The lesson is worth learning elsewhere. In Maryland the attempt was made to disfranchise negroes and aliens by an educational test, but its severity was almost equally exclusive of the white vote. A university professor tried it upon his advanced classes, and not a single student could answer the questions set for the universal electorate. The test, of course, could have been administered so as to pass those whom it was desired to pass, and to exclude those whom it was desired to exclude. This has been thought to be the object of various "grandfather clauses" in several Southern States. But this is rather a fraud upon the suffrage than raising the standard of suffrage. These cases show that success in politics depends upon knowing and observing the rules, rather than in devising rules to beat the other side, whatever its views and however it wishes to vote. The supineness and fatuity of the better classes in politics are as well worth noting as the assumed incapacity of the humbler portion of the electorate.

MR. ALDRICH AT CHICAGO.

Senator ALDRICH opened his "campaign of education" as to the financial problem with which his committee is charged at Chicago Saturday in an elaborate address before the Commercial Club. Apparently the education the Senator thinks that his hearers and the rest of the Nation require is in the immense difficulty as well as importance of the problem. He offered but slight hints as to the nature of the conclusions the Commission was likely to reach, and stated the problem itself only in very general terms. Although he deprecated the expectation of an early report, he expressed his confidence that one could be submitted to the third session of the present Congress, which will open in a little more than a year. That, unfortunately, will be a short session, in which action on so important a matter cannot readily be secured unless there is less contentious material in the report than is at all likely. If nothing is done at that session, the whole question will go over to the new Congress, and may encounter complexities growing out of political changes in the elections of next year.

There are certain indications, rather vague, as to the tone of the Senator's reflections on the task his Commission have in hand. He says, for example, that at the beginning of their inquiry he had the opinion that the question of note issues was more important than that of the organization of credits and the requirements of our banking system. He now thinks that the latter is much the more important. He calls attention also to the fact that in other countries than our own, with one exception, "the conclusion has been reached with unanimity that banknote issues should always be under Government control, or at least subject to strict Governmental restrictions and limitations, and that this can only be successfully done through one central and exclusive bank of issue." In passing the Senator expresses his doubts as to the feasibility of a system of branch banks in the United States, though he admits that the present practice of large central banks in their relations with affiliated local banks gives many of the advantages of branches.

On the whole it does not seem that the initial lesson in Mr. ALDRICH'S course of education is calculated to guide public opinion in any specific direction. Certainly it holds out little hope that the recommendations of his Commission will deal thoroughly with the plan of bond security for bank issues, or relieve our business of that awkward and often perilous ball and chain.

CRITICISM OF NEWSPAPERS.

Ex-Gov. PENNYPACKER of Pennsylvania has sternly expressed his views of contemporary journalism of the coarser and more depraved sort in the North American Review for November. The evils of sensational journalism are generally admitted. It does not seem that Mr. PENNYPACKER has exaggerated them. Journalists who are employed in making newspapers of the unsensational and decent sort may read his article without deriving from it the idea that he is their foe. His historical perspective may seem a little out of drawing, but every man is entitled to his own point of view. The lampoon, the printed scandal, the circulation of evil gossip, are not new. The printing presses work more rapidly in these days than they used to, and a much larger proportion of the people can read. That many of them read stuff that is not fit to read is unquestionably true. A great many newspapers of all kinds are printed, and, by and large, there is a great deal printed about the harm done by newspapers. One of the magazines, in its prospectus for 1910, announces a series of articles on "The Decline of the Influence of the Press," meaning probably the daily newspapers. A series of articles on the decline of the influence and literary quality of the monthly magazine would be equally interesting and instructive.

It may be argued that the influence of the newspaper press has greatly increased rather than declined. Mr. PENNYPACKER certainly thinks its influence for evil has increased, but that, after all, is only a matter of opinion. The truly typical newspaper of this hour prints all the news of each day without prejudice. In a political campaign the arguments of both sides, of all sides, are coherently presented. The old political newspaper saw no side but its own. Not only through its editorial page, but through its news columns it fought its party's battle. The reader of a well-conducted newspaper now has a clear view of the issues, and so far as the news columns are concerned is left largely to decide for himself. In this way, surely, a good newspaper exerts a wide and benificent influence. There are always two sides to every controversy, and sometimes more than two.

We regret to note that the retort discourteous has been made to Gov. PENNYPACKER in Philadelphia. Well-meant and well-expressed criticism should not be thus received. On the assumption that he has posed without justification as a public moralist, a list of books taken from the catalogue of his library of rare works, lately sold by auction, is printed with sagacious comment. Five of these would not be put into the hands of children, though children would never have the patience to read them. For that matter few habitual collectors ever find time to read the books they collect. If the Pennypacker library had no other specimens of salacious literature than these, Mr. PENNYPACKER was clearly not inclined to the collection of that sort of books. There are comparatively few collections of rare books that have not more of the sort. A collection of old English drama, not to speak of the Latin and Greek classics, would contain much viler stuff.

As a critic of the press Mr. PENNYPACKER should be received with respectful consideration. The much-favored fourth estate is in a sad way if it will not stand criticism. Let us have all of it that can be as moderately and intelligibly written as this. It makes good reading and enlivens the leisure hours of the journalist, even if the ordinary reader of newspapers does not care much for it.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

They Want None of Our "Assistance."

While it is a disappointment, it is not—or at least should not be—very surprising that the officials of the University of Copenhagen, with a suavity which but thinly veils a certain irritation, have declined the "assistance" in examining Dr. COOK'S records that was offered them by the American Geographic Society. As a matter of fact, they thought it was not assistance that was offered, but permission to watch the examination that was requested, and it is not very difficult to see why the Danes, who by this time fully understand the delicate and embarrassing situation in which their somewhat rash and hasty acceptance of Dr. Cook's claims has placed them, should view the request as an evidence of distrust.

Of course, there is nowhere any more real doubt of their intention to decide on its merits the case presented to them than there is of their competency to deal with problems of arctic exploration, considered in the abstract. Unfortunately, however, this particular problem cannot be considered in the abstract, because its solution, besides settling whether Dr. COOK did or did not reach the pole on a certain date, must also determine whether Commander PEARY or Dr. COOK earned a place in history as the first of human beings to attain the apex of the world. The talk of "glory enough for two" is utter nonsense, since the glory happens to be of a kind that cannot be shared. Only one man can do anything first; to equal him afterward is an achievement, but it is not that achievement, and such glory as it confers, if any, is of a wholly different sort.

The American board examined and pronounced adequate the proofs that Commander PEARY did what he said he did. Until after that decision was reached Dr. COOK'S name did not come officially before them, but now the task of judging other claims to priority has been imposed upon them, and though the Cook evidence had no bearing on the Peary case, some of the evidence which is now in their hands has a most decided bearing on the Cook case. So, for good reason, they want the Danes to be fully informed before announcing a verdict.

This is what the Danes are obviously inclined to resent. They would have been helped out of their dilemma had Dr. COOK promptly and heartily seconded the American request as soon as he heard of it, but that, alas, is not Dr. COOK'S method of acting. No more now than at any other time does he show any discomfort over postponement of the vindication which he says is coming, and he seems strangely content to remain under a cloud of suspicion. This might be the attitude of a very philosophic person conscious of innocence, but it would also be that of one who feared a full disclosure of the facts, and to most honest men it would be intensely irksome.

Hookworms Attacked Obliquely.

Bishop CANDLER, it appears, is not quite alone among Southerners in protesting against the formation and endowment of the Hookworm Commission by Mr. ROCKEFELLER. Several other voices have united with his in misguided antagonism to something which they view less as an effort to remedy an evil of National importance than as an imputation against the healthfulness and intelligence of the South. Perhaps it will help these unnecessarily troubled people a little to learn that The Medical Record of this city expresses doubt that the commission will really accomplish much in the way of a direct campaign for the extermination of the hookworm.

The personnel of the board, it thinks, does not hold out great promise of immediate practical results, and it bases this opinion on the fact that the Commissioners include only one zoologist and two physicians, both non-practicing, while the rest of its membership is made up of five educators, one editor, one consulting philanthropist, and two business men. There is here, perhaps, a trace, distinctly amusing, of professional pique, but The Record cordially admits that the board will through the publicity given to its acts and findings render an enormous service in bringing the sanitarians and health officers of the South to a realization of what enlightened sentiment all over the country expects them to do, for upon them rests the final responsibility. Disguising advice by putting it in the form of prophecy, The Record says of the commission:

> It will, no doubt, collect a mass of statistics showing the wide prevalence of the parasite, emphasizing the handicap, mental, moral, and physical, with which it loads the people of the South, and exposing the utter neglect of the first principles of hygiene by most of the small farmers, white and black alike, which is the root of the evil. This is what is needed to arouse the conscience of the people and to create a public opinion, without the assistance of which health officers can never effectually enforce their regulations.

No Teaching Was Necessary.

If policemen had a better understanding of dogs, those who over in Whitestone caught one of them running away with a package of rolls that had been left on a doorstep in the early morning would not have leaped to the conclusion that the animal had been taught to steal for its owner's benefit. It may be that they were right in holding this dog guilty of many previous "thefts" of the same sort recently reported from that neighborhood, and perhaps they were justified in shooting him, but the chances are that he was and had been "stealing" on his own account, either to supplement an insufficient dietary or to vary a sufficient one.

No doubt a dog could be taught to steal, but it would be rather difficult, and without instruction any dog will carry home food that he comes across in his neighborhood wanderings. Usually he brings nothing more valuable than bones, but that is only because he can so rarely find other things that seem to him worth carrying away. We know of one dog, owned by a family yet to be accused of dishonest tendencies, who in the course of his brief career has found and brought home from undiscoverable sources a large steak of good quality, a dressed chicken and a five-pound bundle of sausages. He very proudly displayed—and later ate—these objects of loot, and showed no signs of understanding the reprehension he received. The Whitestone dog probably was of equal innocence.

SERPENTINE MOTOR HORN.

Describes Effect of Its Use on Pedestrians' Nerves.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There is something new under the sun. This time it is a new automobile horn, and it is literally and figuratively a monster. It is in the form of an enormous snake, whose vast jaws are spread open and whose brightly gilded body extends along the whole top of the roof, and whose tail terminates in a bulb by the driver's hand.

Crossing the streets of New York is a nerve trying ordeal at best, and those whose vehicles crowd upon the poor pedestrian should not increase their terrors. This new and horrible monstrosity might be very dangerous to persons of nervous excitability upon whom it suddenly bore down with its racking, hissing warning. Some automobilists seem to strive to add to the unpopularity of an invention which has certainly come to stay, but was not intended primarily either to scare or to kill.

The fact is that many of the horns in use are very objectionable. There should be absolute uniformity, so that the particular sound would always mean a motor car, and not perchance a fire engine, or a railroad locomotive. The nerves of New Yorkers are subject to severe strains; pray let us be delivered from giant serpents. Take it off. L. W. BATTEN.

St. Mark's Rectory, Nov. 1, 1909.

"MORTAL MIND."

It Seems to be Powerful in Christian Science.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Is this glorious rumpus which is stirring up the Christian Science folk merely an "error," or is it the result of jealousy aroused by the profit and graft enjoyed by those higher up and closer to the old lady? If it is merely error we may expect the high priestess to work some kind of long-range soft pedal and smooth out this turbulency and dissension which is so unchristian and opposed to the peace preachings of an amusing cult.

It is probably not error, but a preliminary skirmish in the great fight for the accumulations of Mrs. Eddy which will occur when she dies (if she is not already dead.) In any event, it probably marks the beginning of the end of a most inexplicable delusion.

ALBERT R. GALLATIN.

New York, Nov. 5, 1909.

British Thanks.

H. M. S. Duke of Edinburgh, at Sea, 8th October, 1909.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Kindly allow me through the medium of your paper to express to the American people the gratitude felt by the ships' companies of the ships forming the British Squadron, which visited New York for the Hudson-Fulton Celebration.

We were impressed by your buildings and engineering work, your perfect system of communication, and the unique plan of your city, but the enthusiastic welcome we received, individually and collectively, wherever we went, in and about your city, has left a pleasant memory that will be retained for many years. Every one we met was most cordial and hospitable, and instead of our feeling as strangers in a strange land, we were immediately at home.

In leaving New York we thank the American people, and the citizens of New York in particular, for the great hospitality shown, the remembrance of which cannot fail to foster the feelings of friendship that exist, and make a lasting link to connect us with our American cousins.

Trusting that we may have the opportunity of reciprocating the feeling in the not far distant future,

"Oldest" Evangelical Church.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Walking to-day at Fifth Avenue and Twenty-ninth Street, I observed a sign on the church there which read: "Oldest Evangelical Church in America: Began Work 1614; Minister Installed 1628."

I wondered a little, thinking that the landing of a handful of fur traders in 1614 could hardly be held to be the "beginning work" by a church, which in the next breath declares that it actually deferred work till 1628, by which time, no doubt, there was plenty of work cut out for Dominie Megapoleusis.

No evangelical church polity contemplated doing without a clergyman, so the sign seems on the face of it to state not only what is not so, but also what is so to cure the error. For a definition of an "evangelical" church I am indebted to the Century Dictionary—presumably a good authority. I think Massachusetts must have the honor of the "oldest evangelical" church in America, for a clergyman, if I mistake not, was on the Mayflower; assuredly seven years did not elapse before the colony had one. Perhaps Dr. Burrell could have the sign changed, substituting "New York" for "America," and making no reference to the fourteen years' neglect.

ROBERT P. GREEN.

New York, Nov. 2, 1909.

A Correction from Mrs. Robbins.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May I ask you, please, to correct a statement made in an editorial, "The Mayor and the Women," which appeared in your paper this morning?

You state that I am a member of the New York State Association opposed to the extension of the suffrage to women. I am not a member of such an association, and I would like to say once for all that I have no affiliations whatever with any political associations or women's clubs. HELEN C. ROBBINS.

WATER COLORS OF QUALITY.

Works by La Farge and Other Noted Artists at Montross Galleries.

At the Montross Galleries is a very agreeable little collection of water colors and pastels by American painters, among which may be found a few examples of extraordinary quality and charm. The group of water colors by John La Farge, mostly of South Sea regions, is impressive and contains the beautiful subject "Rising of the Moon Over Aoral Mountain," in which the solemn tone of the twilight sky has a noble serenity, which seems to give the keynote of the Tahiti landscape.

There is a sparkling "Spring Morning" by Charles Melville Dewey, in which the greens are of the very essence of the moist Spring freshness, and the gray clouds trailing over the sky give the impression of diaphanous texture, through which the light is suffused. George Alfred Williams is represented by four examples, of which "The Great Dipper" is the most interesting. The blue night picture by Mr. Mielatz, "Rose Island Light," is an extremely serious piece of work, fine in composition and with much depth and beauty of color.

Henry C. White shows a night picture also and a lovely opaline beach scene. Childe Hassam's pastel, "The Mulleins: Appledore," is the handsomest in color of his four pictures. Mr. Tryon has three landscapes, of which the "Connecticut Hills in Winter" is perhaps the most beautiful. J. Alden Weir's "Morning" is the very wraith of the dawn and exquisite in its pale mists of color. A. Phimister Proctor is well and characteristically represented, and so are William M. Chase, Elliot Daingerfield, C. P. Gruppe, W. L. Lathrop, George W. Maynard, and Alexander Schilling. T. W. Dewing shows a graceful head drawn in silver point, which is loaned by James Parmelee, Esq.

CATHOLIC SCHOOL STONE LAID

Archbishop Farley Blesses Beginning of St. Columba's School.

The cornerstone of the new St. Columba's School, in West Twenty-fifth Street, between Eighth and Ninth Avenues, was laid yesterday afternoon by Archbishop Farley. The color guard of the Knights of Columbus acted as an escort to his Grace, as he reviewed a parade in which were represented the Society of the Holy Name, Knights of Columbus, St. Vincent de Paul, Catholic Benevolent Legion, Ancient Order of Hibernians, headed by the Catholic Protectory Band.

When the parade had passed the Archbishop laid the foundation stone, and blessed the American flag which will float from the new school. Men from the Sixty-ninth Regiment then raised the flag and fired a salute, while the school children's choir of one hundred sang "The Star-Spangled Banner."

The rest of the services were held in the church, and Mgr. Joseph F. Mooney, the Vicar General, President of the New York Catholic School Board, preached the sermon. Archbishop Farley conferred upon the congregation the Papal blessing.

FARLEY EXTOLS CATHOLICISM.

Archbishop Says It Is the Force We Must Rely Upon for Order.

Archbishop Farley preached at mass in St. Patrick's Cathedral in Fifth Avenue yesterday. It was his first appearance since his audience with the Pope at Rome, and a large congregation was on hand to hear the distinguished prelate. He brought with him the benediction of the Pope, which he conferred upon the throng at the conclusion of the second gospel.

In his sermon he spoke of the outrages committed upon the Catholic Church in foreign lands, making especial reference to the outrages inflicted upon the nuns in Barcelona. Continuing he said:

"In this great country the Catholic Church is regarded as the most conservative force, and upon which public order must rely in its last analysis, because its teaching is law abiding and it has control of the hearts of the people."

NEW BOWERY MISSION OPENED

Quarters at 227 Bowery Are Dedicated —No Debt on Building.

The new Bowery Mission at 227 Bowery was dedicated yesterday. It is a four-story brick building, with stained glass windows and an ornamted facade. It is well ventilated on the suction-fan and purifying chamber system, and the latest improvements in sanitation have been installed throughout. The establishment contains a dining hall, kitchen, dormitories, and writing room.

Two features of the mission are the labor bureau, which during the past twenty months has secured employment for 6,000 men, and the medical department, which Dr. Forbes of Columbia University will attend for an hour daily to give advice gratis.

Dr. Louis Klopsch, President of the Bowery Mission, in declaring the new building open yesterday, announced that every account in connection with the erection of the building had been paid, and a comfortable balance was left over.

Church Bells and Consciences.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It seems to me that the objection raised from time to time against the ringing of church bells emanates chiefly from people whose consciences are troubled when they are thus reminded of a duty they are trying to forget.

"Aye, Aye" was evidently one of the six people he counted in the pews, and if the ringing of the bell served to bring him and the other five there it was not rung in vain.

Brooklyn, Nov. 2, 1909. A READER.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am one of the ayes who will come in with "H. H. H." and "Aye Aye" on an ordinance against the church bell rackets. My case goes them ten better on noise.

There is a bell on St. Joseph's Church, Washington Place and Sixth Avenue, which rings on week days at 6:30 A. M., and at frequent intervals during the day for the parochial school in connection with it. The last bell is at 7:30 or 8 P. M. Sundays it commences at 6 A. M., and rings each hour until 1 o'clock—the last at 7:30 or 8 P. M. A SUFFERER.

A Conundrum.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Some time ago down in Tennessee the following Biblical conundrum stirred up various Sunday schools and other religious bodies to discover the answer: "A character in the Bible, whose name is not mentioned, whose death was unlike that of any one else, whose body never saw corruption, a specimen of whose winding sheet is found in every household, and the cause of whose condemnation has increased the popularity of a modern author." That's the proposition, and I would like to know the answer. Can any reader of THE TIMES make it plain? L. J. W.

TO MY SADDLE-MATE.

Let us saddle our horses, lad,
And canter out and away—
From the haunts that we know are mad—
O'er the big, wide, silent way!

'Tween the rise and the set of sun,
There's a journey for you and me.
Let it be where the green miles run.
Let it be where the trail is free.

Let us sleep when the stars awake.
Let us wake when the stars grow dim.
Let us hitch to the golden stake,
Beyond the horizon's rim.

For, oh! it is in our power!—
A measure of living gained;
A desire fulfilled each hour,
Or a worthy point attained!

Then why do you look so sad?
Up, boy! 'Tis the break of day.
Let us saddle our horses, lad,
And canter out and away!

MONTEFIORE HOME TO MOVE NORTHWARD

Present Institution Overcrowded and Directors and Patrons Respect Objections to Location.

NEED OF $700,000 MORE

President Schiff Suggests Erection of Modern Hospital Buildings and a Branch for Advanced Cases.

It was announced at the twenty-fifth annual meeting of the Directors, patrons, contributors and donors of the Montefiore Home, Broadway and 138th Street, yesterday that plans are being formulated for the erection of a larger home in a more remote section of the city. The present institution, the President, Jacob H. Schiff, said in his address, was entirely inadequate to the demands upon it. Moreover, complaints had been made by persons living in the vicinity of the institution. If enough money is forthcoming, it will be abandoned and a new one erected nearer the northern city line.

Those present unanimously voted in favor of the removal of the home, and an appeal was sent out for contributions. President Schiff said that a new institution would cost in the neighborhood of $1,000,000.

"We are now taking care in the city buildings of about fifty advanced phthisis cases," said Mr. Schiff; "but as this provision has proved entirely inadequate, and also because a certain, even if slight, danger from contagion to the other patients cannot be entirely avoided, we are considering the erection of separate buildings at Bedford, Westchester County, with room for 100, not to be in immediate connection with the present sanitorium building. If we should decide to carry this project into effect, we shall likely for some time to come be in a position to satisfy all reasonable demands for the admission of advanced consumptives whom it is most important to remove from centres of contagion where they become more or less a danger to the health of the entire community.

"We are yet hesitating, not so much because of the first cost of this new construction, but more on account of the considerable increase in annual running expense this will entail; but if Montefiore Home is to continue to adequately do the work for which the community has called it into existence a quarter of a century ago, its Trustees should be enabled to make this urgently needed provision."

Mr. Schiff went on to say that criticism had begun to make itself felt in the neighborhood of the institution because they were not able to prevent inmates from strolling outside the grounds and because they couldn't seal up the windows to insure quiet. He thought the time had come to move the institution further north, to the edge of the city, and to erect modern hospital buildings. Mr. Schiff asked for the whole-hearted support of the entire Jewish community in carrying out the project.

Mr. Schiff stated that the value of the present building and land was about $500,000, but in addition they would need $700,000, of which $200,000 will be required for the proposed annex at Bedford for advance consumptives and $1,000,000 for new land and cost of construction.

During the past year, Mr. Schiff stated, 1,104 patients had been provided for in the city and countryy sanitariums, but 1,472 out of 2,116 applications had to be declined because of lack of room. The income from all classes of contributions, he pointed out, has been $103,384.52, while the total cost of maintenance has been $130,166.20, and the shortage had to be made good from funds desired for other purposes.

A vote of thanks was given the Directors and Trustees, and resolutions expressing regret at the resignation of Dr. Henry S. Oppenheimer as President of the Medical Board and the withdrawal of Samuel Untemeyer as a Director were passed.

Among the original Directors who helped found the institution twenty-five years ago, and who were present yesterday, were Sigmund M. Lehman, Henry Solomon, Isidor Straus, and A. B. Solomons. The following Directors were reappointed to serve three years: Martin Erdmann, Henry S. Herrman, Arthur D. Wolf, Kaufman Mandell, Julius Robertson, Samuel Sachs, Henry Solomon, Fred M. Stein, Leopold Stern, Israel Unterberg, and Adolph Liebmann.

DR. HIRSCH TALKS ON REFORM.

Judaism More Legal and Less Religious, He Says.

The Rev. Dr. Emil G. Hirsch, rabbi of Sinai Congregation, Chicago, son of the late Dr. Samuel Hirsch, one of the pioneers in Jewish reform, spoke on "Reformers and Reformations" yesterday, under the auspices of the Free Synagogue, to a congregation that filled the Hudson Theatre, in West Forty-fourth Street.

Dr. Stephen S. Wise introduced Dr. Hirsch with the statement that the services had special reference to the centenaries of Dr. David Einhorn and Rabbi Samuel Adler, who were the leaders of the Jewish reform movement. Samuel Adler was the father of Prof. Felix Adler of the Ethical Culture Society. Of Dr. Einhorn and Rabbi Adler Dr. Hirsch said:

"We owe to them that we are free; we owe to them that we dare speak as we see and think of the rights of men. They taught the world that no matter what wealth may threaten and menace and men may say, man may speak the truth.

"We are like geese, especially when a bank account takes a part in the affairs of man. If a member with a bank account thinks orthodoxy better than conservatism, men flock to orthodoxy, and if the bank account wants more radicalism, then men will quickly turn and flock that way."

Judaism was not the Jewish religion, said Dr. Hirsch, but the law, and as developed it became more legal and less religious.

"In our country," he concluded, "they talk a great deal about Judanized or Americanized. There is no antithesis. Our Judaism cannot be strengthened without there being more Americanized patriotism, and the latter cannot be an injury to the conscience of Judaism."

GIFTS TO BROOKLYN CHURCH.

Bishop Burgess Dedicates Grace Church Memorials Costing $25,000.

Memorials costing $25,000 in Grace Protestant Episcopal Church, Hicks Street and Grace Court, Brooklyn, were dedicated yesterday by Bishop Frederick Burgess, head of the Diocese of Long Island.

The memorials consist of a new west doorway, the gift of Miss J. J. Pierrepont; a new north doorway, presented by a giver whose name has not been made public, and ten gray sandstone columns, replacing old ones of wood, the gifts of H. E. Pierrepont, Mrs. W. Mynderse, E. H. Litchfield, Miss A. J. Pierrepont, Mr. and Miss Whitehouse, Mr. and Miss Sanger, R. S. Gould, Miss Mary Benson, and J. F. Halsted.

Ecclesiastical Relics from Cuba.

The Rev. John J. Dunn, Director of the Society of the Propagation of the Faith, has received as gifts from the Rev. Francis Gomez, Vicar of Baracoa, Cuba, an ecclesiastical flag of beaten silver that is said to be four hundred years old and a small brass ablution cup dated 1767. Father Gomez is at present in the United States trying to collect money for his missions.

Church Service for Deaf-Mutes.

A week's mission for deaf-mutes was opened yesterday afternoon in St. Alphonsus's Roman Catholic Church, West Broadway, between Grand and Canal Streets, to continue for a week, with services every evening. The services will be conducted by the Rev. Thomas Gale of the Redemptorist Fathers, who converses in the sign language.

NEW YORK TURNING FROM RICHES TO ART

City Intellectualizing Itself, Says London Times Critic, Writing of New Theatre.

AUDIENCE IMPRESSES HIM

None to be Found Anywhere More Aristocratic, More Brilliant or More Discriminating, Walkley Says.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Monday, Nov. 8.—The Times makes a special feature of a cabled description more than a column in length of the opening of The New Theatre in New York by its well-known dramatic critic, A. B. Walkley, who begins his dispatch by saying it was well worth while facing the luxuries and lengthy menus of a modern Atlantic voyage to see the magnificent palace in Central Park West. Some of Walkley's views will be interesting to New Yorkers on the "as others see us" principle.

"Gov. Hughes," he says, "talked about democratic America and the importance of fostering art amid the materializing influences of democracy, and the democratic crowd he addressed, which, to the English eye, looked more aristocratic than Mayfair and the Faubourg St. Germain in one, languidly applauded.

"With all deference to Gov. Hughes, it is to the intellectuals, I surmise, rather than to the people, in a democratic sense, that The New Theatre will make its appeal. Multi-millionaires have established it, but it is the 'high brows' who will enjoy and keep it alive. The fact is that New York, a little blase with its riches and a little weary of its material magnificence, is bent just now on intellectualizing itself.

"'We want our people,' said the Governor, 'to have the best that stage and museum and academy can afford.' The collocation was significant. I have seen something with my own eyes and have been told more of the great determination of New York to get in characteristically rapid fashion to the limit in scientific and artistic opportunity. This New Theatre scheme, to be rightly understood, must be seen as part of a great intellectual movement conspicuous to-day all over the United States of America, whose citizens found universities and museums as naturally as ours found families, but to be noted, I am assured, at its maximum energy in New York."

After some examination of the question whether The New Theatre will prove really an active force in the life of New York, The Times critic says:

"The audience at the final rehearsal of 'Antony and Cleopatra' last night, in the discrimination of its applause, seemed to me as fastidiously critical as a repetition generale audience at the Theatre Francaise in Paris. Indeed, it looked more like a Gallic than an Anglo-Saxon audience. The tier of Founders' boxes all around the back of the dress circle, like the loges de balcon at, say, the Paris Renaissance, helped the illusion, but Paris, and for that matter London, outside of Covent Garden in the season, could show no spectacle so brilliant as this New York crowd, such a display of aristocratic beauty in the women, such a blaze of diamonds. All New York, socially speaking, was there, and it was a sight worth seeing."

CHANGE OPENING HOUR.

Curtain Will Go Up in the New Theatre at 8 Instead of 8:30.

The management of the New Theatre was busy yesterday getting ready for the real opening of the house to-night, when the first performance of "Antony and Cleopatra" will be given as the start of the regular season. There were no rehearsals yesterday, though several of the actors called at the theatre. The only change in the plans for to-night's opening concerns the hour of starting the play. The curtain will rise at 8 o'clock instead of 8:30.

Winthrop Ames, the Director, was in his office all the afternoon. He seemed well satisfied with the results of the first public inspection of the playhouse.

"The management of the theatre and the public will have to learn the house. The theatre is new, untried in every way, with a new type of auditorium, and experimenting is needed. What we wish is to find out what pleases the public, and then to do that thing," I think the idea of the circulation will be liked." Mr. Ames was referring to the wide corridors and promenades. "To give the audience an opportunity to walk about and meet friends, instead of making them sit in one place for two hours and a half, ought to add to the artistic as well as the physical enjoyment of a play.

"Whenever possible we shall have an intermission about the middle of the play, long enough to allow the people time to walk about and return to their seats before the curtain rises. Whatever trouble there may have been Saturday in the acoustics will have been eliminated, most likely, by Monday night."

Julia Marlowe was too tired yesterday to see any one. She sent word that she did not care to say anything about the opening of the theatre until after Monday night's performance.

Plays Must Be Well Acted.

Mr. Sothern was very tired after the strain of the public rehearsal Saturday night, which had been preceded the day before by a company rehearsal lasting almost eighteen hours.

"About the future of the New Theatre and its possibility for success, the public knows as much as I do," he said. "The success of any theatre depends, of course, upon its providing entertainment for the public. Nobody will go to a theatre to be bored. The New Theatre must be like every other theatre in this respect, for a beautiful house won't be enough to bring audiences. There must be the plays, and, above all, the company.

"There's one quotation that is generally a misquotation. It is 'The play's the thing.' The play, alone, isn't the thing. I should put it this way: 'The play well acted is the thing.' It is the acting that counts, and it will be the acting in the New Theatre that counts. Classic plays appeal to the people, if they are well performed, but no one would go to see 'Hamlet' or 'Othello' or any other Shakespearean play for the sake of the play alone. Miss Marlowe and I have played three engagements at the Academy of Music, with the same classical repertoire, and each was been better than the one preceding. I have departed from the more modern plays almost entirely, and I have found that the old pieces have been financially successful. The New Theatre need never lack for classical plays, and it is, of course, the hope of every one interested in the New Theatre that such plays be kept a part of the repertoire.

"The New Theatre is the most magnificent thing in the history of the drama, and those who have made it possible deserve the thanks and gratitude of the public and of actors."

Forbes-Robertson, who is closely interested in the proposed Shakespeare memorial theatre in London, had this to say yesterday about the opening of the New Theatre:

"It is an enterprise that will affect the drama all over the world. Its success will do much toward making successful our plan in England. The view I had of the building last Saturday makes me feel that there is no playhouse in the world that can compare with it for beauty or for equipment, and it would seem that it has every possibility of success."

Many telegrams of congratulation were received Saturday night and yesterday. One was from J[illegible]off, playing [illegible]

Rogers Winthrop, Secretary of the Founders, who is now in Paris. Arthur Wing Pinero, the London dramatist, cabled "Every good wish" to the Founders; Eleanor Robson telegraphed from Chicago, Adeline Genee sent a message from the New Amsterdam Theatre, and Edward Sheldon, author of "The Nigger," soon to be produced at the New Theatre, sent his congratulations.

Last night the President and officers of the Founders gave a dinner at the Union Club to A. B. Walkley, the dramatic critic of The London Times, who came to America to inspect the New Theatre, and who will return to England to-morrow morning. The officers present were William K. Vanderbilt, Clarence Mackay, William B. Osgood Field, and Otto H. Kahn. Others who attended were Wm. Archer, dramatic critic of The London Tribune; Edmund L. Baylies, August Belmont, W. De Lancey Kountze, Winthrop Ames, Paul D. Cravath, Lee Shubert, Archer P. Huntington, Eliot Gregory, Henry Walters, Norman Hapgood, Charles Dana Gibson, John Corbin, and Edward Hamilton Bell.

THE NEW YORK SYMPHONY.

First of Its Series of Sunday Concerts Under Walter Damrosch.

The season of the New York Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Walter Damrosch began yesterday afternoon with the first of the series of Sunday concerts. Because The New Theatre was not quite ready to be given over to the orchestra and its audience for the afternoon, the concert was held in Carnegie Hall; the rest of the series will be given in the theatre. There was a large audience, one of the largest that has attended Mr. Damrosch's Sunday performances, whose interest in the music seemed to suggest a growing disposition on the part of lovers of sympphonic music to give up Sunday afternoon to the hearing of music. It was cordial in its greeting to Mr. Damrosch on his reappearance before his orchestra.

The programme was an interesting one and embodied at least one of Mr. Damrosch's most successful acquisitions in his search for new compositions, Sir Edward Elgar's Symphony in A flat, which he played twice in New York last season. The work is very well worth a rehearing, and is assuredly one of the finest of recent compositions in the form of the symphony. It is an intensely serious work, such a one as the last oratorios that first established Elgar's repute among the foremost of English composers; and it has something of their deeply spiritual and mystical quality.

It also has some of their defects. Like them, he has packed it very closely with matter; the listening demands the most concentrated and unremitting attention for an appreciation of his fine and nobly sustained ideal. He has made little or no concession, even in the "allegro molto," a movement that stands in the place of a scherzo, to the lighter mood, by lascivious pleasings of any sort. There is little of the sensuous or of warmly spontaneous song in the adagio. We feel ourselves in truth, in the atmosphere of "The Apostles" and of "The Kingdom."

Elgar's music in this symphony has a distinct and unmistakable artistic physiognomy of its own, which is essentially his. His thematic material is wholly characteristic, and so is his use of it; and in both may be found the deficiency that makes this music fall short of the greatest and most vital. Some of his themes still seem often to lack pregnancy and sharp definition, and certain of them even musical beauty, the quality of poignantly reaching the heart and transporting the imagination. And plastic though they are in his hands, the listener is sometimes perplexed by what seems to be a lack of logical development, a development that seems to come inevitably from what has preceded and that leads further. The composer loses himself in abstractions.

But these reservations made, the symphony impresses itself more and more deeply on successive hearings. The composer's material is so abundant, much of it is so fine and is treated with so much of mastery and wrought into such a noble and stately fabric that on the whole it exercises an indescribable power. There is a wonderful wealth of instrumental color in it, inumerable touches that only a master could have evolved.

There is a notable skill in the treatment of the strong theme that, employed in the first movement, returns in more or less completeness and in various guises and transformations through all the movements; and in the manner in which use has been made otherwise of the "community of theme" between one movement and another. The adagio is, perhaps, the fullest blossoming of pure musical beauty that the symphony can show, austere as it is; the embodiment not only of the deepest thought, but also of the deepest feeling; and the finale is also music noble and truly felt, but perhaps the portion of the work most severe and most difficult of access.

The performance of this remarkable work was in most ways excellent; it had greater freedom, and hence greater expressiveness than that which Mr. Damrosch gave last year, and the orchestra filled its measures with the richest instrumental color. The symphony was heard with profound attention, and the applause seemed to indicate that it had moved the audience deeply.

The second part of the programme brought forward two pieces new to New York, a suite of ballet music selected from music written by Mozart for a Parisian pantomime, "Les Petits Riens," and a Russian song by Rimsky Korsakoff. The ballet music, which was composed for a friend in Paris, when Mozart was there in 1778, was performed at that time under the friend's name and was then completely forgotten till a French musical investigator found it in the library of the Opera in 1872.

The four numbers that Mr. Damrosch played are agreeable and the andante and pantomime have something of Mozart's charm, but on the whole it must be confessed that their resuscitation was not an important musical event. Rimsky Korsakoff's "Russian Song" is an instrumental arrangement of folk tune, harmonized and set in an orchestral garb that shows not much of the finesse with which he usually wrote.

HORSE SHOW INRUSH ON.

Hotels Already Crowded—Decorated in the Association's Colors.

Special decorations have been prepared at the big hotels for the Horse Show, the colors of the newly organized association predominating. Visitors from out of town arrived yesterday at several hotels to find they could not be accommodated on account of the inrush.

Three of the crack army riders of Great Britain, who are to compete for prizes this week, are registered at the Waldorf-Astoria. They are Major the Hon. J. G. Beresford of the Seventh Hussars, P. G. Yorke, Royal Horse Artillery, and C. F. Walwyn. The Waldorf-Astoria Cup has been placed on exhibition in a glass case in the lobby on the Astoria side.

Among those who arrived yesterday at this hotel to attend the show were Secretary Franklin MacVeagh, Mrs. W. H. Singer of Pittsburg, Rear Admiral Bailey, Mr. and Mrs. R. P. McGrann of Lancaster, Penn., and William Du Pont and family from Wilmington, Del. C. W. Watson, one of the main exhibitors, is also stopping there.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Pruyn of Albany came to the St. Regis yesterday; also E. V. Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. George S. Dearborn, Mrs. Malcolm Caruthers, Mrs. R. D. Foote, and Albert E. Gallatin.

Alfred G. Vanderbilt, who has a suite at the Plaza, intends to tool a coach load of friends from the Plaza to Madison Square Garden during the week.

The Astor and Knickerbocker are preparing for the restaurant overflow. In many instances reservations have been made for supper parties, following the performances at the Metropolitan and Manhattan and the Horse Show.

Other hotels entertaining Horse Show visitors are the Gotham, Holland House, the Wolcott, Savoy, Netherlands, Breslin, the Hoffman House, the Belmont, and the Manhattan.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

William Faversham has arranged to return to the Lyric Theatre for a special engagement in "Herod" after he has fulfilled his engagements in Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, and other large cities.

The initial performance of "The Lottery," a new comedy by Rida Johnson Young, with Jameson Lee Finney in the leading role, will open at Stamford, Conn., next Saturday night. The cast will include Robert Mackay, Ethel Winthrop, Louise Galloway, Julia Hay, Helen Lowell, and Mary Leslie Mayo.

The Shuberts announce that Clyde Fitch's last play, "The City," will open at the Hyperion Theatre, New Haven, Conn., on Nov. 15. It was Mr. Fitch's wish that this theatre and town be selected for the opening of the play. It will be brought to New York as soon as there is a suitable theatre vacant for it.

These officers were elected last night at a meeting of the Treasurers' Club of America: President, James H. J. Scullion; Vice President, Joseph W. Cone; Treasurer, Jed F. Shaw; Financial Secretary, L. A. Morgenstern; Recording Secretary, Walter M. Cox; Governors, Max Hirsch, Earl King, Ralph W. Long, Sol De Vries, Joseph Silverman, Joseph A. Pile, and Jerome B. Flynn.

The Astor Theatre will be closed to-night and to-morrow for final rehearsals of "Seven [illegible]

HOW KREISLER FINDS MUSICAL NOVELTIES

Violinist Noted for His Varied Programmes Tells How He Came by Forgotten Works.

UNEARTHED ONE IN A PALACE

Made Notes from It on His Cuff and Bought the Manuscript Later—Few Composers Write for Violin Now.

For some years the programmes of Fritz Kreisler, the Viennese violinist, have been looked upon as models of their kind. While many violinists have been content to play the technical display pieces of Vieuxtemps, with an occasional dash at Bach, and usually a concerto at the beginning and end of the programme, Mr. Kreisler has made up at least two sections of his programmes with short numbers by composers of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. Where Mr. Kreisler discovered these pieces, which have always succeeded in charming audiences, and why nobody else has played them are questions which hitherto may have mystified many people. To a reporter of THE TIMES Mr. Kreisler yesterday explained the matter.

"Modern violin music is very difficult to find," he said. "I discovered that some time ago. Also I am a collector—a collector of everything that you can imagine. A sale of old furniture, of porcelain, or books will always attract me. Once in Italy I was invited to inspect a collection of old things in a certain palace. I looked carefully through the room, admiring the objets d'art, until in one corner I discovered a glass case, in which reposed several manuscripts.

"One of these manuscripts was in musical notation, and glancing at it carelessly I saw that it was an extremely beautiful melody. I have a good memory, and I memorized it as well as I could and with the aid of some notes I made on my cuff I was able to carry away a fairly good idea of it. However, when I played the melody over on my violin, when I had returned to my hotel, I found that there were certain things lacking. I went back again the next day, only to discover that the owner had put a cover over the pile of music. I could see nothing. However, the family who owned the collection was poor, and I finally managed to buy the manuscript. I found that all of the music was beautiful, some of it quite out of the ordinary.

"This was only the beginning of my collection. Other pieces I discovered in an old convent in the South of France. I have altogether fifty-three manuscripts of this sort in my possession. Five of them are more or less valueless. Forty-eight of them are gems. Naturally, this music was not all written for the violin. I have arranged some of it for my instrument. I have made a few minor changes in the melodies, and I have modernized the accompaniments to some extent, but I have tried to retain the spirit of the original compositions. Nineteen of these forty-eight melodies which I have arranged have found their way to my programmes, and they have never been played by any one else.

"Many times I have been urged to publish them, but I have always answered, 'To what end? Why should I give my work to some one else?' One of these old pieces was published by a European firm, but I was quite able to prove my rights in the matter. You see, the publisher claimed that he, too, had a manuscript. Unfortunately a musician had taken it down from hearing me play it, and as I had made many changes in the original it was easy to prove that the publisher had never seen the manuscript.

"In this list are many of the pieces which have attained great popularity—Porpora's 'Menuet,' the 'Chanson Louis XIII. and Pavane' of Couperin, and Martini's 'Andantino.'

"At last I have been prevailed upon to publish the nineteen pieces which I have already played. They will be brought out in Europe some time next year in the form in which I play them. But many of the most beautiful ones I have not played in public as yet, and those I am reserving. They will not be published for many years to come.

"I shall play little new music except some pieces of my own in my current American tour. It is very difficult to find good violin music which is new. Why should a composer of to-day write violin pieces when there are only five or six virtuosos to play them and no sale for them afterward?

"The great composers of the day—Strauss, Mahler, and the others—seem to wish only to turn out big symphonies and symphonic poems, while the lesser men, or those who are in need of money turn their attention to opera, which, after all, is the most lucrative form of composition. Beethoven probably wrote his violin concerto because he couldn't help it. He heard it on the violin. There is little composition of that sort going on to-day, I believe.

"Snobbishness in music is making it difficult for the giver of concerts, also. Now, my wife and I admire the 'Suwanee River' song very much. I should like to make an arrangement of it for the violin. But I can't play it here. People would say that it was cheap; that I was catering to the masses. I can, of course, play German, French or Norwegian folk songs, which have not half the character of that air, in America, without arousing such criticism. But if I play a 'Suwanee River' fantaisie I must wait until I visit St. Petersburg or Prague. There it will be admired for its melody, and there will be no connotations."

"Which reminds me," broke in Mrs. Kreisler, "of the first time I met you. We were crossing on a boat together. Mr. Kreisler is a very good pianist, and one day in the salon he was amusing people by playing for them. One after another they asked him to play Chopin nocturnes and Beethoven sonatas, opus this and opus that.

"I was getting very much bored. Finally I said, 'Oh, Mr. Kreisler, won't you please play the "Florodora Sextette"?' and he did all the rest of the way over!"

"It struck me as delicious frankness," said Mr. Kreisler. "Many of those women were really asking me to play things which they really did not care for at all, because they felt that it was the proper thing to admire the classics.

"Melody is melody wherever you find it, and should not be despised because it happens to occur in some folk song rather than in the music of Bach.

"I am immensely interested in the Indian melodies of this country, and some day I hope to have an oportunity of studying them. Of course they have been set down in books, but I have a feeling that this has been done with too much accuracy as to the notes involved and too little in regard to the spirit and the rhythm."

VAUDEVILLE INCORPORATION.

Eastern Managers Form the United Theatres Securities Company.

Articles of incorporation of the United Theatres Securities Company were filed in Wilmington, Del., last week, an act which brings closer together the vaudeville interests east of the Mississippi River and which may be the forerunner of a change in the vaudeville situation west of the river. The incorporators are B. F. Keith, F. F. Proctor, E. F. Albee, William Hammerstein, and Percy G. Williams of New York; M. Shea of Buffalo and Toronto, James H. Moore of Detroit and Rochester, Harry Davis of Pittsburg, James C. Duffield of the Canadian circuit, A. Paul Keith, S. Z. Poli of Springfield, and P. B. Chase of Washington are also associated in the combination. These men practically control all of the large vaudeville interests east of the Mississippi, with the exception of the houses managed by William Morris, Inc.

From rumors, which were denied, it would seem that this combination has been effected to forestall any action that might be taken by Martin Beck, manager of the Orpheum Circuit, a western circuit, to come to an agreement with William Morris, by which he, Mr. Beck, would find an Eastern opening for his circuit. Mr. Beck has denied these reports and has called attention to his contract with the United Booking Offices, in which he has agreed not to have a theatre east of Cincinnati. William Morris has consistently denied any intention of combining with [illegible]

FRITZI SCHEFF ILL.

Atlanta Women Cry "Shame," and Wouldn't Stay to Hear Her Understudy

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 7.—The failure of Fritzi Scheff, now starring in "The Prima Donna," to sing the leading role at the matinee performance yesterday caused some disorder at the Grand Opera House. Half of the large audience withdrew and demanded the return of their money.

The announcement that Miss Scheff would not sing was not made until curtain time, when the house was packed. It was stated that Miss Scheff's throat was sore and that Miss Wilton, her understudy, would sing.

Women, who made up the greater part of the audience, cried "Shame!" and "Outrage!" and swarmed to the box office for their money. After quiet was restored, Miss Wilton sang the leading role to a small audience.

Miss Scheff appeared last night and was in her usual voice. To-day it was said she had a slight attack of tonsilitis. It was announced that she had canceled her Nashville and Memphis engagements, and that it might be two weeks before she would be able to appear.

John Fox, Jr., Miss Scheff's husband, arrived here last night.

COMPANY OF 13 IN TROUBLE.

Leading Man of "His Name on the Door" Gets Attachment for Salary.

Special to The New York Times.

WATERBURY, Conn., Nov. 7.—Representing Frank Sheridan of Lawrence Mulligan's production, "His Name on the Door," Thomas F. Devine, a lawyer, this morning attached all of the baggage and scenery of the company. Mr. Sheridan, as the principal of the company, claims that $500 salary due him remains unpaid. The company numbers just thirteen.

There was a lively scramble on the part of the players when they learned that their personal baggage had incidentally been placed under attachment. Late tonight the company's effects had not been released.

The company, which has been on the road for a few weeks only, opened at Springfield and has played to indifferent business. The author, Frank Lord, a Yale man, succeeded in enlisting the attention of fellow-collegians in cities where his play was presented, and they have been generous in their praise.

It is understood here that the play will be rewritten at the end of two weeks and produced at the Hackettt Theatre in New York.

Berlin to See Plays by David Pinski.

David Pinski, the Yiddish playwright, author of "The Zwi Family," which was produced here in Russian by Paul Orleneff a few years ago, will sail for Europe to-morrow to supervise the rehearsals of two of his plays in Berlin. These two plays, "The Treasure" and "Jacob the Blacksmith," have been accepted for production at the Doutsches Theater, Berlin, this season. Mr. Pinski's plays have not been generally produced at the Yiddish theatres in this country.

Fiala to Lecture on the Arctic.

Anthony Fiala, the explorer, will lecture on "Fighting the Polar Ice" to the members of the Luther League of St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran Church, South Fifth and Rodney Streets, Brooklyn, next Thursday evening. When Fiala commanded the Zeigler polar expedition in 1903 his ship, the America, was destroyed by an ice jam and his party spent two winters in the Arctics.

MORE OPERA STARS ARRIVE

Including Mlle. Dumesnil, Who Has Lost Cat, Stove, and Alphonse.

The delayed Savoie brought in another cargo of singers to the Manhattan Opera House last night. Hector Dufranne, who has been singing at the Opera in Paris; Mr. Valles, the French tenor; Mr. Gilibert, the French baritone; Mario Sammarco, who has been singing at Brussels, and Mr. Charlier, the French conductor, were among them.

These were many newcomers. Mme. Carmen-Melis, the Italian dramatic soprano, who has been engaged by Mr. Hammerstein to sing the part of Elektra, comes to this country for the first time. She is a striking dark Italian beauty. She has been singing in Warsaw and Odessa.

Mlle. Dumesnil is the French singer who told Mr. Hammerstein she would never leave Paris because she had her stove, her cat, and her Alphonse.

"Now!" she said, "I came because my cat is dead, my stove has gone out, and my Alphonse has left me."

Mlle. Henriette Delorme, who is to head the opera-bouffe company which is to present a series of operas on two nights a week at the Manhattan, arrived. She said that she had taken forty lessons in English at the Berlitz School in preparation for her Winter in New York. Other members of the light opera company who arrived were Mmes. Nolba and Laya, and Messrs. Dambrine, Blondel, and Dufour, with Haakman, the conductor for this company, and forty members of the chorus.

Mr. Zenatello arrived and said that he had spent the Summer resting and learning French roles. He will sing "Tannhauser" in French, and he has also learned the part of Don Jose in French. Mr. Huberdeau, the new French bass from the Opera Comique in Paris, who is to make his first appearance here, was one of the arrivals.

Emilio de Gorgorza, the baritone, who assisted Mme. Emma Eames in her concerts for a number of seasons, also arrived. He is to give a series of recitals by himself this year. Mme. Eames remains in Paris.

WORKING PAPERS FOR ALIENS.

Child Labor Committee Instructs Them How to Get Birth Certificates.

George A. Hall, Secretary of the New York Child Labor Committee, believes that violations of the statute making it an offense to put a child between 14 and 16 years of age at work without first obtaining working papers are not always willful attempts on the part of parents to cheat the spirit of this law. In addressing recently the staff of the New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor he pointed out the difficulty of foreign-born children in complying with the new statutory requirements for securing working papers.

"The affidavit of the parent with regard to age," he said, "which was formerly accepted as sufficient evidence, having proved worthless in hundreds of cases, has been replaced by statutory provisions requiring better documentary evidence. A properly attested birth certificate is generally held to be the best proof of age, but some foreign-born children have found it difficult to secure that paper."

In order to help meet this difficulty, the National Child Labor Committee has printed a pamphlet giving the proper official, with address, in each country to whom application for a birth certificate should be made. The pamphlet was compiled on data collected through the foreign Consuits in New York, and may be obtained from the office of the National Child Labor Committee, 105 East Twenty-second Street.

William H. Cotton.

William H. Cotton, for forty-three years cashier of Tiffany & Co., died yesterday at his home, 196 Greene Avenue, Brooklyn. He was born ninety-two years ago in Bradford, Vt. His father, John Cotton, as one of the Electors of James Munroe as President, carried the official news of the results of that election in Vermont to Washington, making the journey on horseback. Mr. Cotton was one of the organizers of the Republican organization in old New York and the Fremont Club, and a member of the Society of Old Brooklynites, the New England Society, and the Lincoln Club. Two sons, ex-Assemblyman Charles E. Cotton and J. W. Cotton of Tiffany & Co., survive him.

The Vogue of "Black" Opals

Marcus & Co., 5th Avenue at 45th St., Exhibit Their Rare Collection.

LAST Fall Marcus & Co. offered to the public the only notable collection of Black Opals ever shown in this country.

The remarkable beauty of these unusual stones made an instant appeal to discriminating buyers of gems, and to-day a Black Opal piece of jewelry is one of the most prized in many private collections.

The Black Opal has been called "the chameleon of gems." Although designated as "black," these stones are really a vibrant mass of color: blues and greens and yellows, dominated by intense flaming reds; pulsating colors that blend and fuse and separate with every turn of the stone to the light.

Marcus & Co. have now on exhibit the last of this year's mining from the famous Lightning Ridge Mine in New South Wales, and offer these gems in original mountings and settings in the form of scarfpins, rings, pendants, brooches, necklaces, etc.

Marcus & Co. make a specialty of individuality in jewelry, and their Designing Department is prepared to submit sketches of original designs reflecting the individuality of both donor and recipient. There can be no rarer gift for man or woman than a Black Opal.

DIPLOMAT'S WIFE DEAD.

Senora Calderon, Wife of Bolivian Minister, Had a Short Illness.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—Señora Arcadia Yarnell Calderon, wife of Señor don Ignacio Calderon, Minister from Bolivia, died at the Bolivian Legation, 1,633 Sixteenth Street, this morning, after a comparatively short illness.

Señora Calderon has resided in Washington for the last five years, and was most highly esteemed. She was before her marriage Miss Arcadia Yarnell of Baltimore, and was married to the Minister some twenty-odd years ago, when Mr. Calderon was Bolivian Consul at Philadelphia. She is survived by a daughter, Señorita Elena Calderon, who made her début in Washington a few years ago.

Coming so close upon the death of Señora de La Barra, wife of the Ambassador from Mexico, Señora Calderon's death has cast gloom over the South American contingent, with which she was most popular.

Henry Tate.

Special to The New York Times.

PEEKSKILL, N. Y., Nov. 7.—Henry Tate, one of the best known men of this town, died suddenly at Ossining to-day. He went there this morning to attend a funeral. Mr. Tate was born here in December, 1848, and was educated at the public schools and the Peekskill Military Academy. He was a partner with James B. Gregory in the drug business, and when a young man married Gregory's daughter Emily. He has owned the only drug store at Verplanck's Point, four miles from here, for the past thirty years. He was prominent in Republican politics, and had been a member of the Town Committee, Postmaster of Verplanck's Point, and a Justice of the Peace. He wrote several books. "Aaron Crane" and "Bicycle Yarns" were the most popular. He had been an ardent wheelman. He is survived by his wife and one daughter, Mrs. Charles R. Phyfe.

EX-JUDGE F. W. LOEW DEAD.

He Served Two Terms as Judge of the Old Court of Common Pleas.

Frederick W. Loew, who served two terms as a Judge of the Court of Common Pleas and held other judicial positions in this city, died yesterday of apoplexy at his home, 501 West 120th Street. He was 74 years old and came to this country from Strasburg when 4 years of age. Before he was 30 years old he was elected Judge of the Fifth District Court, and served for six years. He was a Constitutional delegate and was afterward elected a Judge of the old Court of Common Pleas. After his second term in this court he became Register of the city.

In his later years ill-health necessitated his retirement, and he went abroad, spending several years in Strasburg. On his return he spent his last years at his country home on Long Island.

Ex-Judge Loew is survived by a widow, one son, Charles E. Loew, a lawyer of 27 William Street, and one daughter, Miss Julia V. Loew.

In politics Judge Loew was a follower of Samuel J. Tilden and Grover Cleveland and was a friend of Richard Croker. He fought Tweed and the old Tweed ring and hated all political methods that were not above board.

Obituary Notes.

L. MORRIS TRAVER, one of the old-time business men of Trenton, N. J., died yesterday, aged 86. He was born in Washington, Dutchess County, N. Y., and as a boy was the friend of Samuel Morse, inventor of the telegraph.

D'ALANSON KING STEVENS of Cairo, N. Y., the brother of Dr. William Stevens of 381 Central Park West, died yesterday at his home in Cairo, in the old Stevens homestead, in his fifty-eighth year. His father was Jason Stevens, a merchant. D'Alanson King Stevens was affectionately known as "D. K." He was several times Town Clerk. He left no nearer relative than his brother. He never married.

JAP WINS ON SPEEDWAY.

Steady Winners Get a Taste of Defeat in Exciting Brushes.

It was a lively session which the amateur horsemen had on the Speedway yesterday. The perfect weather conditions brought out one of the largest gatherings of any time this Fall, and exciting brushes held the interest of a large throng of people gathered about the finish. Through it all there were several reversals in form by some of the entrants, and horses that have been prominent in a number of victories went home with few laurels to their credit as a result of the day's sport.

Thomas Lawson's Jap cleaned up the honors in every heat in which he contested a week ago, and yesterday showed a scant number of victories when the brushes were finished. Jap was driven by Pat Donovan. William Scott's Kitty Wilkes took on a long string of brushes. The main brush resolved itself between Pot Roast and Kitty Wilkes, and the latter came off with a victory, but it took three heats to decide the issue. In the first Pat Donovan, driving Pot Roast, took the dust from Kitty Wilkes, but in the second brush the honors were easy for Pot Roast. Andrew Crawford's Composer was a starter in the final heat, and this time Kitty Wilkes took the measure of both Pot Roast and Composer. In the interval between the races with Pot Roast Kitty Wilkes was defeated by Ready Boy, driven by M. Hamill.

James A. Murphy drove Coast Marie against Minnie Albert, driven by S. B. Wolf, for two brushes, in both of which the Murphy horses came home the victor. Murphy then took out Kim and tried issue with L. Hertog's Katie Gay. Only two brushes were tried, and in these the honors were even.

Nata B, driven by E. B. Lott of Bay Side, took the honors from Arnold Pandit, driven by James Fox, three heats being tried between the horses. In the first Kakomia, driven by George H. Huber, was a starter, and came in second to Nata B, with Arnold Pandit third. In the second brush Arnold Pandit alone started against the Lott entry, and again the Bay Side man drove past the line a victor. In a third heat Arnold Pandit won.

There was an interesting bit of racing between Jap and A. B. McGwathmey's Tiverton, 2:04½. In the first trial Tiverton took the honors, but a second trial found Jap strong, and the Lawson horse carried away the victory. In the deciding heat Tiverton was too much for Jap and scored an easy victory. As a preliminary Tiverton scored a victory over Walter Scott's Kitty Wilkes.

COATES THE VICTOR IN MOTT HAVEN RUN

Strong Field Starts in Five-and-a-Half-Mile Event in the Bronx.

CLOUGHLEY IS SECOND

Zink, the Old Columbia Athlete, Put Out of the Running by Trouble with His Shoes.

One of the best fields of athletes that has started in a cross-country run this season went over the five-and-a-half-mile course of the Mott Haven Athletic Club yesterday afternoon. When the finish was reached Harry Coates of the Pastime A. C. was in front of the pack by a comfortable margin, the second place honors going to H. Cloughley of the New York Athletic Club. Coates finished the distance in 32:30, and Cloughley was forty seconds behind him.

A. Zink, the former Columbia athlete and now a member of the New York A. C., and Cloughley set the pace for the first part of the distance, and it looked as if the race for first position was between these two. Zink, however, got in trouble before he had completed four miles of the distance, and he was out of the race, as far as finishing in front was concerned. His shoes bothered him to such an extent that he had to remove them, and came running in with both of them in his hand. Despite this handicap, however, he was able to finish in ninth position.

After Zink was thus handicapped Coates began to come up, and challenged Cloughley for the lead. After getting to the front of the harriers about a mile from home he was never headed and scored an easy victory. G. Kirkwood tried hard to beat out Cloughley, but was unequal to the task, crossing the line twenty seconds behind his rival. There were about sixty starters on the line when the men were sent away, and practically all finished the full distance. The order of finish follows:

Johnson Defeats Matt Geis.

T. Johnson of the Glencoe A. C. was too strong for Matt. Geis in the Invitation cross-country run of the Glencoe A. C., 126th Street and Second Avenue, yesterday, scoring an easy victory over the former Pastime A. C. runner, now competing under the colors of the Independent A. C. Johnson covered the three and a half mile course in 20:35.

Johnson, Geis, and Kennard fought it out for first position for practically the entire distance, but a half mile from the finish Johnson began to draw away from his rivals, leaving Kennard and Geis to struggle for second place. Geis managed to pull in with a margin of ten yards to his credit for the position.

The number of starters in the event was 105, and of this number 96 finished the full distance. The order of finish was:

T. Johnson, Glencoe A. C., 20:35; M. Geis, Independent A. C., 21:07; S. Kennard, Xavier A. A., 21:11; E. Jordon, Xavier A. A., 21:15; G. Dietrich, Loughlin Lyceum, 21:23; F. McCollough, Borough A. Ost Leads Schoolboy Runners.

Paced by W. Beck of the Holy Cross Lyceum, Samuel Ost, starting from the thirty-second mark, won the first cross-country run of the season of the Harlem Evening High School. Ost ran an excellent race and covered the course, two and three-eighth miles, in 12:47. Of the fifty-four starters the first twelve to finish follow:

	Handicap.	Actual Time.
S. Ost	0:30	12:47
J. Wilson	1:00	13:23

Wilson First in Mohawk Run.

F. Wilson, with three minutes start, captured the first monthly cross-country run yesterday of the Mohawk Athletic Club. Twenty-two member of the organization started, and the event was interesting throughout. Wilson won by about five yards from F. Joyce, who was handicapped at one minute. W. Harnett won the third individual and novice prizes, and T. Dwyer annexed the time prize, covering the course in 33:20. The contestants ran over last year's senior cross-country championship course, a distance of two miles, covering the distance three times. The times of the first six men follow:

Name.	Handicap. M.S.	Finish. M.S.
F. Wilson	3:00	35:20
F. Joyce	1:00	33:24
W. Harnett	2:30	35:27

H. Drew	2:30	36:55

Twenty-second Regiment Games.

Melvin Sheppard, Harry Gissing, Jim Sullivan, and Mike Driscoll will start in the 1,200-yard handicap at the games of the Twenty-second Regiment Engineers at the Armory on Thanksgiving Eve, Nov. 24. The race will be one of the features of the big carnival, and as the athletes at the back mark include the best in the Metropolitan district, a new world's record will probably be established. The games this year, which are closed to members only, promise to be the best ever held by the regiment. Among the members are National, world's, American, and military champions. In addition to the 1,200-yard race a 500-yard handicap will be decided, in which McEntee, Koch, Cassaisa, McDowell, and C. B. Clark will start.

Naval Cadets Plan Busy Season.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 7.—More attention than ever will be devoted to sports at the Naval Academy this Winter, and there will be schedules in basket ball, fencing, gymnastics, and wrestling, beginning just after the close of the football season. The gymnasium schedule is particularly good, matches having already been arranged with Princeton, University of Pennsylvania, and Columbia, and challenges sent to Yale, Harvard, and West Point. Wrestling tournaments with the University of Pennsylvania and Princeton have also been arranged.

EDGEWATER HILL CLIMB.

Ten Events Will Be Scheduled for Thanksgiving Day Event.

New York automobile tradesmen received with favor the announcement that the Edgewater Motoring Society planned to hold a hill-climbing contest on Thanksgiving Day on the Edgewater-Fort Lee hill. So favorable were the interviews that representatives of New Jersey motorists had with metropolitan tradesmen that the Edgewater Society has planned to go ahead with the scheme, and a meeting of all the automobilists of the village has been called for this evening. The automobilists of Fort Lee, which is situated at the top of the hill, realized the benefits that would come to their town through the holding of the climb, and have expressed a desire to co-operate with the automobilists at the foot of the hill in making this event one of the greatest hill-climbing contests ever held on the American Continent.

In order that there may be a local office for the climb where the metropolitan trade may obtain all the necessary information on the subject, W. J. Morgan has been appointed the New York representative of the Edgewater Society, and at his offices in the Thoroughfare Building entry blanks may be had and entries may be made. The programme will probably consist of about ten events, catering to all classes of cars. It is planned to start the contest at 10 o'clock in the morning, so that New York automobilists may witness the tournament before eating their Thanksgiving Day dinners. The distance of the climb will be either seven-tenths of a mile, which would give an actual climbing contest the entire distance, or it may be a full mile, so as to allow a short stretch of level road in which to get up speed.

The grade of the hill varies from 5 to 15 per cent., and averages about 8 per cent. There are several difficult turns that will require great skill in handling, one being a double "S," another an "O" turn, and a third a horseshoe turn. The list of events is now in preparation, and will be announced within a few days.

The Mortgage Behind the Bond

The integrity of the mortgage is of vital importance to every bondholder. In the case of an open mortgage bondholders should know what restrictions are placed upon future issues. If there be a sinking fund clause the issuing Company should not have the right to arbitrarily designate the numbers of the bonds to be paid off. The bonds should be drawn by lot by the Trustee, or in some other impartial manner.

Bonds Yielding Over 5%

Our Circular No. 820 describes an issue of bonds which we offer, subject to sale, at a price to yield over 5%. A large part of the authorized amount is limited as to issue to 75% of the cost of new property, improvements, etc., and the terms of the mortgage insure the fullest protection to each and every bondholder. We recommend these bonds as being an investment suitable for the most discriminating investors.

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION.

The still unsettled state of the London and Berlin money markets continues to exert a depressing influence upon the financial situation as a whole. It is, of course, to be regretted that with the combined demands of crop moving and expanding trade financed so smoothly as they have been by our own money market, its present and future course should so largely depend upon the outcome in London and, perhaps, in Berlin, but the fact is undisputed. If the Bank of Germany should find it imperative to-day to advance its discount rate to 6 per cent., its action would undoubtedly be followed by a similar move on the part of the Directors of the Bank of England, and with exchange ruling at the gold-export point and a comparatively modest working balance in the way of surplus reserves, our own money market would promptly harden again. There is no mystery in the reason why we are so unusually sensitive this year to changes in the English money market. We have undoubtedly secured substantial credits from London bankers to replace the balances which we usually have with them as a result of our excess on our foreign trade. A more important and a more timely inquiry concerns the factors which must determine the course of the Bank of England in the immediate future, for it may be taken for granted that whatever it does, our own market will prove responsive. London financial publications, as well as London bankers, insist that the English Bank is determined to protect its reserve at all hazards. The demands upon this reserve have come from Egypt, with its large and valuable cotton crop, and from South Africa, through imports of foodstuffs, with more moderate requirements pressed upon the Bank by Continental nations, including Germany and Russia, and excepting France. How long these demands will persist is apparently impossible of determination, or, at least, no clear light has been thrown upon the point by English financial authorities. With them out of the way, however, there is still another factor to be considered in the shape of the unsettled political situation. If the Lords reject the budget and a general election ensues, the English Government will have to borrow large amounts of money in the open market, and the Bank of England will very naturally be compelled to keep strong until the uncertainty in this respect is cleared up. So far the Bank's 5 per cent. rate has been barely effective, but perhaps it has not had a fair trial, inasmuch as the heavy November payments in London have worked against the efforts of the Bank to strengthen its position. By Thursday of this week these payments should return to banking channels, and it will then be possible for the Directors to determine whether sufficient progress can be made without resort to 6 per cent.

In the meantime there is just enough uncertainty to promote caution among our own bankers in spite of the locally easy position of affairs. So far as the money market here is concerned the heaviest demands from the interior appear to have passed, and a gradual reduction in shipments may be looked for. Last week customs payments were unusually heavy, owing to the operation of certain clauses in the new tariff law, and this source of loss to the Government by the banks was further enhanced by Treasury transactions. A rate of 4 per cent. for call money at this season of the year, with trade so active as it is, is a most satisfactory quotation, as is that of 4¾ per cent., or thereabout, on time loans. Granting no unfavorable developments in the English money market position it is not too much to look for a continuance of present conditions, although the tendency may be slightly firmer owing to the ever increasing requirements of trade and the fresh demands of corporate enterprises. Examples of this source of demand were offered last week by the Pennsylvania Railroad, which has asked its stockholders to subscribe to $80,000,000 of new shares, and the New York Central, which requested authority of the up-State Public Service Commission to put out additional stock amounting to more than $44,000,000, although the proceeds of both Pennsylvania and New York Central issues will be used in large measure for refunding purposes. The stock market continued last week to make only modest demands upon the money market, and it seems to be so well in hand as to promise no opposition to the more legitimate requirements of trade for some time to come. On the Cotton Exchange, however, the violent speculation in futures went on through the week, prices at one time rising to new high records for any season since the Sully campaign, but at the week's end equally violent breaks occurred under the pressure of the liquidation of speculative holdings. Cotton consumers here and in England appear to have made up their minds that with a crop of little, if anything, under 11,000,000 bales in prospect the prices which have been made on the Exchange are unwarranted, and as a means toward enforcing their views have with a good deal of unanimity curtailed operations. This is a drastic remedy, but it seems to be the best one for so artificial a condition as that now existing in the cotton world.

By all odds the most interesting news that came to light in business circles last week was that relating to the efforts which are under way among the larger copper producers to effect an arrangement, along the line of that existing among steel producers, to regulate the production of the metal. The copper industry has been lagging far behind all other branches of trade in the recovery which has been going on for a year or more, and the reason is found in the production and attempted marketing of supplies of copper which could only be absorbed in the most prosperous times. It is a matter of record how closely production was fitted to consumptive capacity by the steelmakers throughout the lean months of the recent past, and similar regulation on the part of the copper producers is plainly essential to the best interests not only of the producers themselves, who can then count upon a stable market for their output, but also of consumers, who, as matters now stand, hardly know from one day to the next upon what terms they can fill their requirements. There were the usual evidences of growing business in all other lines, notably in steel and iron, where the figures of iron production in October established for that month a new high record, with output at 2,592,000 tons. This is twice the production of so recent a month as July, 1908, and if maintained this month and next should create for the year also a record. Railroad earnings continue to expand. The Pennsylvania reported for September a gross increase of $1,755,000, while a group of Southern roads, the Southern Railway, Atlantic Coast Line, and Louisville & Nashville, noted for the same month gains of $432,000, $270,000 and $283,000, respectively. Certainly this is indisputable evidence of the growth of this great section of our country.

THE MARKETS OF EUROPE.

LONDON FEARS HIGHER RATE.

Gold Outflow from France, However, May Make It Unnecessary.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—The Bank of England's 5 per cent. rate has not proved altogether effective and some nervousness showed itself on the Stock Exchange during the closing session of the week. There has been a favorable movement, however, in the rates of Continental exchange, and the hands of the Directors of the Bank of France, whose policy of hoarding gold instead of employing it freely in financing the crops and trade of the world is held chiefly responsible for the existing stringency, may be forced, particularly as the Berlin monetary situation has shown improvement.

Apart from monetary conditions there is no reason for uneasiness in Capel Court, the past settlement having disclosed no important inherent weakness and the approaching one exciting no apprehension.

BERLIN PRICES DECLINE.

Unable to Resist Influence of Fluctuating International Money Market.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Nov. 7.—The Boerse here was again unable to free itself from the influence of the fluctuating money markets in London and other centres. Attention was concentrated almost exclusively on the movements of the international discount rate.

A favorable report on the domestic iron industry had a temporarily enlivening effect, but it was not possible to overcome the reserve maintained by the buying public. Toward the close realizations were heavier and the market ended amid receding prices. American rails shared the general fate.

STOCKS HEAVY IN PARIS.

Abrupt Monetary Contraction Causes General Realization.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 7.—Uncertainty and lack of courage characterized the financial market here through the greater part of the week past. The abrupt monetary contraction inspired apprehension in many speculators and stocks which of late have shown the most notable advances became the most affected with heaviness.

The market both on Friday and Saturday was comparatively inactive. There is a belief in the best quarters, however, that realizations have been sufficiently general to insure improved conditions for the coming week. Rio Tintos, after payment of the coupon, closed at 1933.

ADJOURN QUICKLY TO SAVE FISTICUFFS

Literary Evening with John Kirby, Jr., Was Rapidly Getting to That Stage.

SOCIALIST CRIED "COWARD"

Police and Ushers Hastily Interfered Then—Mr. Kirby Has Heard of a "Building Ring" Here to Keep Up Prices.

A hasty adjournment in the hope of circumventing possible trouble ended a meeting of the Tennyson Social and Literary Society last night in the auditorium of the Young Men's Hebrew Association, Ninety-second Street and Lexington Avenue, which had been addressed at length by John Kirby, Jr., of Dayton, Ohio, President of the National Association of Manufacturers, on "The Disadvantages of Labor Unionism."

After Mr. Kirby had finished his address, in which he anathematized unions and union labor roundly, and had dismissed some thirty written questions on the ground that his address covered most of the points, William Karlin, who ran for the Assembly on the Socialist ticket in the Twenty-sixth Assembly District, arose and demanded that his question be answered.

"As a laboring man," he said, "I rise to protest most vehemently against the outrageous slander Mr. Kirby has thrown upon us in charging that our morals are lower than those of his class. I denounce the statement, and say that Mr. Kirby is a coward, and has not the courage of his convictions or he would have answered my question."

A policeman walked toward Karlin, Mr. Kirby, blood rushing to his face, stepped quickly to the front of the platform and, pointing his finger at Karlin, shouted:

"I began working when I was 12 years old, and have worked hard ever since, and no man has a higher respect for the working man than I have. If that man has any criticism to make he should stand up like a man and make it, and not call me a coward. He is barking up the wrong tree when he calls me a coward. Let him repeat the question."

The audience applauded vigorously, and Karlin arose and said:

"My question was: 'Did you ever see laboring men on Labor Day giving a parade of monkey dinners, like you fellows give?'"

Mr. Kirby, who seemed to be very indignant, repeated his expressions of respect for honest laboring people, but ruled out Karlin's question on the ground of irrelevancy.

"I can't stand here all night," he said, "answering random questions foreign to the issues upholding the discussion of labor unionism."

Karlin attempted to get the floor again, but was held by a policeman and several ushers. Ex-Congressman Charles E. Littlefield, the Chairman of the meeting, took in the situation at a glance, and quickly announced that "the meeting is adjourned."

Just before Karlin's interruptions, E. A. Moffatt, former organizer for the Bricklayers' Union, had injected some heat into the meeting by rising in the audience and demanding that seven qustions he had sent up be read, that it might be decided whether "they were irrelevant."

Chairman Littlefield replied that the reading would take fully fifteen minutes and might weary the audience. Moffatt told Kirby that "all your statements are illustrations and not facts—just a sort of moving-picture show."

This brought a laugh, but Chairman Littlefield replied that Moffatt's statement was unfair. Finally Moffatt said he "was suppressed into submission" and would not further interrupt the proceedings.

Mr. Kirby's speech was heard by some 500 persons, who listened attentively, but without applause. It was notable chiefly for the statement by Mr Kirby that a man prominently connected with the building trades in this city had assured him that a conspiracy exists between the employers and the unions in certain trades to keep this market closed against outside contractors and workmen alike. Mr. Kirby spoke on "The Disadvantages of Trade Unionism."

"In the marble and tile business in New York, for instance," went on the statement which Mr. Kirby quoted, "union workmen will not lay tile or set marble for an outside contractor, and the New York contractor in turn employs only members of the union. The result is that both the workmen and the employers get an abnormal and uneconomic price for their product.

"This is also true in the plumbing business and the stone cutting business, and I understand in one or two other trades. The carpenters have been engaged for some time in a struggle to bring about the same condition. All this, of course, means monopoly prices for buildings. That means high rents and high prices for articles which have to be stored in or sold out of buildings. It all affects the final consumer, and thousands of workmen outside the building trades find an immensely increased cost of living without any compensation or offset."

SAVED FROM STRANDED BOAT.

Woman and Two Men Rescued from a Sandbar in the Hudson.

Frank Montera, a barber in the Hotel Albany, Fortieth Street and Broadway, took Proprietor R. T. Murphy's fifty-foot launch from the Reliance Boat Club, 210th Street and the Harlem River, yesterday noon, and with George Gaffney and a young woman, went for a sail in the Hudson. At 7 o'clock last night the boat struck on a sandbar in the Hudson between Spuyten Duyvil and Inwood. Finally another launch came along, and took the woman and the two men off. They left the boat sticking in the mud.

Harbor Squad B'was notified, and Sergt. Dieches and some men went out in the police launch from 120th Street, but they found that they could not tow the launch off. The police said that at high tide the boat would be submerged.

Criminal Court Building Still Firm.

The reported imminent collapse of the Criminal Court Building, at Centre, Franklin, White, and Lafayette Streets, which was declared unsafe by Supt. of Buildings Murphy last week, did not draw many curiosity seekers yesterday. Work went on as usual in the Coroners' office, these "brave men" not seeming to have any immediate fear of the structure tumbling about their ears.

FACES EVICTION AT 76.

Granddaughter of a Revolutionary Soldier Penniless and Friendless.

In a tumble-down little house in Valley Stream, L. I., which she has occupied for the last eight years as a "squatter," is the granddaughter of a Revolutionary soldier and the daughter of a pewholder in old St. Paul's, without money, her total property being the plants she raises for sale, a few pigeons, and a white cockatoo. The people on whose good-will she has depended for a home now need their property, and she must go by Nov. 10. The little, old, white-haired woman, who can still "darn with a No. 12 needle and 200 thread," has known this for nearly a year, but she is without any one to whom she can turn.

"But haven't you any friends?" she was asked.

"At 76 are there many left?" she asked in return, with a helpless little smile. "I have lived too long. If I had died at 60 I should have had hosts of friends."

People who have seen her papers say that her grandfather served in the Revolutionary war, through the Long Island and New York campaigns. Her father in his prosperous days is said to have held Pew 42 in old St. Paul's, and to have given the property on which the Episcopal Church of Hempstead stands. After reverses came her mother became the matron of St. Agnes's School in Albany, and the family was befriended by Bishop Doane.

Last Spring she learned she must leave her old house and the little garden. The neighbors are not hard-hearted, nor are the owners of the property, but people around Valley Stream are not wealthy. There is no Episcopal church in Valley Stream. The nearest is a struggling mission in Lynbrook. Gladly, though, they gave her $10. She made a deposit on a house and wrote to the only connections who might help her. She never received an answer and lost the deposit.

An appeal has been made in her behalf to the patriotic societies because of her grandfather's service during the Revolution. Unfortunately Long Island has no claim on the wealthy New York State organization, and her case goes to the Long Island Society, whose Secretary is at 96 Lincoln Place, Brooklyn. That body is comparatively small, and its income, entirely devoted to charitable work, is pledged in several directions already. Meanwhile Nov. 10 is drawing very near.

CHURCH'S LARGE ENDOWMENT

Holy Communion Edifice Will Stay Downtown and Begin New Work.

The Rev. Dr. Henry Mottet of the Church of the Holy Communion, Sixth Avenue and Twentieth Street, announced yesterday morning that sufficient endowment funds have been obtained to make it certain that the church, one of the most historic in New York, shall remain perpetually in its present location. When all shall have been paid in that is now promised the endowment will reach $1,000,000.

The income of $250,000 is to be used for free organ recitals every week night of an excellent kind, the intention being to attract and educate numbers of people. Recitals heard abroad are expected to be rivaled.

A larger endowment for the Sisters' House that adjoins the church on the avenue side will be made. At least $50,000 will be used to maintain a staff of sisters as nurse and visitors.

The Church of the Holy Communion was one of the first to inaugurate noonday services, and it is now planned to provide an endowment which shall enable it, throughout the entire year, to bring there for these services some of the great preachers of America and England, with the idea that more people can be reached on week days than on Sundays.

There is to be a new parish house that will rival St. Bartholomew's, a great assembly hall, a roof garden, and a day nursery.

RAILROAD MEN TO DINE.

Expected to Discuss Taft's Attitude Toward Their Business.

Twenty or more railroad Presidents and Vice Presidents, as well as financiers and manufacturers of railway equipment and supplies, will gather at the Waldorf-Astoria on Wednesday night for the annual dinner of the Railway Business Association.

The dinner has been timed to fit President Taft's return to Washington to start writing his annual message. Since the President's Des Moines speech, on Sept. 20, the railroad men have digested his railroad proposals, and it is thought that the dinner will give them an opportunity to indicate what attitude they will take on the proposed amendments.

Congressman Hepburn of Iowa, ex-Senator John C. Spooner, and W. H. Marshall, President of the American Locomotive Company, will speak. Among the guests will be George Westinghouse, Charles M Schwab, Walter C. Kerr, E. H. Gary, W. E. Corey, A. H. Mulliken, J. Pierpont Morgan, James Speyer, Frank A. Vanderlip, A. Barton Hepburn, George R. Sheldon, Gates McDarragh, Piiny Fisk, Anthony N. Brady, J. Edward Simmons, Paul Morton, J. C. Stubbs, Julius Kruttschnitt, T. P. Shonts, Frank Trumbull, L. F. Loree, Ralph Peters, E. B. Thomas, F. D. Underwood, E. W. Winter, J. W. Kendrick, and Edwin Hawley.

Chairman Knapp of the Interstate Commerce Commission will be there, as will the Chairmen of ten or twelve State railroad commissions.

TO CELEBRATE NEW SUBWAY.

Brooklyn Ready to Rejoice Over Getting the Fourth Avenue Line.

At a meeting yesterday afternoon at the Brooklyn Club of men representing the civic organizations of South Brooklyn and Bay Ridge plans were made for a celebration of the beginning of the construction of the Fourth Avenue subway. The exercises are to be held next Saturday afternoon and evening.

The exercises will take place in the new Flatbush Avenue extension or approach to the Manhattan Bridge. This is where the first section of the subway is to be built. At 2:30 o'clock Chairman W. R. Willcox of the Public Service Commission will dig up the first shovelful of earth.

The other members of the Public Service Commission, the old Rapid Transit Board, the members of the present and incoming Boards of Estimate, the Mayor and Mayor-elect, and Gov. Hughes are to be invited to be present. A grand stand is to be erected for the accommodation of several thousand people.

In the evening there will be a dinner, probably in the Academy of Music. An appeal for funds to meet the expenses of the celebration has been sent out.

Issue a Paper to Help a Strike.

In order to get the non-union waistmakers to join in the proposed strike of 40,000 workers in that trade, the Executive Committee of the Waist-makers' Union published a paper yesterday called The Shirt Waist-Maker. It is to be sent to the non-union workers. It tells all about the union and asks the non-unionists to join the strike.

4,720 MILES BY WIRELESS.

How the Korea Off Japan Talked to San Francisco—Low Power Used.

The recent breaking of the long-distance wireless record by the Pacific Mail liner Korea, when her operator sent her distance report and a message of greeting to the United Wireless Station in San Francisco, has interested students of aerial telegraphy, because her operator used not what is popularly known as a high-powered apparatus—that is, about from 25 to 50 kilowatt power—but a low-powered apparatus of 5 kilowatt. Moreover, the messages were not transmitted from a high tower at a land station, but from a regular ship's aerial less than 100 feet above the sea level.

The Korea was equipped with wireless for experimental purposes. She sailed from San Francisco on Oct. 20. As the distance increased between the ship and the shore her operator sent almost hourly messages to the San Francisco station. The 1,500-mile limit was passed within three days, and when Honolulu was reached, 2,100 miles away, the operator chatted with his friends in the San Francisco station several times. After the ship had left Honolulu her commander kept up daily communication with his employers until Nov. 2 at 8 P. M., when the Korea's operator sent this message:

8 P. M.—2,205 miles west of Honolulu; in touch with Japan to-night. All well.

At that time the distance from San Francisco was 4,305 miles. This message was also picked up by the Government wireless operator on Farallon Island, forty miles outside of Golden Gate.

It was believed that this would be about the limit of the Korea's wireless capabilities, but at 8 o'clock on Wednesday evening, Nov 3, a message was received at the San Francisco station giving the steamer's position as 2,622 miles west of Honolulu, or about 4,720 miles from San Francisco.

LAW TALKS FOR BUSINESS MEN

Bedford Y. M. C. A. Arranges a Course of Lectures by Well-Known Jurists.

To aid business men to avoid blunders, arising from a lack of a working knowledge of business law, the Bedford Branch of the Brooklyn Y. M. C. A. will open a business law course to-morrow evening. The lectures will be delivered by judges and prominent members of the bar.

Justice Joseph A. Burr, of the Brooklyn Supreme Court, will deliver the first lecture, answering the question, "What is law?" Others who have consented to lecture are Judge Chatfield, of the United States District Court; Justice Crane, of the New York Supreme Court; School Commissioner George Freifeld, Charles P. Robinson, Wendell P. Parker, William Payson Richardson, Eugene V. Brester, Joseph G. Quinn, Jr., Assistant District Attorney Robert H. Ray, of Kings, and Prof. Alfred G. Reeves.

The Weekly Financial Review.

The great railway companies of the country, which adapt their financing to the condition of the money market, have started in upon a movement to retire bonds and issue stock in their place. A few years ago it was the other way—the fashion was to issue bonds, with or without a convertible feature. The new movement is an innovation. Its significance is told in an important article in THE NEW YORK TIMES WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW.

One of the railroads has decided to stop having an independent examination made of its accounts by an audit company, and it is said more will follow. This interesting move is discussed in THE REVIEW. Oscar K. Lyle, the crop expert, tells why he sees a world shortage of wheat and high prices next Spring. The fall of the Government twos below par, the speech of Senator Aldrich, the agitation for the encouragement of American shipping, all are covered in THE REVIEW.
